PRESIDENT LAUDED BY G. O. P. ORATORS

Declare He Is Maligned by Enemies as Was Great Emancipator.

History will record the present period as the "most difficult" the Republic has experienced since Abraham Lincoln's time, President Hoover said last night in a radio speech commemorating the 123d anniversary of the Emancipator's birth.

Meantime Republican orators here and elsewhere were likening President Hoover's position to that of President Lincoln.

Like Lincoln, they said, he is being maligned and libelled in a time of stress. But, they predicted, he will steer the Republic safely through the present economic crisis just as Lincoln guided it through the Civil War. And the time will come, they added, when the country will give thanks that Herbert Hoover was in the White House when the emergency arrived.

Speaks From Lincoln Study.

President Hoover's speech was delivered into a microphone that had been set up in a study on the second floor of the White House—the same room from which Lincoln directed the war and signed the Emancipation proclamation.

Alluding to the economic troubles that beset the country, President Hoover said that we "are engaged in a fight upon a hundred fronts * * *."

In the end, he said, the resources, the power and the courage of the people will triumph over the national difficulty.

The President's speech was delivered chiefly in connection with the Lincoln Day dinner of the National Republican Club of New York. However, it was heard wherever Republicans gathered to pay homage to the first great leader of their party.

Republican Banquet Here.

The principal Lincoln Day event was a banquet in the Willard Hotel last night, given under the auspices of the National Capital Republican Club.

Edward F. Colladay, Republican national committeeman for the District of Columbia, opened the meeting. He, like the other orators, denounced the campaign of "misrepresentation and abuse" that is being carried on against President Hoover.

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader in the Senate, was vociferously cheered when he pictured the courageous battle President Hoover has been waging against the depression.

"What President, save alone the sainted Lincoln," he asked, "was ever more maligned and misrepresented?

"It is fresh in the mind of every student of our history that in 1862 and again in 1864 the currents of public opinion were all running strongly against Abraham Lincoln, until his kindly and patient spirit was almost broken by the fierce criticism of his foes, but, when the patriotic people of the country were once aroused to the danger of changing helmsman in a storm, he was again chosen to continue the task so laboriously begun and to fight on to the tragic end.

Better Courses Not Suggested.

"And what President more than he who today sits in the loftiest seat of earth has ever been so traduced and aspersed? Those who claim that he has done too little and those who assert that he has done too much are alike vehement in their denunciation, but yet his bitterest assailants never said what they would have done had they occupied his place in this unhappy time or what different action than his they would have taken had power been placed in their hands.

"No President's name appears in the list who has labored more earn-

Chinese Detective Killed Protecting U. S. Wheat

Shanghai, Saturday, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—American wheat, intended for Chinese flood sufferers, was the cause of a bloody fight today on the Shanghai docks.

Coolies working on the docks have been doing a big clandestine business in whatever wheat they could lay their hands on. An attempt was made to stop their activities and they attacked a group of Chinese detectives placed on guard over the wheat. One guard was killed and five were wounded.

Text of Hoover's Address To Lincoln Day Gathering

The text of the President's address last night in connection with the Lincoln Day Dinner of the National Republican Club of New York City follows:

I deeply regret that public duties make it impossible for me to be present with you at your Lincoln Day dinner this evening. It is, however, a privilege and obligation for every American to join even for a few moments in a tribute to Abraham Lincoln.

I gave a brief address from this room in the White House a year ago tonight. I stated then that it was the room in which a long line of Presidents, from Adams to Roosevelt, have labored for the single purpose of their country's welfare. It was in this room from which I am speaking that Lincoln labored incessantly day and night for the preservation of the Union. No one can enter here without being sensitive to those invisible influences of the men who have gone before. It was from this window that for five years Lincoln looked across the Potomac upon a flag under which embattled forces threatened our national unity. Unafraid, he toiled here with patience, with understanding, with steadfastness, with genius and courage that those wounds of a distraught Nation might be healed and that that flag which waved over this house might be restored as the symbol of a united country. We rightly look back upon that time as the period of the greatest strain and stress which has threatened our country. But its wounds have long since healed and its memories are of the glorious valor and courage of our race, both North and South. They bring into bold relief memories of a great son of America who freed the country from slavery, preserved the solidarity of the Union, revitalized the Nation, reinspired the people with a new purpose, and set for them a new destiny.

While we are in the midst of the difficulties of this day we may well entertain the feeling that history will record this period as one of the most difficult in its strains and stresses upon the timbers of the Republic that has been experienced since Lincoln's time. There are enduring principles and national ideals to be preserved against the pressure of today.

The forces with which we are contending are far less tangible than those of Lincoln's time. They are invisible forces, yet potent in their powers of destruction. We are en-

CREDIT BILL MOVES NEARER ENACTMENT

Receives Approval of House and Senate Banking Committees.

(Associated Press.)

Backed by an administration promise that it would start business on the long-awaited upward trend, the emergency credit expension bill yesterday received the approval of Senate and House banking committees.

Arrangements were made to bring it up for debate in both branches early next week, with swift passage in prospect. It has the support of leaders of both parties. The House will take up the bill on Monday and the Senate will begin consideration on the floor Tuesday.

Secretary Mills of the Treasury told the House banking committee the bill theoretically "will release $10,000,000,000 of credit" and "start the upward movement we are all looking for."

The provision to release about $750,000,000 of "free gold" for new currency also developed yesterday as a possible protective measure to strengthen the Federal Reserve System against threatened withdrawal of about $600,000,000 in gold "earmarked" for foreign countries, principally France.

Mr. Mills insisted, however, before the House banking committee that "we have sufficient gold to meet all demands that can be made."

In opening the reserve system to rediscounting of new paper not now

France and Britain Agreed on Debts

Decision Concerning German Moratorium Expected to Convoke Conference.

Paris, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—France and Great Britain have reached an accord in principle on reparations questions which is expected to lead to an immediate decision to convoke the Lausanne reparations conference in June.

An official announcement said the accord involves mutual concessions, chiefly concerning the duration of the moratorium to be granted Germany. Britain had favored five years and France took the position that one or two years were sufficient.

It was understood the agreement was of a very general nature, leaving concrete settlement of problems for the Lausanne conference, which was postponed last month because of a deadlock among the European powers.

CANNON INDICTMENT IS DECLARED INVALID

Proctor Rules Bishop and Aid Insufficiently Accused; Trial Plans Fade.

Bishop James Cannon, jr., and Miss Ada L. Burroughs, named several months ago in an indictment charging them in ten counts with conspiring to violate the corrupt practices act, and with violating that act, yesterday won their battle to invalidate the indictment when Justice James M. Proctor, in a memorandum opinion, held that it was a fatal error for the Government to omit from the allegations of the indictment, the charge that either the Bishop or Miss Burroughs had knowledge of the receipt of huge sums given the Virginia anti-Smith committee.

The net result of the ruling is that Bishop Cannon and Miss Burroughs will probably never stand trial on the charge, though, in a case of this sort, the Government has the right of appeal to the higher courts.

Justice Proctor said that the bill as drawn, did not sufficiently allege that the militant Churchman or his aid knew that E. C. Jameson, New York capitalist, had contributed sums of money aggregating more than $60,000 to the committee.

The opinion says, in part: "There is no allegation as to whom any contribution was actually delivered by Jameson, or that the recipient made any report or accounting to Burroughs, the treasurer, nor is it shown that she had knowledge thereof."

Justice Proctor did not go into the constitutional question involved in the case. That question was whether Congress had the right to legislate concerning presidential electors. The contention was set up that such electors were State agents and were not therefore subject to Federal governing.

The indictment against the bishop and Miss Burroughs was in ten counts. They were charged with conspiring to violate the corrupt prac-

G. O. P. Lauds Hoover In Washington State

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Republican State central committee commended President Hoover today for "his wise, capable and effective administration * * * and constructive program for meeting the economic situation in the United States, due wholly to world-wide conditions."

The committee set Saturday, May 7, as the date and Seattle as the meeting place for the State convention.

29-Year Murder Hunt Ends As Mine Operator Is Seized

Columbia, Mo., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A 29-year search for George Presnell, 59, wanted in Bakersville, N. C., on a charge of murder, is believed to have ended here.

Presnell, who for the last year has been operating a coal mine at Prathersville, near here, under the name of George Miller, was arrested last night on an information from Bakersville where he is charged with the murder of Lewis Buchanan in 1903.

Letters written to relatives in North Carolina caused authorities there to pick up his trail.

Presnell, who admitted his identity, said that he, Buchanan and another man whose name he did not remember, quarreled and fought over Presnell's wife. He declared he did not remember the outcome of the fight.

For fifteen years Presnell lived at Oskaloosa, Iowa, where he became fairly well-to-do and married again, although he said he did not know whether the first Mrs. Presnell was still living. He said his second wife was unaware of his past.

Presnell said he would waive extradition. Officers are awaiting word from Bakersville.

Bakersville, N. C., Feb. 12 (A.P.) Sheriff J. M. Gouge today prepared to go to Columbia, Mo., to take

HOOVER AND JOHNSON OUT IN NORTH DAKOTA

(Associated Press.)

The Democratic supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt took up militantly yesterday the challenge of the "stop Roosevelt" brigade, while the Republican managers for Herbert Hoover and the insurgent friends of Hiram Johnson decided alike to stand aside from a primary contest in early-voting North Dakota.

These three developments, among the many produced by a day of far-flung political action, cast significant shadows into the presidential year, 1932.

The rally here of the Roosevelt forces, led by Homer Cummings, of Connecticut, and 11 Democratic senators, signalized the beginning of an aggressive nation-wide push against the wall of opposition which several party leaders are seeking to rear between the New York governor and the nomination.

The Hoover decision not to enter the North Dakota primary of March 15 indicated a conviction among his managers that his renomination is assured without the disagreeable necessity of battling for disputed States—particularly the States where the party is largely in the hands of the insurgents.

Johnson Candidacy In Doubt.

Senator Johnson's refusal to go into North Dakota, on the other hand, greatly lessened the likelihood that he will run at all against Hoover. He left the door open to later action in other States, but his friends no longer had much hope of his candidacy.

Various other developments during the day partly clarified and partly clouded the situation in both parties.

In Harrisburg a Roosevelt-for-President League was organized by Democratic leaders of 30 Pennsylvania counties. Similar leagues are to be launched soon in other States.

The Republican State committees of Kentucky and Tennessee indorsed President Hoover for reelection. These are among the States counted by the Hoover leaders as safe without a delegate contest.

With only 24 hours left for filing in North Dakota, the only Republican entrants were former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland; Representative Louis T. McFadden, of

Introduced last night as a possible presidential candidate at the Chicago convention by Mrs. Wilbur Hubbard, of the board of governors of the Women's Democratic Club, Gov. George White of Ohio said at the club's Lincoln Day dinner that "It would be quite all right with me," but he explained that he had no intention to campaign, and came to Washington solely on an invitation extended to him by the Democratic Club.

Homer Cummings, one of the leaders of the Gov. Roosevelt group, made a plea for harmony in the party and stated that conflicts among the powers of the party should be avoided.

Suspect Pleads Guilty In Furrier's Kidnaping

St. Louis, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Charles Tucker, one of the six men charged with kidnapping Alexander Berg, wealthy St. Louis fur merchant, pleaded guilty late today, and it was announced he would be called by the State as a witness against Charles Heuer, now on trial.

Circuit Judge Ossing, who is presiding at Heuer's trial, announced sentencing of Tucker would be deferred until March 31. Under the Missouri law, kidnapping for ransom may be punishable by death. Tucker was a guard in the flat where Mr. Berg was held prisoner four days last November before being released without payment of $50,000 ransom demanded by the kidnappers.

ITALO-FRENCH PARLEY BEGUN ON ARMS CUT

Geneva Session Inspires Effort to Harmonize London Pact.

SMALL NATIONS ADD VIEWS ON PROBLEMS

Stimson Prepared to Attend Conference When Group Needs Services.

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 12 (A.P.). The World Disarmament Conference bore its first fruit today with the resumption of direct negotiations between the French and Italian delegations to settle their naval differences.

It was firmly believed that conferences now being held would lead to an extension of the London Naval Treaty of 1930, and provide a basis for further disarmament of all powers on the seas.

French Minister of War Andre Tardieu and Foreign Minister Dino Grandi, of Italy, have already met to discuss the subject, and their conversations are being followed up by the French and Italian naval experts, Rene Massigli and Augusto Rosso.

Basis Is 1930 Treaty.

The negotiations are being conducted on the basis of the abortive agreement among Italy, France and Great Britain on March 1, 1930. The principal point to be worked out is the replacement of ships becoming obsolete—a point which wrecked the 1930 treaty.

The French, who have a proportionately large number of ships that will soon become overage, have maintained their right to replace them and the Italians, whose navy is relatively more modern, have contested this stand.

Italy's long-held thesis of parity with all other continental European nations may be met by agreeing on an approximate parity which would gradually be arrived at in the near future.

The conference is following the negotiations with interest, inasmuch as the Franco-Italian naval dispute has been one of the most difficult problems in disarmament, and because they may lead to an agreement between the two powers to reduce their land and air forces as well.

Small Nations Day.

Today was small nations' day at the conference board, with foreign ministers of Spain, Czechoslovakia and Denmark outlining their country's suggestions for limitation and reduction.

The Spanish delegate, Luis Zulueta, proposed abolition of military aviation and the internationalization of civil aviation, and approved the proposals of the great powers to outlaw arms of an aggressive nature. He further recommended limitation of new war vessels to 10,000 tonnage, carrying eight-inch guns as a maximum, and the limitation of submarines to 1,000 tonnage.

Edouard Renes, for Czechoslovakia, seconded the French plan for arming the League of Nations, and indorsed the draft convention as the basis of the conference's work. "We must determine not to separate finally," he said, "until we have signed the first convention for limitation and reduction of armaments."

Suggestions by Denmark.

Danish Foreign Minister Munch suggested that equality of armaments between the victor and vanquished nations in the World War be attain-

35 Ohio Bus Passengers Hurt as Pole Is Struck

Cincinnati, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Thirty-five passengers were hurt late today in a city transit bus accident. The driver, attempting to pass an automobile, struck a pole and one side of the bus was crushed.

Four persons suffered serious injuries, the remainder escaping with bruises and shock. One woman, however, appeared to have been critically injured. Twenty-five of those hurt were taken to hospitals. Fifteen were released after examination.

Persistent Observer Trapped by Landslide

Jackson, Wyo., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Harry Swanson of Jackson, was an interested observer as a snow and rock slide crashed two miles down the side of a mountain in the Teton pass region.

Just before reaching Swanson and other members of his party, the slide, traveling at terrific speed, divided. All members of the observation group, except Swanson, fled down a highway to safety. He was caught beneath the debris. Today searching parties dug for his body beneath 50 feet of snow, ice and boulders.

JAPAN'S BOMBS SMASH COUNTER-DRIVE PLAN; SOVIET PACT REPORTED

Russia and Nippon Said to Have Made Secret Peace Treaty.

MANCHURIAN RIGHTS ARE GRANTED TOKYO

War Held to Have Been Only Narrowly Averted After Bitter Disputes.

London, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—The Daily Express will say tomorrow that a secret treaty has been concluded between the Soviet Russia and Japanese governments as a move to settle conflicting interests in the Far East without resorting to war.

The treaty gives Japan almost undisputed dominion over Manchuria and large tracts of land in Mongolia, the newspaper said.

The agreement was achieved as an alternative to war, the Daily Express said, declaring that the desire of some Soviet government leaders to fight Japan had resulted in a "bitter conflict" in the inner councils at Moscow.

Pledged Not to Intervene.

The pact pledged the Soviets not to intervene in behalf of China in any affair affecting the Pacific Coast, the Daily Express correspondent declared.

The dispatch also said it was agreed that the Russian interests in the Chinese Eastern Railroad, running through the northern half of Manchuria, would be sold to Japan.

The Daily Express correspondent reported that Joseph V. Stalin, the Soviet dictator, had overruled the demands for war by deciding that the Soviets at present are unable to face the highly organized war machine of modern Japan, which crushed the czarist Russians in Manchuria 30 years ago.

Ominous Silence Recalled.

It was recalled that recent dispatches from Moscow reported an "ominous silence" in government quarters concerning the clash of Russian and Japanese interests in Manchuria when Japanese troops occupied Harbin, chief city on the Chinese Eastern Railroad, which is jointly controlled by Russia and China.

At the same time the Japanese consul at Vladivostok, Siberia, not far from the Manchurian border, reported "warlike" activities by the Russians.

The Soviet government officials have repeatedly emphasized their desire for peace, but it was admitted by the Russian delegation at Geneva that certain changes were being made to strengthen garrisons on the Manchurian frontier.

Laid to White Russians.

In this connection, however, they contended that Russia was concerned only with the possibility that white Russians (Czarists), now living in

Chinese Used U. S. Flag In Attack, Japanese Say

Shanghai (Saturday), Feb. 13 (A.P.).—Japanese military authorities declared today that a group of Chinese soldiers bearing an American flag crossed Woosung Creek in a small boat Friday morning and attacked the Japanese positions.

The Chinese were repulsed, these authorities said, although the Japanese withheld their fire when they first saw the boat because they were confused at the display of the United States flag.

CHINA INDICTS JAPAN THROUGH U. S. ENVOY

Charges Tokyo Has Closed Every Avenue Offered for Settlement.

(United Press.)

The Chinese government issued a statement through its legation here last night charging that Japan had closed every avenue to peace in Shanghai by refusing the peace proposals of the Western powers.

The statement said China will continue to resist Japan's attacks "at all points with all forces at its command."

"In flatly turning down at first the proposals of the International Shanghai Defense Committee, then the power's five proposals and more recently still, British Admiral Kelly's scheme, Japan is thus closing every avenue to peace," the statement said, "leaving China no alternative but to continue to adopt appropriate measures of self-defense to the best of her ability."

The Chinese government said that at no time since the Russo-Japanese War has it doubted the purpose of Japan to seize Manchuria whenever an opportunity arose. The statement reviewed the history of Sino-Japanese relations briefly from that time to the present crisis beginning in September when it is charged Japan "usurped control" at Mukden "without any provocation."

"Failing to frighten the Chinese government," said the statement, "Japan decided to carry military action into the heart of China, showing her contempt and indifference to the world's opinion, with the purpose of convincing the Chinese it was hopeless to appeal for outside help."

The government statement charges the Japanese naval and military forces have used the International Settlement at Shanghai both as a base for their attacks on the Chinese police and troops and as a sanctuary where they can retire when repulsed and for recuperation and resupply.

The Chinese troops, it is said, have been unable to reply effectively to Japanese attacks without endangering the lives and property of thousands of friendly neutral foreigners residing in the settlement and surrounding suburbs and have been unable to pursue their Japanese attackers "without risking a conflict with friendly neutral foreign police and troops protecting the settlement."

The statement charges the Japanese warships fired over the settlement at the Chinese, who could not return the fire in fear of damaging neutral

Explorer Dares Death to See American Fiancee in China

Russian Member of French Asiatic Expedition Has Narrow Escapes in 8,000-Mile Trek; Will Marry Jacob Gould Schurman's Daughter at Legation.

Peiping, China, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A tale of romance was borne out of the Mongolian desert today by the hardy and bronzed explorers of the Haardt-Citroen Asiatic expedition—a romance that escaped disaster by a hairsbreadth.

Tomorrow the principals in the strange story—Miss Barbara Schurman, daughter of the noted American diplomat, Jacob Gould Schurman, and Vladimir Petropavlosky, a Russian member of the expedition—will be married at the American Legation.

Miss Schurman had not seen her fiance for almost a year, until the expedition rolled through the gates of Peiping today after an 8,000-mile trek across Asia. She came here a few days ago to meet him. But Petropavlosky almost missed being with the tractor-borne caravan on the last lap of its triumphal journey.

It came about thus:

Petropavlosky, as an aid in organizing an auxiliary unit, started on a journey from Peiping to meet the main expedition at Akau, in Chinese Turkestan, on its way to China.

He reached Mami, Chinese Turkestan, to guard supplies. While he was there the city went under siege by Mohammedan rebels, and for three months he was virtually held captive in the Oriental town.

Finally, Petropavlosky escaped from the rebels with a Chinese colonel and eventually made his way to Urumchi. He was just in time to join the main expedition, and continued with it to today's meeting with his fiancee.

Georges-Marie Haardt, the noted French explorer, and his sturdy band of 28 companions, left Bierut, Syria, in April of last year. They made a slow journey, almost on the trail Marco Polo used centuries before Planes and Heavy Guns Join in Bombarding Chapei Ruins.

WOOSUNG FORTS LIE IN PATH OF AIRCRAFT

(Copyright, 1932, by the Associated Press.)

Shanghai, Saturday, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The Chapei section of Shanghai was blasted and torn today by howitzer shells and air bombs, and at the conclusion of the bombardment the Japanese command announced they had succeeded in breaking up a threatening Chinese counter-attack before it got started.

Reports that promising peace negotiations were in progress were blasted as effectively as the Chinese positions in Chapei. Nelson T. Johnson, United States Minister to China, whose arrival here with the French and British ministers gave rise to optimistic rumors that a pacific settlement was in the making, said so far as he knew there were no concrete peace proposals anywhere on the horizon.

The bombardment of Chapei, started by Japanese howitzers in the fog and mist at 8:05 a. m. and followed up by six big air bombers, succeeded in scattering menacing Chinese troop concentrations, the Japanese naval command said.

Heaviest Cannonading.

For a brief period all Shanghai, even to the business district, shook to the heaviest cannonading since the fighting started more than two weeks ago. Then, as the fog cleared away, the Japanese bombers could be seen over Chapei where, for an hour or so, they searched out their objectives and, as they picked them up, dropped their loads of destruction and death.

The guns and the airplanes awakened Mr. Johnson and his diplomatic colleagues—British Minister Sir Miles Lampson and French Minister Wilden. Each grabbed a telephone and called to his consulate to find out what it was all about.

Mr. Johnson announced that he and the British and French envoys were in Shanghai to learn exact conditions here. The greatest difficulty, he said, would be encountered in endeavoring to arrive at a proposal satisfactory to both sides.

Both Want to Save Face.

"It is a question of face," he explained. "Neither side wants to lose face. Face is everything in the Far East. If any individual or group were capable of formulating some scheme by which faces would be saved all around then perhaps eventually a way might be opened for talk designed to bring about a cessation of hostilities."

The American Minister expected to see Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japanese Minister to China, today or tomorrow.

Although not making any positive assertion, he apparently did not believe the Shanghai International Settlement to be in any immediate danger.

Planes Head Toward Forts.

About 9:30 a. m. the bombers wheeled to the north, toward the Woosung forts. Clouds of fog and smoke hung over the Whangpoo River, and into these clouds the planes disappeared, leaving Chapei, for a time at least, in quiet.

These Japanese airplanes had got in their work as the Chinese waited impatiently for four squadrons of planes coming up from Canton to as-

GIFT LEVY DUE WITH NEW HIKE IN INCOME TAX

House Ways and Means Group Asks Mills for Proposals.

DETAILS ON REVENUE BILL ARE WITHHELD

(Associated Press..)

Both individuals and corporations were tentatively slated yesterday by the House ways and means committee to pay increased income taxes next year.

Drafting a $1,641,000,000 revenue bill to balance the budget in 1933, the committee also agreed to levy a gift tax. New brackets on this and income taxes were fixed, but all details were withheld.

Secretary Mills was called upon to submit next Tuesday proposals for additional taxes to meet new Treasury needs as a result of the decline in revenue during recent months.

Estimates Are Revised.

The original Treasury program provided for a yield of $920,000,000, based on business conditions last September. As revised on February estimates, the yield was fixed at $786,000,000 and the prospective 1933 deficit was increased from $920,000,000 to $1,241,000,000, exclusive of public debt retirement requirements.

The committee has no recommendations from the Treasury on how to raise the $455,000,000 additional revenue required.

Acting Chairman Crisp announced no decision on a manufactures sales tax had been reached. The Treasury and Commerce Departments, however, have been asked to furnish data on a selective manufactures sales tax. Crisp indicated the committee virtually had abandoned a general manufactures sales tax.

The gift tax is not expected to result in much added revenue, but is intended primarily to prevent the evasion of the inheritance tax. The committee also has before it a proposition to increase the inheritance tax, 80 per cent of which now goes to the States.

Crisp Reports Difficulties.

Crisp said difficulties were being met in finding new sources of revenue and that "it will take much time." The Georgia Democrat said he hoped the committee could report the bill to the House by March 1.

Although the committee did not make the income tax rates and new brackets public, the fact that it quickly agreed on them tentatively led to the belief that the recommendations of the Treasury were closely followed except in the proposal to lower exemptions of individual income taxes.

This would have included 1,700,000 additional tax payers, who would have paid in only $12,000,000, and would have run counter to the policy of the Democratic leadership.

The Treasury recommended an increase from 12 to 12½ per cent on corporate income tax, and indications were that the committee would not increase it more than 1 per cent.

Wilkerson Scored On Capone Stand

Labor Counsel Charges Judge Aided Racketeer Labor Control.

(Associated Press.)

The sentencing of Al Capone by Judge James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, was discounted before a Senate committee yesterday by Donald H. Richberg, counsel for organized labor, on the ground the judge had aided racketeers to gain control of the labor unions in that city.

Mr. Richberg, testifying against confirmation of Judge Wilkerson as circuit judge, said the activities of "so-called injunction judges had promoted the injection of racketeers into the labor unions and made it impossible for any of these organizations to survive "except those that deal in methods of lawless violence."

Judge Wilkerson was charged by Mr. Richberg with "an intolerable use of the injunctive power" in connection with cases against the musicians' union of Chicago in 1928, and members of the committee asked Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, who is supporting the nomination, to reply to the charges.

Dry Agents of Waldorf District Will Be Moved

A number of Federal dry agents in the Waldorf, Md., district will be moved in the near future, it was learned yesterday, although it is understood that Agent J. R. Brewer will remain in charge.

FILIPINOS TO MEET; AROUSED BY HURLEY

Manila Conference Planned Two Days Previous to Roosevelt's Arrival.

Manila, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—In an atmosphere of resentment aroused by recent statements of Secretary of War Hurley in Washington opposing immediate Filipino independence, a call was issued today for a conference of Filipino leaders which is expected to determine their attitude toward Theodore Roosevelt, newly-appointed governor general.

The call was for all legislators and provincial governors affiliated with the dominant Nacionalista party to meet in Manila February 27, two days before Roosevelt is due here.

Mr. Hurley's testimony before congressional committees was termed "reactionary" by independence advocates. It was denied in responsible quarters, however, that a move was afoot to adopt a policy of noncooperation with Gov. Roosevelt.

Situation Is Complicated.

Although Filipino leaders declined to discuss the significance of the party conference, it was called following Mr. Hurley's statements against immediate independence. The situation was complicated by headlines in one newspaper saying the Secretary of War had declared the Filipinos were incapable of governing themselves.

Plans for the conference were considered at a meeting attended by Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippines senate, and other leading independence advocates.

Details for the public reception to Gov. Gen. Roosevelt were announced last week. Secretary of the Interior Ventura, in charge of arrangements, said there had been no change.

(Associated Press.)

Replying to Secretary Hurley's characterization of his Philippine independence bill as "a measure completely lacking in courage," Senator Hawes (Democrat), Missouri, yesterday asserted that certain proposals of the War Secretary for dealing with the Philippines were "political immorality."

The Missourian told the House insular committee that to follow Mr. Hurley's advice in restricting Filipino immigration and exports to this country without first setting a date for independence would be "like hiting a man in the face whose hands were tied behind his back."

Proposals Are Scored.

"In all my experience in both houses of Congress," he said, "I never before heard any such proposals advanced which did not first provide for independence at a fixed time. What the War Secretary proposes is political immorality."

Attacking Hurley's testimony before insular committees of the House and Senate, Senator Hawes said the Philippines would have no need for an army, navy or costly diplomatic and consular representation if granted independence.

He said an army of from 60,000 to 80,000 men would be needed to repulse any foreign invasion, and it is absurd to believe that either the United States or independent Philippine state would try to maintain any such force in the islands.

Dry Attack Laid To "Tax-Dodgers"

Brookhart Charges Foes of Law Motivated by Selfishness.

Charges that a small number of financial operators are making an assault on prohibition with the hope that Federal liquor taxes would lighten their income tax burden were made last night by Senator Brookhart in a radio broadcast under the auspices of the radio education committee.

The Iowa statesman said that the Association Against Prohibition "was set up by a group of tax dodgers looking for an opportunity to transfer their taxes to the backs of the laboring people by the nullification of the eighteenth amendment and the legalizing of beverages of low alcoholic content. Their selfish purposes was to reduce their taxes, increase their ruthless earnings and establish an economic autocracy over our Government."

The women's organization for prohibition reform was also indicted in the address. "This association is not for reform at all," he said, "it is against reform. Its whole purpose is to supplement the tax dodgers of the Association Against Prohibition."

Two Convicted of Slaying.

DAY IN CONGRESS

Elderly Man Dies While Buying Food

Irving Knickerbocker, 73 years old, of 2525 Ontario place northwest, died suddenly about 5:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon as he was purchasing groceries in a store at 1726 Columbia road northwest. Dr. Franklin Pedrick, of 1736 Columbia road northwest, was called when the elderly man collapsed, but Mr. Knickerbocker died before aid could reach him.

Mr. Knickerbocker was a native of Rochester, N. Y., but had lived in Washington for 25 years. He was a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows. He is survived by a son, DeWitt Knickerbocker, and a daughter, Miss Hope Knickerbocker, who is founder of the Jacob Jones Post of the American Legion.

Services of the Christian Science Church will be held at 8 o'clock Monday night at the W. W. Chambers funeral home at Fourteenth and Chapin streets northwest. Interment will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

'Dead' Voter Found Alive in Alabama

U. S. Marshal Notifies Senate Group Second J. W. Moore Found.

(Associated Press.)

United States Marshal Thomas J. Kennamer, of Alabama, notified a Senate elections subcommittee yesterday that the J. W. Moore, who testified he had cast an absentee ballot in Shelby County to disprove a charge it was cast for a dead man is not the same John W. Moore who lives in Jefferson County. At recent hearings held by a commissioner for the committee in Alabama in connection with the contest against the election of Senator Bankhead (Democrat), Alabama, attorneys for former Senator Heflin charged the ballot was cast for a dead man.

Bankhead's lawyers produced a witness who said he had cast the ballot. Chairman Hastings reported to the committee that this witness produced by Bankhead's attorneys was an election official in Jefferson County. He charged that the ballot in Shelby County was cast either for a dead man or by an official in Jefferson County.

Kennamer telegraphed Hastings yesterday, however, that he had found a living John W. Moore in addition to the one in Jefferson County. The one he found, Kennamer reported, was the one who testified for Bankhead. He moved from Shelby County about five years ago, the marshal said, and asserted he had never voted in Jefferson County.

Old Coins Come Out of Hiding.

Enid, Okla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Maybe President Hoover's antihoarding campaign was responsible. Anyway, a woman paid for a $5 dress at an Enid store with ten 50-cent pieces, the oldest of which was coined in 1814 and the latest in 1834.

M'BRIDE FACES QUIZ IN SENATE ON BEER

Appearance Is Requested by Bingham After Bill Is Championed.

(Associated Press.)

Witnesses favoring legalization of 4 per cent beer testified before a Senate committee yesterday that arrests and deaths from alcoholism have mounted under prohibition and that the Government has lost more than $6,000,000,000 in revenue and the expense of enforcement.

The statements came from Samuel M. Shultz, of Washington, national secretary of the Constitutional Rights Association of America, and Stanley Shirk, of New York, research director of the Moderation League.

When no opponents of the measure came forward to testify, Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, said he would like to have Dr. F. Scott McBride, of the Antisaloon League, take the stand at the next hearing, set for February 19.

Would Quiz McBride.

"I have a number of questions I would like to ask him about the activities of the Antisaloon League and its attitude oward the bill before us," Bingham said.

Chairman Metcalf (Republican), Rhode Island, said he had requested McBride to testify at the previous hearing in summation of the case against the bill, but that the league's lawyer had been sent instead.

Dr. McBride has been a spectator at most of the hearings, which began more than a month ago. He was not present yesterday, however. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was in the audience.

Mr. Shultz read a lengthy statement in which he undertook to refute testimony given at previous hearings by witnesses against the bill and said:

Huge Loss Is Claimed.

"Taking 1919 as the basis for computation, we find that the Federal Government in twelve years of national prohibition has lost $5,796,610,253 in revenue without reducing to any appreciable extent the amount of alcoholic beverages consumed in the United States as compared with 1919.

"The Government has expended in round figures $300,000,000 in a futile attempt to enforce the law." Shultz said arrests for drunkenness "started upward very abruptly" after the first year of prohibition.

In answer to questions from Chairman Metcalf he said arrests from drunkenness have increased more rapidly in the "so-called dry States" than in the "wet States."

He also testified to a "decided decline" in arrests for drunkenness in 1930, which he attributed "largely to economic conditions."

U. S. Right to Inspect Grain Accounts Upheld

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The right of the Secretary of Agriculture to examine trading accounts of grain brokers to determine whether the grain futures act was being violated was upheld today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

This act had been upheld by the Supreme Court, but the traders, headed by Bartlett Frazier Co., brought action to test the regulatory powers used by the Department of Agriculture to enforce the act.

Judge Wilkerson ruled the Secretary's action was "reasonable exercise of the powers conferred by the grain futures act" and found that "the Secretary has not transcended the limits of what is necessary to intelligent performance of his broad duties."

Reichswehr Held Hitler-Dominated

"Republican Iron Front" Campaign Is Started in Provinces.

Dessau, Germany, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Karl Hoeltermann, new leader of the Reichsbanner Organization, launched a Republican "iron front" campaign in the provinces in an address here tonight in which he charged that the Reichswehr and the ministry of defense were being conducted under pressure by Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists.

"The countenancing by Defense Minister Groener, of Nazis, in the Reichswehr is the best example of the attitude of the military men," Herr Hoeltermann declared.

"It is high time the Reichswehr leaders were performing their regular duties instead of mixing in politics. It is strange that the loyalty of our Reichswehr is continually being questioned. How does it stand? Frankly, we mistrust it—it could not be depended on at the time of the Kapp Putsch in 1923."

MELLON AND MILLS ASSUME NEW POSTS

(Associated Press.)

Ogden L. Mills became Secretary of the Treasury late yesterday afternoon. He was sworn in after Secretary Mellon took the oath as Ambassador to Great Britain.

At the same time Arthur A. Ballantine became Undersecretary of the Treasury, succeeding Mills.

The oaths were taken in the reception room of the Secretary's suite. It was crowded with Government officials, friends and members of their families. The oath was administered to each by Frank A. Birgfeld, chief clerk of the Treasury.

Lawrence Richey, secretary to the President, represented Mr. Hoover, while other prominent guests were Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes, president of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board; Representative Ruth Pratt, of New York, and a large number of other Government officials.

After each had taken the oath for their new positions the guests filed past them, shook hands and congratulated each.

President Hoover, in accepting the formal resignation of Mr. Mellon as Secretary of the Treasury, paid tribute to him for his eleven years of service in that post.

The Secretary's letter of resignation and the President's reply follow:

Dear Mr. President:

I hereby tender my resignation as Secretary of the Treasury, to take effect at your convenience or at such time as you may desire me to assume my duties as Ambassador to Great Britain.

It has been nearly eleven years since I came to the Treasury. I have found it a period of absorbing interest and count it the highest privilege to have had this opportunity for public service. I am leaving the Treasury with the greatest respect for its organization and for the many able men whose support and assistance to me have been so invaluable.

I am also leaving with the highest regard for you and for your administration, of which I have had the honor of being part. In going to London, I shall miss particularly the pleasant daily association with you here and regret the severance of the ties which have grown up during the long period we have been together in Washington.

Faithfully yours,
A. W. MELLON,
Secretary of the Treasury.

The President,
The White House.

WASHINGTON
February 12, 1932.

The Honorable
Andrew W. Mellon,
Washington, D. C.
My Dear Mr. Mellon:

I am in receipt of your resignation as Secretary of the Treasury, which I, of course, accept.

There is little need for me to comment in appreciation of the eleven years of service you have given to our country. I know of no more magnificent tribute that has come to a public servant than the universal expressions of the press and the public toward you during the past few days.

I am in hopes that your new and important responsibilities will prove congenial, and I am well aware of the extent of the burdens which you are undertaking out of a sense of patriotic duty.

I wish to take this occasion to again express the feeling of personal loss I have after these years of association in the Cabinet.

Yours faithfully,
HERBERT HOOVER.

David E. Finley Will Go To London With Mellon

Andrew Mellon announced at the Treasury yesterday that David E. Finley, special assistant to the Secretary, would accompany him to London as honorary counselor of embassy. Mr. Finley, who practiced law in Philadelphia, came to the Treasury as counsel and member of the war loan staff.

The office of special assistant to the Secretary was subsequently created, and in this capacity Mr. Finley has been closely identified in recent years with Mr. Mellon's administration of the Treasury.

Billy Sunday Warned Of Breakdown Threat

Pittsburgh, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Billy Sunday, militant evangelist, is suffering from laryngitis and is on the verge of a nervous breakdown. But, despite his 70 years, he refuses to cancel several meetings scheduled in a northside church.

Physicians who treated him in his hotel room today said Sunday "is like a run-down storage battery" and that he needs a two-weeks rest. The dynamic foe of liquor said, however, that he intends to go on with his preaching.

3 Dry Agents Indicted On Charges of Bribery

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A Federal grand jury today indicted three prohibition agents on charges of accepting bribes. The accused men are Philip Remington, jr., New York City; Robert T. Simpson, Malone, and D. Stuart Brahe, Utica.

Simpson and Brahe are accused of having accepted a $200 bribe from Thomas J. Loftus, of Rensselaer, and Remington is charged with accepting money from Michael Bastian, Albany. The three agents now are free under bond. They were arrested about two weeks ago.

The expedition accomplished much useful work, M. Haardt said, through its scientists. He especially praised Maynard Owen Williams, of the National Geographic Society, who made sound pictures and phonetic records in every country they traversed.

Huge Alcohol Distillery Near U. S. Building Is Raided; Ownership Hazy.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—While a crew of workmen began their two weeks' job of dismantling all the elaborate set-up of a huge alcohol distillery seized here today, prohibition officials sought to trace owners of the building and its most recent occupants.

The distilling plant, located not a square from the Federal Court Building, was in a block-long warehouse. John R. Barton, field executive of the prohibition unit, said it was the largest and most elaborate ever seized in the East, and placed its value at more than $500,000.

When they started to trace persons responsible for the plant, they found title to the building in which it was located so involved that the legal department was called in to aid. No trace has been found of five men who fled through a trapdoor in the roof as the raiding party battered in the doors.

The building housed a copper still capable of turning out 20,000 gallons of grain alcohol per day, six 50,000-gallon mash vats, a complete laboratory, bottling plant, and other paraphernalia incident to the distilling business. Storage tanks contained 18,000 gallons of the completed product valued at $72,000 under wholesale prices.

The plant, Barton said, had been in operation little more than a week, and had been under investigation for half that time. Prohibition officials expressed the opinion it was backed by New York capital.

The vats containing the mash took up two floors, three to each. A private telephone system extended through the building with extensions to all departments. Arrows painted on the walls designated the route to the trap doors for emergency and hurried exit.

Shipment, the agent said, was made by tank wagons disguised as milk trucks. A pipe line extended from the alcohol storage tanks to a loading room in the rear, through which the completed product was pumped into the tank wagons.

At least two weeks will be necessary to demolish the plant with all available men working on the job, Barton said.

The warehouse occupies the block between Lexington and Saratoga streets, near Eutaw street. It was the same one into which Representative Hamilton Fish led a raiding party more than a year ago.

Centralized Trade Is Topic of Debate

Speakers of G. W. U. and W. & L. Argue Point; No Decision.

Arguing in favor of centralized control of industry, George Washington University speakers in debate against Washington and Lee here last night pointed out four evils in the present economic situation which, they declared, would be remedied by such action. Recurring business depressions, excessive waste in industry, unemployment and inadequate statistical information would be eliminated thereby, they said.

The Washington and Lee debaters declared centralized control of industry to be economically and politically impossible. Even if possible they said such action would be undesirable because it would destroy individual initiative.

In defense of their position the George Washington debaters cited the fact that industry in numerous instances already has established centralized control within itself, which has been found to work satisfactorily. Philip I. Merryman and DeWitt Bennett represented George Washington University in the debate. No decision was rendered.

Man Seriously Injured After Visit in Home

One man is seriously injured and another is under arrest after a fight near 618 Sixth street northwest. The injured man is Walter E. Williams, 35 years old, of 1008 B street southeast.

The man held is James Allen, 21 years old, of the Sixth street address. The altercation started, according to police, when Williams refused to leave the Allen residence at the order of his sister, Mrs. Birdie Hockaday. Williams was taken to Casualty Hospital and later removed to Gallinger Hospital where he has a fractured skull and internal injuries. Allen was later booked for investigation at the First Precinct Station.

Bliss Outlines Plan To Help Employment

A program for general stimulation of employment in Washington through the cooperation of civic bodies and the churches was outlined by Col. E. G. Bliss, chairman of the work creation committee of the District committee on employment, at a conference of the smaller groups yesterday afternoon.

The committee voted to aid President Hoover in the fight against hoarding and to urge over the radio and through various civic agencies that all householders provide temporary employment by cleaning or painting their houses.

Major Levees Still Hold As Flood Area Widens

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Backwater from the flooded Mississippi River and its tributaries covered thousands of acres tonight, but United States engineers considered major levees safe for the present.

Fair weather today brought relief to the rain-soaked valley, and Government forecasters promised clear skies with a drop in temperature tonight. Recent heavy rains will cause a gradual rise in the Mississippi, which probably will reach a crest of 38 feet here by next Wednesday. A stage of 37.4 feet was reported today. Flood stage is 35 feet.

Cold Cured, Rockefeller Plays Golf.

Ormond, Fla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—John D. Rockefeller, sr., played his first golf game in more than two weeks today, following recovery from a slight cold. He played four holes over the Ormond Beach course and from all indications, his absence from the links affected his game very little.

MINE FIELD INQUIRY BY CONGRESS URGED

(Associated Press.)

A congressional investigation into conditions in the Kentucky mining counties of Harlan and Bell was proposed yesterday in the House as New York writers, who had been driven from the counties, described "a reign of terror" existent there.

Meanwhile, citizens in that area urged that if an inquiry is to be made, the first step should be in New York with its "nest of Communists."

Representative Black (Democrat), New York, introduced a resolution for the investigation of the two counties while the writers were telling their troubles at the other end of the Capitol.

Waldo Frank, of New York, an author and chairman of the writers' committee that was escorted from Bell and Harlan Counties by a vigilance committee Wednesday night, charged he had been beaten about the head and driven from the State after trying to distribute food at Pineville, Ky.

Striking miners in the area, which has been torn by labor strife for more than a year, live in a condition "virtually that of peonage," Frank said, and with widespread suffering and poverty.

Appeal to Senators.

With other members of the writers' group, he appeared before Senators Costigan (Democrat), Colorado; Cutting (Republican), New Mexico, and Logan (Democrat), Kentucky, whom they asked to hear their story. They presented affidavits, describing their treatment in detail.

Frank, head bound in surgical dressing for a wound he asserted the Kentuckians gave him, charged they accused him and Allen Taub, who also was injured, of fighting with each other when they were being escorted from the State.

Taub, attorney for the International Labor Defense gave a detailed account of his experiences in the two counties.

Liston M. Oak, New York journalist, told the senators the Senate should investigate "a reign of terror which has abridged all constitutional rights" in the coal fields.

Cites Other Suffering.

Asked by Senator Cutting by "what authority" the inquiry could be made, he said "The force of public opinion" and existing conditions.

Senator Logan expressed the opinion there was "lots of suffering in New York, where babies also are without milk," and asked Frank if he thought "conditions in Kentucky are any worse than in parts of Pennsylvania, for example?"

The Kentucky senator also questioned Mr. Taub, asking "What can the United States Senate do? You're a lawyer. You're talking about a matter that took place in a sovereign State. What right has the United States Senate to go into a county of that State?"

Mr. Taub said there was "sufficient precedent" for the inquiry.

Mrs. Elizabeth Baldwin, 24-year-old widow of a Harlan County miner, who held in her lap her 14-month-old daughter Christine as she spoke, said her husband was shot down last July.

Charges Gun Control.

The United Mine Workers, she added, instituted a strike last May, then left the miners, while the National Miners Union attempted to give relief.

Elzy Smith, who said he was a miner, also made a statement, in which he charged, "gun thugs" controlled the coal fields.

Only Senator Logan was present when the group finished.

While the authors were presenting their plea to the senators yesterday, Pineville citizens telegraphed members of Congress urging the inquiry in New York. The message was sent by Cleon K. Calvert, chairman, and W. Frank Durham, secretary of the local citizens' committee, to Senators Logan and Barkley (Democrats), Kentucky, Representative Finley (Democrat), Kentucky, and Representative Fish (Republican), New York.

OPERATOR ARRESTED FOR MURDER IN 1903

charge of George Presnell, wanted by Mitchell County authorities on an indictment charging the murder of Lewis Buchanan in 1903.

A report from Columbia, telling of Presnell's arrest, said the 59-year-old fugitive would not oppose extradition, but Sheriff Gouge announced he would obtain the necessary requisition papers before leaving, in the event Presnell should change his mind.

J. W. Bryant, county jailer, said he recalled the slaying of Buchanan well, although it was 29 years ago. Buchanan died of his wounds within 30 minutes of being stabbed one time with a knife after he had made some remarks to Mrs. Presnell, which was resented by the latter's husband, the jailer said.

Presnell's reported statement that a third man was involved was not borne out by Bryant's recollections of the incident. The stabbing occured on Big Rock Creek, about 12 miles from Bakersville.

Bryant said Mrs. Presnell was still living in this county. So far as he knew, she had never obtained a divorce from her missing husband, he added. There were no children.

The Missouri Dispatch said Presnell was married in Oskaloosa, Iowa, where he lived and prospered for 15 years before going to Columbia.

Guatemalan Envoy To MexicoGuarded

Communist Threats to Kill President Bring Police Aid for Embassy.

Mexico City, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Police placed a guard today over the Guatemalan Embassy after Ambassador Manuel Arroyo had protested that Communist signs, threatening the life of the president of Guatemala, had been pasted on the embassy walls.

The signs protested against death sentences imposed on eleven Communists in Guatemala. The police guards will remain at the embassy until the sentences have been carried out.

Ambassador Arroyo said he understood the Communists, held in connection with alleged seditious activities, would be executed within a day or two.

The executive committee of the Juvenile Communist Federation of Mexico addressed a protest to the Guatemalan consulate general in which it was declared that "this murderous attack by the Guatemalan government was instigated by Yankee and British imperialism."

Big Navy Urged on Plea Arms Parley Is Failure

(Associated Press.)

A Republican plea for a bigger Navy because of the "failure" of the Geneva conference and the "unholy slaughter in Asia" ran counter yesterday to an unchanged but qualified opposition of House Democratic leaders.

Representative Britten, of Illinois, ranking Republican on the naval affairs committee, made the statement about the arms limitation conference. He said it "will not even make a good looking bubble." He suggested that "Secretary Stimson recall to the United States just as quickly as possible the American delegates and their large retinue of expert junketeers."

His statement followed that by Chairman Vinson of the naval committee, who said he would ask Congress this session to vote on his bill to authorize $616,250,000 worth of new ships to be built in ten years. The Georgia Democrat also predicted the Geneva conference would fail.

Democratic leaders, however, gave no indication that they had changed their minds. Majority Leader Rainey reiterated his "hope" that "it will not be necessary" to pass the Vinson bill.

U. S. FORCES INVADE ISLE IN MOCK WAR

Honolulu, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Landing forces of the attacking "blue" fleet, gained a foothold in Oahu Island at dawn today in the face of a vicious assault from the air by planes of the "black" force defending the Hawaiian Islands in the annual Army-Navy maneuvers.

The Thirty-fifth Infantry reached shore in small boats and occupied an area several miles square as the attackers massed their units off Kaena Point.

While fighting planes shot past one another in aerial battle, blue battleships lay eight miles off shore, blinking their lights to indicate shell fire to cover landing of troops.

The Thirty-fifth Infantry debarked from the transport St. Mihiel. Two other transports lay three miles out, surrounded by destroyers to protect them from black submarines and airplanes.

Before the day broke, navy air fighters began laying down smoke screens. These blanketed an area already hung with heavy fog, making observation difficult for army-navy defending forces which had repulsed the blue attacks for a week.

The first small boat to touch shore carried a collapsible radio set. Gobs leaped to the sands and 20 minutes later contacted ships at sea, reporting their successful landing.

While the blue men came through the surf in small boats, Army attack planes repeatedly attacked them. Their warfare was realistic, for the wheels of the planes were only a few feet above the soldiers on the ground, who dropped flat on their faces in fear of being struck.

Before dawn Army pursuit planes attacked the air craft carrier Lexington. Flying 50 miles, seaplanes dropped 10,000 feet out of the skies and attacked with machine guns and bombs. There were 60 planes on the carrier's deck. No blue planes were in the air to resist the attack made in darkness.

OWEN D. YOUNG.

SHADES of William Jennings Bryan! What, do you suppose, the Great Commoner in his heyday might say if not once but repeatedly leaders of the Democratic party proposed to name a millionaire New York business man whose specialty is organizing great business organizations as the presidential candidate of the party?

Perhaps Mr. Bryan would say that, but many influential Democrats are ready to boast to the Nation of the accomplishments of Owen D. Young and believe the voters will see in his record of private and public achievements a forecast of a brilliant administration as Chief Executive of the Republic.

Mr. Young privately might believe that he would make as good President as his admirers say, but publicly he has deprecated such talk and consistently has refused to be a candidate. A few months ago, when he was mentioned as one of the outstanding Democrats of presidential size, Mr. Young put what still appears to be an effective damper on his boom.

But the last wasn't the first time his name had been advanced. He was suggested as an acceptable compromise candidate in the Kilkenny cats convention in 1924. Gov. Al Smith wanted him to run for Governor of New York when the incomparable Al was making his bid for the Presidency in 1928. But Mr. Young said he couldn't give up all his manifold business interests.

Perhaps it is interesting, that though he is Mr. Young to statesmen and world-important figures round the globe, he is Owen to the people of the little village of Van Hornesville, N. Y.

His people settled there and began farming in 1750. Though her son had become a world figure and lived on Park avenue, in New York City, Mrs. Young resided in the family home in the village until her death a few years ago. And there Owen came to visit her frequently, almost certainly on her birthday, dropping the cares of the outside world, happy among his family and the people he knew when he was a boy, being greeted as Owen and returning the greeting in kind.

Mr. Young is a lawyer. He began practice in Boston. Charles A. Coffin, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric Co., marked him and took him to New York as general counsel of that company. He succeeded Mr. Coffin as chairman of the board. He has been in charge of the policy of the company and is credited with developing a system of employer-employe relationship considered by many especially fine. He organized the Radio Corporation of America when the Navy Department feared that foreign countries would dominate the radio field to the detriment of this Nation. He played a mighty part in reparations and international debt settlements and was the author of the so-called Young plan.

A mere listing of his honorary degrees, his foreign decorations, the organization of which he is a director or other officer, would take 10 minutes to read. Yet he has none of the appearance of a big business man as depicted by the cartoonist and often seen in life. J. B. McD.

Dean Riley Warmly Praises Post's Washington Contest

Head of Law College Declares Project Aid to Good Citizenship; Essays Being Submitted in Large Numbers; Many Request Booklets.

Mrs. Grace Hays Riley, dean of the Washington College of Law, and a worker in many educational projects of the District of Columbia, was enthusiastic in her praise last night of The Post George Washington Essay contest.

"Everyone who has heard of this project of The Washington Post," declared Mrs. Riley, "can not but feel that it will be of great civic and educational value to the boys and girls of Washington and nearby territory of Virginia and Maryland.

"Anything that will make our young people read and study worth-while things or learn of the accomplishments and life and service to the Nation of such men as George Washington will contribute to their own value as good citizens."

Mrs. Riley has been a consistent advocate of the study of history by young people in order to give them a broader conception of modern life through acquaintance with the background on which this Nation was built.

She continued yesterday: "A study of the life of Washington will awaken ambition in the minds of boys and girls today. It will make them see that success in life lies along the pathway of doing right and having a sense of responsbility toward others. Washington was a law-abiding man. No one realizes better than the lawyers of this country that obedience to the laws is one of the essentials in the progress of a nation.

"I will watch with keen interest for the prize-winning essays," concluded Mrs. Riley. "I know that they will be worth the reading and will make all of us proud of the boys and girls winning the prizes."

Some idea of the way the schools are entering into the contest is shown by the fact that groups of essays are being turned in at certain schools, with promise of more to come.

Contestants are requested to turn in their essays as soon as completed now, in order to facilitate the sorting of the entries for the judges.

The contest will close at midnight on March 14 and then the judges will begin their task of discovering the 108 lucky winners.

Applications for the booklets received yesterday were from Henry Franklin Rogers, Hilton Village, Va.; Hazel B. Jones, Falls Church, Va.; Mary Monica Rose, Bladensburg, Md.; Josephine Deakin, Riverdale, Md.; Louise Day, 925 Farragut square; Eileen Whittington, 1025 Cleveland avenue, Warsaw, Wis., and Ellen Beatty, Savage, Md.

Among the essays received yesterday were those from Ruth Mellin (age 14), 65 Rhode Island avenue; Ted Hayes (age 15), 3518 S street northwest; Jane Bayer (age 14), 22 Bryant street northeast; Harry Montgomery (age 14), 45 Q street northeast; Gertrude Louise Raley (age 10), 145 Adams street northwest; Richard White (age 14), 1814 North Capitol street; John McDonnell (age 13), 1941 Lincoln road northeast; Raymond Shephard, Todd place northwest; Francis D. Finch, 20 Bryant street northwest; Nora O'Connor, 2303 First street northwest; Elizabeth Whelan (age 14), 1826 Lincoln road northeast; Paul Herring (age 14), 157 Rhode Island avenue northeast; Evelyn Hall (age 13), 2 Q street northeast; William Espey (age 13), 19 S street northwest; William Quigley, 2603 Fourth street northeast; George Hayes, jr., 24 V street northwest; John Noel, 25 Bryan street northwest; Lavinia May Pohle (age 9), 51 T street northeast; Margaret McAllister (age 9), 16 Seaton place northeast; Anna Catherine Moore (age 10), 212 Q street northwest; Patricia Bauer (age 9), 221 Cornwell terrace northeast; Katheryn Ann Stello, 2022 First street northwest, and Margaret Mary Corbey (age 9), 14 S street northeast.

Reopening of Columbia Fraternity Is Assured

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Drawn shades and locked doors tonight greeted graduate members of Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity, who returned for Columbia University's alumni day activities. Before they finished their celebrating, however, they had assurance the "Deke" house would be reopened.

Within a few hours after he confirmed reports that student members of the fraternity had been forbidden a week ago to continue to live in the house, Dean Herbert E. Hawkes announced "certain matters" had been worked out satisfactorily. He would not say definitely when the "Deke" house would be reopened.

104 INDICTED IN PLOT HELD LED BY CAPONE

Federal Grand Jury at New Orleans Charges Canadian Rumrunning.

New Orleans, La., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—An international rum ring which Federal prohibition agents say bore signs of Al Capone's guiding hand was revealed here today in 104 indictments made by the grand jury in United States district court.

The indictments, charging conspiracy to violate the tariff act and violation of the prohibition law, were based on evidence gathered by agents after months of work.

The agents—an army of them was engaged in the investigation—claim they have proof that Capone's Chicago gang organized a gigantic syndicate two years ago for the purpose of bringing Canadian liquor into the United States through the New Orleans area. It began operations after Canadian authorities banned the shipping of liquor across the international boundary line.

Thousands of gallons of liquor, the agent said, have been smuggled through the gulf coast marshes in the last two years. Under the plan, they said, Canadian distilleries shipped the liquor to Belize, British Honduras. There it was picked up by "mother ships" of the syndicate and reshipped to the gulf coast. Small craft would meet the ships beyond the 12-mile limit and bring the liquor either into Mississippi streams or into Louisiana bayous. Then the cargoes were distributed to interior cities of the United States by trucks or box cars.

Directors of the syndicate's operations made headquarters in New Orleans and worked two gangs of boatmen, loaders, truckers and runners, one in Louisiana and one in Mississippi. The syndicate owned its own boats and contacted the ships through outlaw radio stations, one of which was seized on the outskirts of New Orleans last spring.

At times, the agents said, the liquor was shipped in box cars labeled "lumber." Some of these were seized by authorities in Mississippi, Illinois and Indiana.

Occasional emergency shipments would be made in airplanes. A plane carrying liquor that was forced down in Marion County, Miss., last year was operated by the ring. Most of the liquor was shipped into the Middle West by truck, although some of it reached New York City.

Among the principals named in the indictments were four distilleries in Vancouver, British Columbia. They are the Burrard Stock & Bond Co., the National Supply Co., the Consolidated Exporters Corporation, Ltd., and the United Distilleries, Ltd.

Ninety-seven men, residents of Canada, British Honduras, Chicago, Spokane, New York, New Orleans and towns in Mississippi and Louisiana, were others indicted.

In the Chicago group, four of them were alleged by the agents to be members of the Capone gang. They are Isidore Blumenfeldt, alias Harry Blum; Albeft Halmowitz, alias Al Haimsi; Nathan Goldberg, alias Nat, and Cecil C. Squires.

Mounties Baffled By Trapper's Trail

Doubt That Slayer Is Insane as He Continues to Avoid Capture.

Aklavik, Northwest Territory, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The end of a blind Arctic trail over the snow-carpeted foothills neared tonight for Albert Johnson as pursuing mounted police began to doubt the northland's belief the trapper is insane.

So baffling was the trail the Rat River hermit had laid in the bleak barrens that his pursuers, sworn to capture or kill the man who murdered one of their fellows, conceded Johnson to be a smart trapper and bushman.

"If he is demented, we all ought to be," said a member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police patrol.

The terrific pace Johnson has set in his flight seems to be telling on him. His trail, viewed from the air by Capt. W. R. (Wop) May, showed him somewhat "groggy."

tices act, and with violating that act. At the time of the attack on the constitutionality of the indictment, which was raised in a demurrer, Attorneys Robert H. McNeill and Levi David argued, for the bishop, that the paper was faulty in that there was no charge in any of the ten counts that either of the two named had any knowledge of the contributions being received.

Justice Proctor said that the act did not intend to hold one criminally responsible for failure to report a political contribution "of which he had no knowledge."

Incidentally, many of the counts in the indictment are now outlawed by the statute of limitations. There is one count relating to an occurrence in March, and that, it was said, would be outlawed next month. Thus, if the higher courts sustain the ruling, there can be no subsequent indictment against Bishop Cannon or Miss Burroughs.

"As there is a possibility of an appeal from the decision of the court which sustained our demurrer to the indictment on every count, I have nothing to say concerning the action of the court or the present status of the case.

"It is my intention, however, to prepare and to publish a statement probably in pamphlet form at as early a date as possible. This statement will present important facts, giving such details as may be necessary to explain satisfactorily to every fair-minded person the many misleading statements which have been made before committees and which have appeared in the press."

Woman Leaps 17 Floors to Death.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Despondent over ill health, Mrs. I. L. Shulhafer, 45, today leaped to her death from the seventeenth floor of the Neyburn Building, in the heart of the downtown section. Members of her family said she had been brooding for several weeks over her health.

JOHNSON DEMANDS DIRECT U. S. RELIEF

(Associated Press.)

The power of Hiram Johnson's eloquence yesterday was added to the demand in the Senate for direct Federal relief to the unemployed. His voice booming through the crowded chamber, the California Republican called attention to President Hoover's own appeal twelve years ago for relief for European children.

"For the love of God," he shouted, "let us be for once in this administration American-minded and look after Americans."

His appeal concluded two weeks of debate on the La Follette-Costigan bill. Such a powerful demand for Federal aid for the jobless has been generated that even some Republicans are predicting passage by the Senate of a compromise measure.

An attempt by leaders to get an agreement for a vote Monday was blocked, but they were confident a decision would be obtained then, anyway. It was deferred yesterday by the absence of a large number of senators for the week-end.

Votes for Defeat Claimed.

Administration leaders claimed enough votes to defeat the La Follette-Costigan bill to divide $75,000,000 between road construction and relief grants to the States.

A half dozen substitutes are hanging fire, however, to muddle the situation. The Democratic plan to appropriate $750,000,000, but loan instead of give half of this to the States has the most support.

Johnson said President Hoover, in recommending appropriation of funds for European children, recognized that opposition would be stirred.

He quoted Mr. Hoover as saying, "I refuse to apply those arguments to children."

"He was right then," the senator said. "I ask that those arguments not be applied to children now.

"He was speaking of children beyond the sea. Why are they entitled to treatment from the United States Government which is denied to children in this country?"

Complains of "Relief at Top."

Women and children, he said, are suffering from "a state of affairs such as has been described down the Avenue as rivaling a state of war."

"You have legislated in behalf of banks and railroads," he asserted. "Now some of us demand that you legislate in behalf of babies and unprotected women, too."

The Californian ridiculed the statement Thursday by Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, that "everything is sound in America except that we are in a stew of panic that can not last."

"If that is true then repeal your Recontruction Corporation act," he said. "There never was such an act passed in peace time. Repeal it if there is no panic."

In the House, Representative Polk (Democrat), Ohio, demanded that it override its agriculture committee and bring to a vote a bill that would let the Red Cross distribute Farm Board wheat to the needy.

He said that "hunger stalks through the land" and this is time for "action, not argument." Polk added he hoped 145 members would sign a petition to discharge the committee and bring the bill before the House.

Judge Ordered Seized In Case of Daughter

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Two warrants were issued here tonight for Special Superior Court Judge John B. Harwood, of Bryson City, in connection with the alleged alterations of the records of his daughter, Miss Lola Harwood, former State revenue department clerk, charged with a $4,828 shortage in her accounts.

The warrants charged the jurist with being an accessory after the fact in the embezzlement against Miss Harwood by "the manufacture or attempted manufacture of evidence tending to prove her innocent," and with the mutilation, alteration and the destruction of records in the commissioner of revenue's office relative to the charges against the daughter.

FRENCH CHAMBER'S VOTE AIDS SUFFRAGE

Women Welcome Passage of Sweeping Electoral Reform Bill.

Paris, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The 30-year battle for woman suffrage in France advanced a step today when a majority in the Chamber of Deputies adopted the sweeping electoral reform bill which enfranchises women and gives them the right to serve in the Chamber on the same basis as men.

But the measure must still come before the Senate which in past years has always defeated similar efforts. This time the suffrage leaders plan to put up a strong fight in the upper house.

The woman suffrage section of the bill was tacked on as a last-minute amendment to the hotly-contested measure which would put an end to the second ballot in elections to the chamber, used now when the leading candidate on the first ballot fails to get a clear majority. Under the new measure a plurality would elect.

"We're extremely happy over today's vote," said Marie Verone, one of the leading women lawyers of Paris. "It is significant because the Senate, which has refused since 1926 to discuss the question of enfranchising women, who will have a chance."

So angry were the socialists and the radical-socialists at the suppression of the second ballot that 200 of them walked out of the Chamber, following Edouard Herriot, the former premier.

One of them said later that they made that dramatic move so that the country would know they had no part in the adoption of the bill. Their action was not induced by the woman suffrage provision, he said, and the member will return on Monday.

The woman suffrage movement began in France about 1900, and Susan B. Anthony was a leader of the campaign. It made slow progress until recent years when the women became better organized.

In 1919 the Chamber passed its first measure giving women the vote, but it was defeated in the Senate. Since then the Chamber has passed the bill several times, and each time the Senate has killed it.

Tennessee Cashier Shot When Bandits Rob Bank

Yorkville, Tenn., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Bandits shot Boyce Forrester, the cashier, in the arm and shoulder, wounding him seriously, and robbed the Bank of Yorkville of $2,500 today.

They fled in an automobile toward Memphis.

Babes Soon May Advise Elders If Trend Lasts

By JOHN J. DALY

DOWN in old Kentucky, the editor of the student publication at Centre College had his shears and pastepot taken away from him because of an editorial he wrote under the caption, "The Stupidity of Marriage."

Immediately, proponents of the Constitution of the United States, and that clause particularly relating to the freedom of the press, will rise in their wrath and condemn the academic autocrats. The old professors, most of them married men, probably believe they are right. They feel, in their heart of hearts, that they know a few things this young bachelor editor—he is only sixteen, Sweet Sixteen—doesn't quite yet know about matrimoney, stupid or otherwise.

* * * *

FARTHER North, in New York, the girls of old Barnard and the boys at Columbia, undergraduates all, conducted surveys which disclosed that culture and a sense of humor are the most desired virtues in husbands and wives. The girls showed an overwhelming preference for the "cultured gentleman who is also a facile conversationalist, not particularly handsome, but at home with books and thoughts." It was stipulated further that the gentleman should be moderately successful in business and have more than a fair amount of money. The Columbia men summed up the ideal attributes in a mate as culture; cleverness, sensitiveness, wit, and a sense of humor.

Ah, that sense of humor.

Both surveys, at Columbia and at Barnard, were started by editors of student publications. It shows again the trend of the times. Youth is trying to find a way out, to better the condition of life—both for itself and the oldsters. It follows that Age, if it would know the truth must consult Youth.

* * * *

WHO is it, anyway, that starts all these surveys? The old folks, having been over the field, and having done all the surveying they want to, keep mighty quiet about it. They seldom give out a report.

With the young folks it's rather different: They know so much, and have so much to tell.

College boys and girls having definitely decided the status of matrimony, the tired business man, weary of it all and in search of a fresh viewpoint, may drag himself home some night and interview his bouncing baby boy, asking:

"Son, what do you think of the business situation?"

If it is a wise child that knows his own father, the baby will roll over in his crib, stick his thumb in his mouth and yell:

"Blah! blah!"

St. Johns Adds Police To Prevent New Riots

St. Johns, Newfoundland, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—Extraordinary police precautions were taken today to guard against new unemployed rioting after yesterday's attack on the government offices in which Prime Minister Sir Richard A. Squires was slightly hurt.

A new police force is being organized under senior officers. The mounted police contingent, which was discontinued four years ago, is being reorganized. Special policemen were sworn in for emergency duty. The city was quiet.

'Malicious Damage' Suit Of Ship Line Dropped

Belfast, Ireland, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The formal claim of £2,000,000 (about $8,870,000) against the Belfast Corporation by the Furness-Withy Steamship Line for alleged malicious injuries to the liner Bermuda, by fire last year, was withdrawn today. Counsel for the owners said they were unable to obtain any evidence in proof of malice.

The Furness-Withy claim was filed November 30, 1931, after the liner had been destroyed. Shortly before a series of shipping fires had caused considerable concern in Belfast.

Vancouver Star Suspends.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Publication of the Vancouver Star, the city's only morning newspaper, was suspended today by Brig. Gen. Victor W. Colum, publisher. He said the action resulted from heavy loss of revenue and the unwillingness of unions to accept wage cuts. The Star had a circulation of about 20,000.

GAS FIRM DRIVERS GET SAFETY PRIZES

George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., yesterday awarded medals of the National Safety Council to 132 gas company truck and service car drivers for a record of safe driving during the past year.

Not one accident occurred from December 1, 1930, to December 1, 1931, due to the negligence of these drivers, the National Safety Council found. A total of 1,680,800 miles were traveled in 135 different vehicles during this time, covering a period of 315,754 working hours. Many cars and trucks were on the street 24 hours a day. Only drivers operating over 5,000 miles were considered.

During the presentation of medals yesterday at the gas company's garage building, Twenty-ninth and M streets northwest, Traffic Director Van Duzer, Capt. Lamb, of the Police Department, representing the Traffic Bureau, and members of the National Safety Council were present. Felix J. Murphy, chauffeur for Mr. Wood, was honor man among those receiving medals, having traveled 48,000 miles without an accident. Included in the list were two women, Miss Ruth Sheldon, director of the home service department, and Mrs. Bessie Chamberlain, a member of Miss Sheldon's department.

To further the teachings of safe driving, President Wood has caused to be organized the gas company safety department, under the direction of H. L. Leonard. This department is in constant touch with all drivers and requires a full report each morning when cars go out, and each evening as they return. Definite instructions in driving courtesy is a factor in the function of this department.

One of Booth's Troupe Recalls Lincoln's Death

Huron, S. Dak., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—On the anniversary of Lincoln's birth, an 81-year-old Huron woman today recalled the scene in Ford's Theater, in Washington, the night of April 14, 1865, when the President was assassinated.

She is Mrs. Nelson Armstrong, and she believes she is the only surviving member of the troupe that was playing in the theater at that time. Mrs. Armstrong did not see the actual shooting, as she was busy behind the scenes, but, attracted by the turmoil, she rushed forward to hear John Wilkes Booth cry "Sic semper tyrannis!" and see him flee from the stage, she said.

Lincoln Dominates As Model for Art

Researcher Finds Use of His Likeness Compares With Madonna's.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Dr Louis A Warren, of Fort Wayne, Ind., director of the Lincoln Historical Research Foundation, tonight said the popularity of the martyred President as a subject for masterpieces with present-day sculptors was nearly on a par with that of the Madonna with the great painters of the early Christian era.

Sixty-one bronze statues, memorials to Lincoln, are scattered over the United States and in foreign countries, Dr. Warren said in one of the addresses at the "home town" observance of the Emancipator's birthday anniversary.

Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Ambassador Puig y Casaurane of Mexico were central figures in the Lincoln commemoration. President Hoover sent a wreath, which was placed on the Civil War President's tomb here.

Pageant on Lincoln Presented by Scouts

"Following the Lincoln Trail," a pageant in 22 episodes, depicting the life of Abraham Lincoln, was presented last night by scout troops of the District of Columbia Council, Boy Scouts of America, in the auditorium of McKinley High School, Second and T streets northeast.

The pageant was written by Commodore W. E. Longfellow. It traced the life of Lincoln from his birth in the family log cabin to his famous speech at Gettysburg after becoming President of the United States. Twenty-two troops, including Sea Scouts under the leadership of Jack Dunnington, took part in the performance.

G. A. R. Post Celebrates Lincoln's Anniversary

The Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, last night held ceremonies in commemoration of the 123d birthday of Abraham Lincoln in the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets northwest.

Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, past department commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, read Lincoln's Gettysburg address. Selections were played by the United States Marine Band, following which Representative Homer H. Hall, of Illinois, and Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, of California, delivered addresses.

Lincoln Upshaw's Topic At Fifth Baptist Church

Former Representative William D. Upshaw, of Georgia, was the principal speaker last night at exercises honoring Lincoln's birthday in the Fifth Baptist Church, E street near Seventh street southwest. Mr. Upshaw was introduced by Senator Hatfield, of West Virginia.

The ceremonies were held under the auspices of the Berean Class, headed by Dr. John E. Briggs, pastor of the church. Mr. Upshaw traced many incidents in the life of Abraham Lincoln.

Maharanee of Indore Off to Egypt.

Calgary, Alta., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Maharanee of Indore, passed through Calgary early today, en route to New York, whence she will sail for Egypt to join her husband.

The maharanee was formerly Nancy Miller, of Seattle, where she has been visiting relatives. She married the Maharajah of Indore four years ago.

HOOVER HOLDS DIFFICULTIES NOW LIKE THOSE OF LINCOLN

estly, or toiled more ceaselessly, or striven more honestly to lift the Nation out of the slough of despond into which it had been plunged by sheer force of conditions than Herbert Hoover and, while these efforts may not have come to full fruition in resuscitating the depleted industries of the land, yet no critic has risen to say that he would have pursued a different course or adopted a contrary policy had power to do so been committed to him."

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur told the gathering that "too many of our people have been willing to listen to rumor, fancy, libel and scandal and talk without thought."

"We are on our way to repeat the election of 1864," Secretary Wilbur said. "People then walked and talked, and began to think and think, and voted that Abraham Lincoln should stay in office, just as they will do for Herbert Hoover."

Senator Watson then went on to point out the successive steps that President Hoover has taken to strengthen the economic fabric of the Nation. That his program has been a sound one, he said, is evidenced by the fact that Democrats as well as Republicans have supported it.

Senator Henry D. Hatfield, of West Virginia, attributed the present economic ills of the country to the World War. That conflict, he said, was "a bad investment if not an unnecessary one for our country."

Mrs. Gann Sees Day Fitting.

Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis, said that it was entirely fitting that the Republican campaign for the reelection of President Hoover should begin on the natal day of the man who first led the party to victory.

In the course of her recent trip through the West, Mrs. Gann said, she had many Democratic women tell her that they were determined to vote for Mr. Hoover. Continuing, she said:

"The women of America have always had complete faith in Herbert Hoover. They manifested that faith during the war when they followed implicitly the suggestions and appeals which he made as food administrator. They manifested that faith again when they voted for him, almost regardless of party, in the last presidential campaign. It is my deliberate judgment, founded on what I heard and saw during this recent trip, in the course of which I came into direct personal contact with several thousand women, that their faith in our great President has in no wise diminished and that we may count upon them as a most important, perhaps a determining factor, in the campaign upon which we are now entering and which will, I confidently believe, end in a sweeping victory for the Republican party."

Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, vice chairman of the Republican national committee, in a speech over the National Broadcasting System, denounced the attacks that have been made on President Hoover.

Democratic Aid Lauded.

"If he were a private citizen," she said, "he would have answered the libelous assaults that have been made upon him. But he is the President of the United States, and so has made no answer. He has gone calmly on with his duty * * *"

Mrs. Hert praised the cooperation of the Democrats in Congress in supporting the President's recommendations.

"The only reason for this," she said, "is that these measures were so sound and statesmanlike that they commanded the support even of the President's political opponents, who, in passing upon them, admitted that they had nothing better to offer."

At Chicago, Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde told a Lincoln Day banquet that on three occasions in the last two years the statesmanship of President Hoover has started the Nation's business upward. He cited, according to the Associated Press, the President's action in obtaining the cooperation of labor and industry to carry on under economic stress, the moratorium on international debt payments, and the creation of the National Credit Corporation.

"And now again," the Secretary said, "the President has brought forth the plan for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the recapitalization of Federal Land Banks and other measures to help farmers, small home owners and larger businesses.

"The way in which the Nation greeted that program is shown by the fact that grains rose nearly 2 cents a bushel, cotton increased nearly $1 a bale, and $3,000,000,000 was added to values in securities."

Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy, in an address at Portland, Me., saw an analogy in the problems encompassing President Hoover to those which harassed Lincoln during his first presidential term.

He presented the Chief Executive as meeting the tests of peace as Lincoln met the tests of war, and envisioned in him the same ideals and devotion to duty displayed by the martyred President in bringing unity to the country, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

"Depression Leads Democrats."

Ernest Lee Jahncke, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, told the Union League Club in Philadelphia, that "the depression is the real leader of Democracy today." They are counting on that, he said, to carry them to victory.

Meantime, he said, President Hoover, ignoring charges that he lacks the qualities of leadership, is gradually steering the country to better times.

"Abraham Lincoln faced one great crisis in our Nation's history. Herbert Hoover has faced another.

"The time is coming when we as a people shall give thanks that the man in the White House during this troubled era was Herbert Hoover."

Representative James H. MacLafferty, of California, at a Lincoln Day dinner in Charleston, W. Va., denounced the Democratic campaign to "smear" President Hoover.

If the President were a private citizen today, MacLafferty said, the people would be clamoring for him to lead the country out of the present emergency.

Turning of Tide Forecast.

Charles H. Small, special assistant to Attorney General Mitchell, told a dinner gathering at Cumberland, Md., that President Hoover was using the safe principles and sound policies of Abraham Lincoln to lead the Nation to better times.

Senator Dickinson, of Iowa, in a speech at Evansville, Ind., commented on the predictions that are now being made to the effect that Herbert Hoover can not be reelected.

The same thing was said about Lincoln when he was nominated for a second term in 1864, Dickinson said. The tide turned in favor of Lincoln two months before the election, he said, right after a number of victories for the Union Army.

"Hoover's chances," he added, "will be enhanced by the victories of an economic order."

Former United States Senator Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, addressing the Association of Young Republicans of Missouri at St. Louis, Mo., said President Hoover is now emerging from a storm of "abuse and calumny" to a position as a world leader, the Associated Press reported. He asserted that the President is the only man in official life in any country who is meeting a world crisis with straight thinking.

"When it became apparent the country was to share in a world-wide depression, the Democratic national committee set up its mud batteries at Washington, hired a pair of clever gunners, drew on Raskob for funds and began a well-planned campaign to make sensational news out of our economic distress," he said.

The rally at the Willard last night marked the first anniversary of the National Capital Republican Club, and Mr. Colladay, Thomas P. Littlepage and other local G. O. P. leaders were given high praise for the progress the organization has made.

Nearly 500 persons were in attendance last night, among them three men who have served as secretaries to Presidents—George Christian, who was secretary to President Harding; Edward (Ted) Clark, secretary to President Coolidge, and Theodore Joslin, one of President Hoover's secretaries. Mr. Colladay introduced the trio to the gathering.

Walkout at Montevideo Stops Papers and Taxis

Montevideo, Uruguay, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Despite the supposed general strike launched last midnight, conservative labor leaders estimated that 80 per cent of the people in Montevideo who have jobs were at work today. Newspapers did not publish and taxicabs did not operate.

About half the omnibus workers returned to their jobs when they found out that laborers throughout the country were not obeying the strike call unanimously.

SENATE BODY ARGUES LIMITING U. S. JOBS

Agricultural Group Takes Up House Promotions Ban; Borah Bills Wait.

While Senator Porter H. Dale's civil service committee delayed action on the Borah pay-cut measures, the Senate agricultural appropriations subcommittee yesterday debated whether to adopt house provisions against pay increases and promotions in the Federal service.

N. P. Alifas, president of the District local of the International Association of Machinists, made an earnest plea before the committee for elimination of the two controversial sections from the Senate bill.

"The Government," he said, "should lead the way in preventing wage reductions, by making increases permissible, and helping absorb its proportional share of the 8,300,000 unemployed."

Senator William E. Borah, whose bills to cut Federal salaries over $5,000 are still in the Senate civil service committee, said he will not insist on immediate action so long as he has assurances the measures will receive fair consideration.

He will ask that the measures be reported out on the Senate floor, either favorably or unfavorably, he said, however. He was not too optimistic concerning their future.

Mr. Alifas, in opposing incorporation of the two restrictive sections in the agricultural appropriations bill, said "prosperity can not be restored and purchasing power can not be provided by tightening up on the purse strings of the Federal Government."

Grant Eulogizes Lincoln by Radio

Points Out Similarity of War President's Views to Washington's.

Describing Abraham Lincoln as the savior of the Union which was largely brought into being by George Washington, Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, yesterday reviewed the similarity of many of the two great Presidents' principles in a Lincoln's Birthday address broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting system.

Noting that the Bicentennial celebration of Washington's birth is near, Col. Grant said of the Civil War President: "Without his wise and patient leadership through that period the great work of Washington would have been destroyed."

Lincoln's maintenance of the view of Washington that the whole strength of the Nation lay in the union of the States was cited by the speaker. In the first inaugural address of the Civil War executive, Col. Grant pointed out how Lincoln "as the successor of Washington and the preserver of the Union" drew from the First President's views on the subject of preserving the solidarity of the United States.

Anniversary of Lincoln Observed by Birthplace

Hodgenville, Ky., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—With three suits of clothing and $112 in cash, Thomas Lincoln, father of the Civil War President, was better equipped on his wedding day than are most bridegrooms of today, Judge O. M. Mather said tonight at the annual Lincoln Day celebration here, Abraham Lincoln's birthplace.

Speaking on "Thomas Lincoln's Wedding Suit," Judge Mather told a crowd of Hodgenville residents and visitors who gathered in the Lincoln Memorial Library, that the great emancipator's father was "quite a dandy," rather than the "shitless and impoverished" person he so often has been pictured.

Small Banks to Benefit By Emergency Measure

(Associated Press.)

The emergency banking measure reported to the Senate yesterday with partisan support has three provisions.

The first allows for permanent revision of the law to permit Federal Reserve banks to lend to member banks upon application of five banks when they have exhausted their rediscountable paper which is now eligible.

The second provision allows small individual banks to obtain loans for one year after they have exhausted their eligible paper upon a promissory note secured by sound security.

The third provision makes possible for one year the use of direct Government obligations as collateral for Federal Reserve note issues by member banks, thus freeing about one billion dollars in "free gold" for whatever use may be necessary.

DRIVE ON HOARDING GAINS MOMENTUM

Five More State Chairmen Appointed; Virginian Declines Place.

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Further progress toward completing the Nation-wide organization to conduct President Hoover's antihoarding campaign was made today at a conference attended by Col. Frank Knox, publisher and national chairman, and directors.

Five more State chairmen were appointed and one's resignation was received. Those named today are Arthur Henius, of Providence, R. I.; Charles H. J. Mitchell, of Huron, S. Dak.; Allison Owen, of New Orleans; William T. Cobb, of Rockland, Me., and Huntley N. Spaulding, of Rochester, N. H.

Junius P. Fishburn, of Roanoke, Va., appointed yesterday, sent word that he would be unable to serve.

Five more district chairmen also were named. They are Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago & North Western Railroad; Philip D. Armour 3d, packer; Fred Gardner, broker; D. F. Kelly, merchant, and B. J. Mullaney, vice president of the People's Gas Light & Coke Co. All district chairmen are Chicagoans. They will supervise the antihoarding drive in Federal Reserve districts, but are concentrated in Chicago to be close to national headquarters.

Those who attended today's conference included Col. Knox, James Keeley, vice chairman, and John N. Van der Vrees, Chicago manager of the United States Chamber of Commerce. Keeley said that the local antihoarding campaigns would be waged as much as possible around local chambers of commerce.

Idaho Leaders Adopt "Elect Hoover" Slogan

Boise, Idaho, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—An "Elect Hoover" slogan was indorsed by members of the Republican State central committee tonight at a meeting called to map out campaign plans. John Baird, Meridian publisher, urged that Republicans forget about the possibilities of defeat for Hoover and think only of success for him.

The committee adopted a resolution urging tax reduction, "by Federal, State and municipal governments."

CREDIT BODY NAMED FOR FIFTH DISTRICT

Reconstruction Finance Plan Gets Under Way; First Loan Plea Made.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 12 (A.P.):—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the Fifth Federal Reserve District began active functioning today by forwarding the first loan application to the central offices in Washington and appointing the advisory loan committee for the district.

Personnel of the advisory committee was announced as follows: John M. Miller, president, First & Merchants National Bank, of Richmond; Julian H. Hill, president, State-Planters Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond; Oliver J. Sands, president, American Bank & Trust Co., of Richmond; N. W. Phelps, vice president, First National Exchange Bank, of Roanoke; Charles E. Rieman, president, Western National Bank, of Baltimore, Md.; A. H. S. Post, president, Mercantile Trust Co., of Baltimore; Robert V. Fleming, president, Riggs National Bank, of Washington; J. L. Dickinson, president, Kanawha Valley Bank, of Charleston, W. Va.; George M. Moore, vice president, Union National Bank, of Clarksburg, W. Va.; Robert M. Hanes, president, Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., of Winston-Salem, N. C.; Word H. Wood, president, American Trust Co., of Charlotte, N. C.; W. S. Ryland, president, North Carolina Bank & Trust Co., of Queensboro, N. C.; B. M. Edwards, vice president, South Carolina National Bank, of Columbia, S. C.; W. J. Roddy, sr., president, Central Union Bank, of South Carolina, Rock Hill, S. C., and A. L. M. Wiggins, of Hartsville, S. C.

Credit Expansion Project Critcized

Finance Companies Hold Bill Does Not Go Far Enough.

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—From the financing industry today came the contention that the new emergency bill for credit expansion, now before Congress, does not take fullest advantage of opportunities to increase the Nation's consumer credit.

"The bill to broaden eligibility of paper discountable by Federal Reserve Banks will be helpful," said C. C. Hanch, general manager of the National Association of Finance Companies, "but its benefits would be increased many fold by providing directly for use of the soundest class of paper in the portfolios of banks—notes of finance companies."

Notwithstanding adverse credit conditions in 1930 and 1931, he pointed out, finance companies in that time advanced $5,000,000,000 in the purchase of installment paper, which means, he said, that they substantially financed the sale of nearly $7,000,000,000 worth of merchandise.

Germany's Beer Strike Spreads in Price War

Berlin, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The beer strike called in protest against a price-cutting decree by Carl Goerdeler, the Nation's price czar, spread considerably today. In Hamburg, the first city to go on strike, it was reported that 3,000 of the 4,000 saloons were refusing to sell beer. Similar steps were taken by saloons at Kiel.

An organization of proprietors at Munich decided tonight to advise individual members to participate in the strike. The movement remained of minor importance, but if it should spread throughout the Reich, the government would lose considerable revenue as beer is taxed heavily from hops to consumer.

CREDIT EXPANSION MEASURE MOVES NEARER ENACTMENT

eligible, the Senate banking committee decided to limit this one-year privilege to banks with a capitalization of $500,000 or less.

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, sponsor of the legislation, explained this was done to make the measure the benefactor of the smaller institutions.

The bill contemplates also permanent revision of the law to permit member banks to obtain the aid of the Federal Reserve System after they have exhausted all eligible paper for rediscount. To obtain assistance five banks must sign a promissory note secured by the now ineligible but "sound" securities.

Under the one-year temporary provision, individual banks are permitted to resort to this procedure. Senator Glass insisted there is $8,500,000,000 of eligible paper now in the hands of the banks which they have not rediscounted, but agreed to press the bill.

Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, blamed the absence of eligible paper and the hoarding of currency for the present "unusual situation."

The bill provides that direct obligations of the Government may hereafter be put up as collateral for new note issues by Federal Reserve banks, thus putting into use the $750,000,000 gold not now needed as reserve for the outstanding currency.

Will Give Banks Confidence.

"It will give banks," he said, "generally greater confidence. It will enable them to make available more easily their resources."

Mr. Mills urged that the legislation be made permanent in its entirety. He blamed the deflation movement from last September onward to "the psychology of fear, more than anything else."

Supplementing the $2,000,000,000 Reconstruction Corporation, Mills said the new legislation would "restore confidence and permit the credit machinery of the country to resume its normal flow."

Representative McFadden (Republican), Pennsylvania, questioned Mr. Mills closely about the possibility of gold withdrawals by foreign countries.

"I am perfectly confident," the Secretary replied, "that we have sufficient gold to meet all demands that can be made. The chief benefit of this legislation is to make available the full resources of the Federal Reserve System to meet these demands."

In announcing the action of the House committee, Chairman Steagall said approval was by unanimous vote, although one member reserved the right to oppose the bill after further consideration. Steagall said the committee instructed him to take every step to expedite enactment.

He reported the group rejected an administration recommendation that the new revision of the reserve system, designed to release $750,000,000 in gold, be extended beyond one year.

Gov. Meyer, of the Reserve Board, had recommended giving the board authority to extend its provisions a second year while Undersecretary Mills had advocated a permanent measure.

"Our discussion was limited to conditions in this country and has not precipitated any discussion of foreign debts, moratoriums, or foreign entanglements, financial or otherwise," Steagall said.

"There is no threat or thought of danger to the gold standard. The currency issue privileges of the Federal Reserve system are not being enlarged. This bill simply carries out existing law for a 40 per cent gold reserve behind Federal Reserve notes."

The bill as reported will leave in the hands of a majority of the Reserve Board the decision on what assets shall be acceptable to obtain rediscount accommodations.

gaged in a fight upon a hundred fronts just as positive, just as definite and requiring just as greatly the moral courage, the organized action, the unity of strength and the sense of devotion in every community as in war.

I am confident of the resources, the power and the courage of our people to triumph over any national difficulty. They are rallying to their responsibilities. They are thus doing more than serving their immediate needs. They are buttressing the very foundations of self-government. They are defending the very principles of liberty and freedom. They are showing the patience and the steadfastness of Abraham Lincoln.

Ours is a government of political parties. Lincoln was the leader of a party whose traditions and tenets are precious to all those who adhere to it. But we do not celebrate the birth of Lincoln as a political event. Instead we celebrate his birthday as the most significant for any American after Washington. In its celebration, we find renewed courage and strength. Our obligation to Lincoln is to be resolute in our determination to maintain the principles which Washington forged from the fires of revolution and which Lincoln strengthened in the fires of civil strife.

Lincoln deservedly shares with Washington the distinction of a nationally commemorated anniversary. Today, as throughout recent decades, his vision sets the guide-posts of American conscience and American ideals. This humble man of the wilderness, who labored over grubhoe and ax in his youth, never saw a city until he was 20 years old, never opened a grammar until after he had attained his majority. Yet he became one of the few masters of the English language. There are no nobler utterances, no greater inspirations to people than his many appealing statements culminating with his Gettysburg speech. A race is fortunate that can contribute a voice calling to order and to conscience in the world which shall be heard above the froth and immaterial substance of everyday life. It comes to few men to become that voice to their generation. Still fewer are they whose voices resound through the the life of a people.

Abraham Lincoln more than any other man gave expression to the heart and the character and the faith of our race. Washington was indeed the father of our country. Lincoln was its greatest son.

DEBUCHI TRANSFER IS DENIED BY TOKYO

Tokyo, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Japanese Ambassador Katsuji Debuchi will not be replaced or supplemented at Washington by a special envoy to marshal support for Japan's military activities in China.

The foreign office so stated today in discrediting reports that distinguished statesmen would be sent to the United States, Great Britain and France to enlist sympathy and understanding for the Japanese problem.

Ambassador Debuchi planned to return home last fall for a holiday, it was said, but decided to remain because of the conflict in Manchuria. No further action has been taken and it was assumed he would stay at his post until the Sino-Japanese question is finally settled.

Viscount Kentaro Kaneka, chairman of the privy council committee, in charge of appropriations for the two campaigns, had been suggested as the head of a conciliatory mission to America, it was admitted, but most officials opposed the idea for fear it would be considered a reflection on the regular envoy. He is a former president of the America-Japan Society and took part in the Russo-Japanese peace conference in 1903.

Baron Gonsuke Hayashi, grand master of the ceremonies of the imperial court, had been mentioned by the press as the special envoy to Great Britain and Viscount Kikuiro, one-time ambassador to Washington and Paris, as the delegate to France.

Tennessee G. O. P. Commends Hoover

Pledges to Work for His Renomination; Rule Is Indorsed.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 12 (A.P.).—The Tennessee Republican State executive committee today indorsed the administration of President Hoover and pledged itself to work for his renomination and reelection.

"We indorse the wise, unselfish and patriotic administration of Hon. Herbert Hoover and Charles E. Curtis and hereby pledge the best efforts and energies of this committee, collectively and individually, to bring about their renomination and reelection to the exalted positions they now occupy that reflects great credit upon the far-seeing judgment of the great body of American citizens that rendered possible their nomination and election," said resolutions adopted amid applause.

The "unselfish cause" of J. Will Taylor, Republican national committeeman for Tennessee, was commended and he was indorsed "without any reservations as the leader of the Republican party in Tennessee. Taylor was in Nashville, but was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

REAL ROOSEVELT CAMPAIGN IS STARTED BY CUMMINGS

Pennsylvania, and Jacob S. Coxey, of Ohio.

As the entry list was closing last night in Illinois, France was the only contestant among the Republicans and Senator James Hamilton Lewis among the Democrats. These designations are not, however, binding on the delegates.

A complete slate of delegates for Alfred E. Smith, including the governor and both senators, was reported ready for filing in Massachusetts. The Roosevelt people have not yet decided whether to file there.

Gov. Roosevelt filed as a candidate in Georgia—one of the original Roosevelt States.

Finally, a discussion over Republican platform prospects turned up an indication that the question of prohibition would be left open until the convention met. Eastern modificationists are trying to get a promise of concessions before they come out for Hoover, but there was no confirmation of reports they had succeeded.

The sudden stiffening of the Roosevelt campaign attracted first attention among all of these developments.

Cummings is an old-timer in Democratic councils. A decade ago he was National chairman. He held most of his conferences yesterday in the office of another former chairman, Senator Hull, of Tennessee. Thus the Roosevelt boom took on an attribute heretofore largely lacking definite direction under experienced leadership.

The Connecticut veteran disclaimed any title, denying he had "taken charge" of the Roosevelt forces. He said he was going to work earnestly because the time ha come for an aggressive campaign.

He was the central figure at a luncheon given by Hull. Around the table were Senators Walsh and Wheeler, Montana; McKellar, Tennessee; Pittman, Nevada; Dill, Washington; Black, Alabama; McGill, Kansas; Bulow, South Dakota; Byrnes, South Carolina, and Bailey, North Carolina.

Afterward, no formal announcement was made, but it was evident a persistent senatorial cooperation for Roosevelt was beginning. Hull said he was confident the New Yorker couldn't be stopped. McKellar said Tennessee was overwhelmingly for Roosevelt.

"I am gratified at the pronounced sentiment from the Democratic side of the Senate in favor of the nomination of Gov. Roosevelt," said Walsh. "I believe that the unanimity of sentiment accurately reflects the views of the Democracy of the Nation.

Cummings remarked that he hadn't yet heard "a dissenting note," and Hull said he hoped to have other senators meet Cummings today.

The Hoover and Johnson refusals to go into North Dakota were attended by no sound of trumpets. Faced with a decesion before the lists close tonight, the Hoover managers quietly let it be known the President's name would not appear, and Johnson informed Senators Frazier and Nye, who had asked him to file, that he could not accept.

It was indicated that some arrangement might be made today by which a slate of uninstructed delegates, favorable to the administration, would be put on the North Dakota ballot. The details, however, are to be left to the North Dakota regulars themselves.

Johnson's decision did not greatly surprise his friends. For months he has been teetering on the brink of a decision. He would like to run if he saw a chance of nomination, but he has no organization and no campaign fund,—a serious handicap in these days of State primaries.

He has not definitely said "no," however, he made a Senate speech yesterday full of jabs at the administration, and he will make others, meantime keeping the regulars guessing as to his real intentions.

Meanwhile Representative McFadden, of Pennsylvania, said he had no objection to his name being entered in the North Dakota Republican presidential primary.

The Pennsylvanian, who had just returned from his State, said he had been urged to run for the Senate as a dry against Senator Davis who is seeking reelection on a platform calling for modification of the Volstead act and a substitute for the eighteenth amendment.

He said he had not decided whether to run for the Senate or reelection to the House of Representatives. Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the Pennsylvania governor, has announced she is a candidate for his House seat.

Cummings' Activity Likely To Cause Split in State

New Haven, Conn., Feb 12 (A.P.).—The alignment of Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, former national Democratic chairman, with the campaign of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidential nomination today forecast a factional clash in the party in Connecticut.

Roosevelt supporters in this State are expected to be opposed, when delegates to the national convention are chosen, by a group favorable to the nomination of Alfred E. Smith. James J. Walsh, of Meriden, former State chairman, said Monday he was willing to lead an attempt to obtain an instructed delegation for Smith.

Archibald McNeil, jr., of Bridgeport, national committeeman, a post which Cummings formerly held, has been definitely committed to Roosevelt, a personal friend. At his request the New York Governor spoke at Kent last fall and, together with Gov. Wilbur L. Cross, urged the need of organization in the party to carry the election next November.

The primary differences in the party, however, relate to control of the State organization. The State committee is without a chairman, pending the nomination by Gov. Cross of a man for the office.

Smith Delegates Reported Agreed On in Bay State

Boston, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The Boston American says Massachusetts Democratic leaders have agreed upon a slate of nine men and three women for delegates-at-large to the Democratic national convention, all supporters of Alfred E. Smith.

Those selected, the American says, include Gov. Joseph B. Ely, Senators David I. Walsh and Marcus A. Coolidge, Chairman Frank J. Donahue, of the State committee; Gen. Charles H. Cole, John F. Fitzgerald and Andrew J. Peters, former mayors of Boston; Representative William J. Granfield, and Mrs. Jessie Woodrow Sayre, daughter of former President Wilson.

The American says the slate as drawn has received the sanction of Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee, but it is barely possible that one or two changes may be made after Senator Walsh returns from Washington next week.

NEW YORK LEADERS CONSIDER UNIT VOTE

Attempt to Avert Showdown Between Roosevelt and Smith Seen.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Democratic leaders of almost half of the congressional districts which name national convention delegates are understood to have advised James A. Farley, State chairman, and head of the presidential drive of Gov. Roosevelt, that they have considered voting as a unit.

The districts are in Queens, Manhattan, Kings, the Bronx and the up-State of Albany and Rensselaer. Combined they will select 48 of the State's 90 district representatives at Chicago. If, however, congressional redistricting is effected before March 8, these same counties will name 52 delegates. Population increases in the 1930 census entitled them to greater representation.

John Curry, Tammany chief of Manhattan; John McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader; Edward J. Flynn, Democratic leader in the Bronx; John Theofeld, of the Queens Democratic organization; Edward O'Connell, of Albany, and Joseph Murphy, of Rensselaer, conferred here last night with Chairman Farley. Farley, McCooey and Curry also attended a dinner at the executive mansion. After the conference, the political leaders went to Lake Placid, avowedly to see the Olympic games, but possibly to talk with Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, who was there to see the winter athletes in action.

Mr. Roosevelt today said he talked over Queens, Manhattan and Brooklyn appointments, but did not discuss national affairs with any of the county leaders. Chairman Farley's expressed views were as optimistic as last summer, when he said Roosevelt would be nominated on the first ballot.

Some observers see a possibility that Democratic county leaders of New York will attempt to avert a showdown between Roosevelt followers and those of former Gov. Alfred E. Smith over the New York delegation by linking them together in a unit. No attempt has been made, it was understood, to commit the leaders to any candidacy.

G.W.U. Alumnus, 30, Is Judge in Florida

E. S. Whitson Appointed to Municipal Bench; His Parents Live Here.

Edmund S. Whitson, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitson, of 150 R street northeast, has been appointed a municipal judge for the town of Belle Air, Fla., according to dispatches from that city.

Mr. Whitson was born in Washington April 18, 1902, attending a local public school and graduated from Central High School. He later graduated from George Washington University Law School and was admitted to the District bar.

He was admitted to the Florida bar when he went there to practice, and was later admitted to the United States Supreme Court. His present home is at Clearwater, Fla.

His wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Sobotka, of 1499 Irving street northwest.

The interests of Japan and Russia have frequently clashed in Manchuria because of the Chinese Eastern Railroad, which is part of the important Transsiberian line.

There have been many diplomatic exchanges, but the Soviet government has insisted that it is too busy with its industrialization program to even think about war, despite the fact that its armed forces are estimated at more than 600,000.

District to Be Scene Of National Fox Hunt

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The 1932 annual hunt of the National Fox Hunters Association will be held near Washington, D. C., October 31-November 5, inclusive, as one of the major events of the George Washington bicentennial celebration.

The site and dates were selected today at a board of directors' meeting here. Invitations to meet in Washington were presented by G. E. Allen, C. L. Gilpin and C. N. Nichols. The Maryland Fox Hunters Association joined Washington in extending the invitation.

POLICE HEAD SEEKS SAFER TAXI DRIVING

Glassford Asks Officials of Companies to Instruct Their Employes.

Numerous complaints of careless driving by taxicab drivers impelled Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, yesterday to address a letter to a number of taxicab company officials asking that their employes be instructed to use greater care in plying the city's streets.

The police head listed seven particular faults by hackers which he believes could be corrected. These are:

"1. A tendency on the part of many taxi drivers in obstructing traffic by parking abreast for the discharge or taking on of passengers when curb space is nearby.

"2. Suddenly stopping in the lane of moving traffic to pick up a prospective passenger.

"3. Weaving in and out of lanes of traffic for the purpose of getting ahead of traffic moving in the proper lane.

"5. Speeding at intersections to cross before a change of signals.

"6. Starting at intersections before the proper signal.

"7. The unnecessary and obnoxious use of horns when the progress of the taxicab is delayed by congested traffic or slow-moving vehicles in front."

Gen. Glassford said in his letters that he believed the cooperation of the taxi company officials and employes would eliminate the necessity of a police drive against the offenses complained of.

Hoover Is Indorsed By Kentucky G.O.P.

Special to The Washington Post.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 12.—The Republican State committee of Kentucky at a meeting here today adopted a resolution heartily indorsing the administration of President Hoover and declared for his renomination. This resolution was adopted by the committee:

"We, the members of the Republican State central committee of Kentucky, in meeting assembled, at Louisville, on the 12th day of February, heartily indorse the administration of President Herbert Hoover and declare for his renomination, confident in the belief that he deserves reelection upon his magnificent record as the one outstanding leader of all the world in this crucial period.

"Undismayed by vicious attacks by political opponents, President Hoover has given unstintingly of his vast experience, his powerful intellect, and his ability as an organizer to rally the constructive forces of the country to improve conditions and to lead our people out of the depression."

JAPANESE AIRPLANES RAIN BOMBS IN RUINS OF CHAPEI

aist new units of infantry that were being thrown into the line in preparation for the impending Japanese push on Woosung and Chapei.

Before the guns and air bombers got into action this morning there had been several hours of inactivity by both the Chinese and Japanese—an interval of rest after a flurry of firing which started at midnight.

Reinforced by more than 20,000 soldiers, the Japanese naval command served warning with a tatoo of shells on the Woosung forts and on the Chapei ruins that they were girding for a supreme onslaught on an enemy who has held them at bay for two weeks.

The tolling of midnight was echoed by a renewal of hostilities on both fronts. Each side went into action at Chapei. Virtually cleared of noncombatants as a result of a four-hour truce yesterday, with machine guns and trench mortars shooting rockets of fire into the night.

At the same time Japanese warships and airplanes opened up on the village and forts of Woosung, 16 miles down the Whangpoo River. Destroyers and cruisers concentrated their weapons on the emplacements and pilots dropped bombs near them as they swooped low over the town.

Meeting to discuss peace, American Minister Nelson T. Johnson and the British and French Ministers sat in the dining room of the luxurious Cathay Hotel, situated in the heart of the settlement, and witnessed a grim entertainment. To get a better view they went to the tower of the twenty-story building and used their binoculars.

Witness Bombing.

The ministers had arrived early in the day from Nanking to try their hand at peace negotiations, on the request of Chinese merchants, and they had their first taste of battle as they passed through the narrows at Woosung. Two shells fell in the village under their eyes and started fires while four airplane bombs dropped in the marshes without destruction.

As their vessels, the U. S. S. Simpson and the gunboat Bridgewater, went by, the Japanese craft ceased firing momentarily and dipped their colors, but soon resumed operations. The British cruiser Berwick was asked to shift her berth, and the request was taken as an indication that a severe bombardment was impending, if not already under way.

Each camp accused the other of offering provocation as the conflict flared up once more, and each asserted his cannonading had claimed a considerable number of victims.

Avoid Settlement.

As the Nipponese aircraft wheeled and circled along the entire 16-mile front, from the mouth of the river to the city, they used none of the 500-pound projectiles which were expected today and they were scrupulously careful to avoid crossing the settlement boundary, within which they bombed a Chinese cotton mill yesterday, with great danger to American lives.

The bombardment lasted throughout the day, and when it was over observers could not see that the Japanese were any nearer their objectives. Some of the Chinese guns had been knocked out of commission, but their custodians were still buried in the underground defenses where they have lain for more than a week.

Nevertheless, the surrounding area is rapidly approaching Chapei as a study in destruction. Scarcely a flimsy hut or a squat brick building in the village has not been blasted by shells or peppered by machine gun bullets. Yawning holes decorate the streets where enemy bombs have found their mark.

Forts Fare Well.

The forts have come through considerably better. They have seldom suffered direct hits from the guns in the river and the morale of their manpower has not been broken. Some of the cannon lay lopsided on the ground, with their muzzles gaping to the sky, but the batteries are unimpaired.

The population is made up of 8,000 to 12,000 Chinese fishermen, boatmen and coolies, augmented by some 600 Chinese students and a score of German nationals attached to the Tungchi University. The Occidental women and children were evacuated today from the underground refuges in which they had spent a week.

The fighting threatened to break out on a new front as Japanese authorities warned they would take strong measures in the native city of Nantao, south of the settlement, if Chinese did not cease sniping at warships on the waterfront. The population grew panic-stricken and it began moving into the countryside.

New Peril Threatened.

If Nantao should be attacked, the 50,000 foreigners in the settlement and the millions of dollars invested there would be endangered by hostilities on three sides and confronted by a battle fleet on the fourth.

With this apparently in mind, the American, British and French ministers were urged by Chinese commercial organizations here to attempt success where their consular contemporaries had failed. It was hoped they might clear the way for the opening of peace representations with the governments at Homanfu, temporary Chinese capital, and at Tokyo.

In this connection dispatches from Homanfu said the government had decided to "continue its present firm attitude toward the Sino-Japanese dispute, especially as regards Shanghai," and to reject tentative Japanese proposals for neutralization and demilitarization of the five principal Chinese ports.

Civilians Removed.

Yesterday's truce resulted in the removal of more than 3,000 besieged civilians and wounded soldiers from the embattled areas of Nantao and Hongkew and an attempted exodus of hundreds of refugees back into the sector to retrieve their belongings. American civilians in the Shanghai Volunteer Corps had to call for aid as the latter hammered on the settlement gates.

Led by Father Jacquinot, one-armed French hero of Verdun, 13 French nuns, a British colonel and his 21-year-old daughter went into the war zone, carrying Red Cross flags, and brought out the noncombatants through the Chinese lines. The frightened, homeless victims snatched any articles they could put their hands on and departed meekly.

League Sidesteps New Chinese Move

Yen's Assembly Vote Request Initiates Dilemma on Japan's Status.

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—China took the last diplomatic step but one day to halt hostilities in Shanghai, and the council of the League of Nations sidestepped the issue until next week.

Dr. W. W. Yen, chief of the Chinese delegation, filed a formal request with the council, asking that body to refer the Sino-Japanese controversy to a meeting of the assembly. He acted only a few minutes before the two-week time limit expired for submission of grievances under Article XV of the league covenant.

The twelve neutral members of the council, in a secret, protracted session, decided they would not convene the assembly on their own responsibility, but would hold a plenary meeting Monday or Tuesday when it will be decided whether the Chinese delegation or the council itself will take the initiative. Dr. Yen's move placed the council in a painful dilemma, for if it decides to summon the assembly of its own volition, it is generally believed in informed circles, that Japan would withdraw from the league forthwith.

vessels. Japanese airplanes bombed all parts of the Chinese sections at Shanghai and parts of the International Settlement, the statement said, and then withdrew over the midsection of the settlement.

Japanese military and civilian elements are accused of killing and injuring an incalculable number of "peaceable, unarmed Chinese men, women and children, estimated between 1,000 and 2,000, and with imprisoning and maltreating many others and executing many without trial." Hundreds of millions of dollars in property damage have been caused by Japanese bombs, said the statement, which added:

"The Japanese government excuses these atrocities by alleging military peril due to the proximity of the Chinese troops. The Chinese Government solemnly declares that excuse as a transparent pretext. It is impossible to send Japanese troops anywhere in China without being surrounded by Chinese population and near Chinese troops occupying their regular stations.

"It is evident that such reasoning provides an excuse for the complete conquest of China by Japan."

DISARMAMENT A LA SOVIET.

The picture of Maxim Litvinoff, commissar for foreign affairs in Soviet Russia, standing before the disarmament conference and pleading for universal and complete disarmament conjures up memory of the wolf who disguised himself in sheep's clothing. It is a hobby of the Soviet to advocate absolute disarmament, while maintaining the third largest army in the world. The Soviet delegate admits that his suggestion is a pipe dream. It is put forward in a spirit of insincerity and cynicism.

If the Soviet believes in complete disarmament, why does it maintain an organized military force of 5,167,000 men? Only France and Italy support larger military establishments than the red army of Russia. It would be difficult for M. Litvinoff to prove that a force of this size is necessary for national defense purposes.

The reason why only the Soviet preaches total disarmament is because it is the least honest of all the governments represented at Geneva. In the first place, the Soviet knows that its suggestion is too ridiculous to be considered seriously. In the second place, the Soviet could sign an agreement for total disarmament and violate it with less compunction than any other government in the world.

M. Litvinoff told the conference that "the sole aim of the Soviet government is the building up of socialism in the Soviet Union," and that "the Soviet requires neither increase of territory nor interference in the affairs of other nations to achieve its aim." A few months ago officials at Moscow were declaring that the objectives of the Soviet could never be attained without a world revolution, and the very administration that now holds absolute power over Russia set out to destroy every capitalistic government. Which time were the Soviet officials lying as to their foreign policy?

The world has long since learned not to depend upon the pledges and policies of the Soviet. Moscow officials talk two different languages, one for home consumption and the other to mislead the outside world. One of the foremost policies of the Soviet regime is to dishonor any obligation when such a course becomes expedient. For this reason the disarmament conference will give no heed to the clumsy trap set by the Soviet.

As a matter of fact, Soviet Russia is one of the principal causes of the burdensome armaments that are saddled upon the backs of European taxpayers. In recent months the menace of communism has been quiescent because the attention of the Moscow government has been concentrated on distressing problems at home. Nevertheless, the red army is a menace that casts a long shadow over Europe.

It is a popular belief that France maintains her immense army for protection against Germany. But a fraction of the French army would be sufficient to secure France against aggression from disarmed Germany alone. The real fear that gripes France is that the Soviet army will join forces with Germany in the hope of fostering communism throughout Europe. France feels it necessary to obtain security against this menace or retain her present military force intact.

While posing as the foremost advocate of peace and disarmament the Soviet is, in reality, one of the chief factors that make disarmament at Geneva highly improbable.

WHEELER'S BOGEY MEN.

All the hobgoblins of politics are being marshaled for the fight within the Democratic party for the presidential nomination. Senator Wheeler, of Montana, has wheeled into line his most formidable bogey men and ordered a full charge ahead to demolish the wicked forces that are trying to prevent the nomination of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt. The fight scheduled to terminate at Chicago next June is already in full swing.

Only a short time ago those apparitions of politics—the international banking interests and the power trust—were being represented as the bosom companions of the Republican administration. Now they seem to have deserted the Republican ranks and gone over to the foes of Gov. Roosevelt, with the iniquitous intention of defeating the governor and nominating a candidate who will do their bidding. It is indeed remarkable how these mythical factors in politics invariably modify their intrigues so as to remain in diametrical opposition to the projects that lie nearest to Senator Wheeler's heart.

The senator's keen intuition tells him that the forces of darkness are now operating upon the intellects of John J. Raskob and Jouett Shouse. Otherwise, how could they have the "impertinence" to suggest that uninstructed delegates be sent to the national convention? They must have known that Senator Wheeler would resent any move to let the convention choose its own candidate. Such heresy could originate from only one source—the sinister power trust.

What right do the chairman and executive chairman of the Democratic national committee have to stand in the way of Senator Wheeler's candidacy? Has not the oracle of Montana spoken? Has he not selected the only candidate who can satisfy "the man on the street looking for a job, and the farmer trying to eke out a miserable existence?" Why then should other Democrats interject themselves in this contest? It is a pernicious and wicked plot to vitiate the Montanan's plan of salvation.

It would be interesting to know how Gov. Roosevelt feels about the war his champion is making upon the rest of the Democratic party. If Senator Wheeler has obtained the position of campaign manager for the governor, the public has not been informed of it. But he has certainly taken the Roosevelt campaign into his own hands. He is doing his utmost to arouse intraparty strife throughout the country and to precipitate a death struggle between Gov. Roosevelt and Al Smith. It may be necessary for the New York governor to rescue his candidacy from the hands of fanatical friends who are trying to use him to further radical schemes of their own.

AID FOR RAILROADS.

Railroad companies are in a much stronger financial position as a result of the increased freight rates allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the wage "deduction" agreement with employes. Experts calculate that even if gross earnings show no improvement in 1932 the carriers will nevertheless earn their bond interest 1.75 times, as compared with 1.23 times in 1931. Investors in railway securities as well as the carriers themselves should find encouragement in the present outlook.

Machinery has been set in motion in the House of Representatives to overhaul the transportation act of 1920 in such a way as to strengthen the railroads against future periods of depression. Twelve years ago the railroads virtually had a monopoly in the transportation industry. Congress, therefore, wrote into the law rigid restrictions to prevent the carriers from earning excessive profits. The Interstate Commerce Commission was ordered to fix rates that would allow the railroads a fair return on their investments. Half of all that was earned above the so-called fair return was to be "recaptured" by the Government.

Fear that the railroads would accumulate excessive profits to the detriment of shippers has largely disappeared. The railroads must now compete with buses and trucks, pipe lines, waterways and, to some extent, aircraft. The most pressing problem is to devise means whereby the railways can earn sufficient to afford a reasonable return on their investments, and not to prevent excess earnings.

It is now well recognized that the theory of adjusting rates so that carriers may at all times earn a fair return is impracticable. Railroad earnings can not be stabilized by mere changes in rates, and if they could be, the advisability of adjusting rates to every fluctuation of the economic pendulum is questionable. Under this theory rates would be placed extremely low in times of great prosperity, because the volume of freight would be large. Low rates encourage business and stimulate unwarranted industrial activity. Then when depression comes, bringing lower prices, and extensive need for low rates, it is necessary to increase shipping charges to allow the carriers enough revenue to keep operating. Such a practice is disastrous for the railroads and highly detrimental to manufacturers and business interests that employ their services.

The Rayburn bill now before the House interstate commerce committee would set up an entirely new basis for freight rates. The recapture clause would be definitely eliminated and the "excess earnings" which the Interstate Commerce Commission is holding would be returned to the carriers. Rates would still be based on "a fair return upon the aggregate value of the property," but railway companies would be allowed to accumulate a reserve in prosperous times to carry them through a depression. This measure carries out the latest recommendations of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and represents the most advanced thought of railway experts. Its enactment by Congress should contribute much to the permanent stabilization of the national transportation system.

STABILITY BEFORE FREEDOM.

Secretary Hurley introduced a note of common sense into the congressional hearings on independence for the Philippine Islands. In sharp contrast to the majority of witnesses who have appeared before the House insular committee, he insisted on discussing the problem from a realistic point of view. Inasmuch as Secretary Hurley made an exhaustive study of conditions in the islands last summer and has since investigated the trade relationship between the Philippines and the United States, he speaks with authority. His testimony overshadows all of the sentimental and idealistic views that have been written into the record during an entire week.

The fact that Japan is engaged in an imperialistic spree should be sufficient to silence the demands of the Filipinos for independence at this time. There is not the slightest indication that the islands could maintain their freedom under present conditions in the Orient. Secretary Hurley has set at rest all hope of the Filipinos that the United States might withdraw and leave the natives to govern themselves with the understanding that Uncle Sam would rush to the rescue of their ship of state every time it grounded on the shoals of anarchy, revolution or foreign war.

Independence as it is pictured in Filipino oratory probably never will be granted to the islands. They visualize immediate freedom, or a brief preparatory period in which they would be given full political authority while holding on to the American market for their exports. What they seek is independence first and stability afterward. That order must be reversed. Economic and political stability must first be established as a matter of fact. When that has been accomplished it is questionable whether or not the Filipinos will wish to sever their tie with the United States. But certainly the United States will not cut the islands adrift when their people are wholly unprepared to carry on an orderly national life of their own.

The principal defect of most of the bills under consideration is that they put a time limit on the preparatory period. It is obviously impossible to determine whether conditions will be ripe for the launching of an independent state in the Orient within five, ten or twenty years. Unless some definite steps are taken to adjust the trade relations between the islands and the United States they will never be prepared for nationhood. To meet this situation Secretary Hurley advocates, as The Post has done many times, a trade limitations agreement under which the Philippines could approach the economic conditions that would prevail when they become independent. But even this could well be postponed until economic and political conditions are restored more nearly to normal.

EXPENSIVE GOVERNMENTS.

A survey of the last twenty-five years shows the cost of Government to have increased greatly per capita as well as in total expenditure. Federal expenses in the last quarter of a century have gone up 730 per cent while State expenses are about 900 per cent more. The taxpayer, however, feels far more weighted down by the national tax and usually cites this as the greater evil. The reason, no doubt, lies in the fact that money spent close at home is more apparent and, therefore, seems to be better employed.

The cost per individual for the support of the National Government in 1890 was $4.61; State government cost $1.22; local government was $7.73. In 1928 the Federal Government charge had risen to $33.12; State government $15.24, and $56.84 for local government. The total cost in 1890 was $855,000,000, while in 1928 $12,609,000,000 was spent for government. Obviously it costs more to run a large concern than a small one; then, too, there have been two wars financed over this period. Another important factor is that before 1890 about one American in every thousand was either an employe or pensioner of the Government, whereas today one out of every ten persons in this country gets regular payment in one form or another from the public money.

A large part of the increase in the cost of government is unjustified and has been much decried and discussed. Federal bureaucracy comes in for the more frequent attack, but it is not as costly as the local duplication and inefficiency that exists in the States. Expansion in this sphere during boom times was as natural and unjustified as that in industrial life. This basis of expenditure can be no more profitable to a nation than to a business and it should, therefore, be remedied. This can only be done when the critics of bureaucracy assert themselves against it. The power to remedy the situation lies in the hands of the taxpayer and voters whenever they wish to employ it.

Times are so hard that we have to wait in line sometimes for as long as 30 minutes to get a seat in the movies.

Banks in Shanghai are reopening for business. The Chinese seem to have all the luck.

FORCE AT SHANGHAI

From the Boston Transcript.

Swift concentration of warships and soldiers at Shanghai has distinctly a pacific effect. That is a sort of immemorial result. It is a sign that presidents, premiers and cabinets are beginning to sit up and take notice of an extremely dangerous situation; and when they do so, the prospect of a diplomatic solution irradiates the horizon. Such a solution was the only logical answer to whatever grievances Japan had at Shanghai, and not forcible occupation, bombing, conflagrations, sniping and wholesale massacre.

The action of Britain and France in strengthening their defensive and protective naval and military representation, in harmony with the dispatch of our warships, marines and a regiment of soldiers to the Chinese scene, is also a complete as well as a conspicuous indorsement by Europe of the American policy, as soon as that policy was clearly declared. Our policy is now John Hay come to life again, and it points out a general movement away from underground "spheres of influence" held in reserve, and toward the door of equal national rights held open by the civilized world. Europe, back on the old "balance of power" basis, was inclined to wink in its own supposed interests, at the Manchurian aggression of Japan. But Shanghai, and Washington's clear view of it—slow to be taken, but made plain at last—opened European eyes to the significance of the general situation. If Japanese monks had been maltreated by the Chinese, or if other local offenses had been committed, there was a diplomatic remedy for all this. But Japan awaited no diplomatic amends. It stepped in with fire and sword—quite literally with these. The error has been made apparent. Better late than never.

That we are not looking only toward Japan and her error is proved by the fact that Washington is bending its efforts toward the prevention of a possibly worse error on the part of China. For that perturbed republic to declare war against Japan would have been a fatal step. It would have justified any hostile proceeding on Japan's part as a war necessity. And any such step, in the relative situation of the warlike efficiency of the two powers, would have been crushing to China. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad. The concurrence of Britain, France and Italy will help to check this madness.

An incidental effect of the strengthening of foreign influence at Shanghai may be the postponement of any surcease of navy building on the part of the United States or any reduction of our Army. Undoubtedly we are honestly for disarmament policies. But our people may be convinced that the present moment is not exactly the psychological one for military or naval reduction. They can hardly be blamed for that. Certainly we are not overarmed for a situation where ships and soldiers speak for peace.

"Stock prices up three billions here."—New York Times. Congress must be proud of what it can do in one day's nonpartisan cooperation with the President.

All those other credit helps are going to be useful, but, boy, does the stock market know how much has been tied up in the Federal Reserve system?

Yesterday encouraged a good many, if not to aspire to a Lincoln, to take more interest in the appearance of the 8-cylinder Fords.

That national teeth grinding you hear comes from countries reading reports that Uncle Sam's Treasury bills still are subscribed three times over on an interest basis of 2.32 per cent.

Many are being converted to the belief that a general sales tax offers the only painless method of balancing the budget. Automatically it gathers in a few cents a day or a few dollars a day from every citizen according to income and capacity to buy.

Instead of piling up a burdensome amount to be settled at the end of the year, a sales tax takes an unnoticeable fraction of expenditures. It is paid unsconsciously with every purchase, a half-penny contributed only when you have a dollar to spend.

Gov. Pinchot achieves the unique distinction of being the only State executive to parade his citizens before Congress as mendicants requiring a Federal dole.

French offers of compromise are the order of the day. The coque d'or is not so cocky since compelled to call gold from abroad to offset a mounting adverse trade balance. France avoided a head-on collision with the depression, but now suffers from a tail-swipe as the United States begins repairs.

Henry Ford is so certain he has "the car" in his new eight that he is willing to take a chance on the market and help things along. What have you confidence in?

American and British delegates at Geneva are hors de combat with head colds. General hope is expressed that it has not worked up from pedal extremities frappe.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

TURNING THE TABLES.

Restored to health, though somewhat thinner,
Once asked, to show his gratitude,
His wise physician in to dinner.

The doctor came. The meal began.
With red tomato juice he plied him,
Then served him up a dish of bran,
But cream and sugar both denied him.

He gave him buttermilk to drink;
Dished out a mess of vegetation,
Sad spinach green and carrots pink
And other forms of rabbit ration.

Dessert was what is widely known
As jelly with banana slices,
A pale confection, which alone
Some stomach doctor's taste entices.

The patient chuckled—"There's the diet
Of which so fond you fellows are!

By ROBERT QUILLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE—This letter isn't prompted by the fact that you live in a small town. Human nature is changed very little by population statistics, and a large community is merely a collection of small ones.

In all communities of which I have knowledge, the people are divided into two classes—those who talk about things and those who talk about people.

Of course the classes aren't wholly distinct. Those who talk about things—about politics, books, current events, music, law—these may at times discuss their friends and their servants; but the other class, composed of those who talk about people, is incapable of talking or listening unless the topic of conversation is a neighbor.

You are now forming the social habits that will stay with you through life. The next five years will determine which class is yours.

Environment will decide the matter for you if you make no effort to do anything for yourself. You will develop the habit of making conversation as your daily companions do.

Don't fool yourself by assuming that you can spend your youth in discussion of your neighbors and then blossom out over night and become a charming conversationalist capable of discussing anything under the sun.

Habit isn't formed that way. Your future way of life won't be decided upon next year or the next. You are cutting the pattern now.

Do you wish to be a common scold? That is the ultimate fate of every woman who talks about nothing but people. You can't make conversation about your neighbors' virtues and triumphs. Ordinary things aren't interesting. If you make it a practice to talk about people, you will talk about their faults and their sins, their mistakes and their failures. And after a few years of that your mind will travel in a rut and you won't be able to open your mouth without saying something uncomplimentary about somebody.

You can't change after the habit jells. Once you become a confirmed neighbor discusser, you will be happy only among others of your kind. When chance places you in a group that talks of other things, you will be as dumb as an oyster.

Talk of many things, Honey. Otherwise you'll be tongue-tied when you meet a stranger who doesn't know the Joneses. Love, DAD.

PRO AND CON

Two Armies.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

The American Army, as that body is generally conceived, consists of 140,000 men, more or less. It is a modest army for so large a Nation, and when spread over this country and its outlying territories it is only large enough to serve its purposes. Although costly, this army is not a serious burden on the American people.

But there is another Federal army, vastly larger and more diverse in its functions, that represents the real burden of taxation. Federal employes number 98,000, as Mr. Gableman pointed out in one of his articles in the Enquirer this week. Subtracting the number of men employed in national defense, there still remain some 750,000 persons composing the army of bureaucracy. Its cost is greater than the army in uniform.

Perhaps disarmament might begin at home. This large Federal army needs deflation, in proportion to the actual requirements of the Nation. Despite many wholesome gestures, neither Executive nor Congress has done anything notable to achieve this disarmament in our bureaucracy.

Waste in Public Printing.
Cincinnati Enquirer.

Of the many foolish extravagances existing in Washington, one of the most flagrant, though by no means the largest, is the practice of printing vast quantities of books and pamphlets for wide distribution, with no efforts to gauge the probable need for such materials.

Representative Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, has introduced a bill which aims at this waste of money, and deserves prompt approval of Congress. Mr. Ludlow points out that a million volumes of such printed materials have piled up in the basements of public buildings, waiting to be sold as junk. He estimates the loss in this manner at $200,000 a year.

Economy in Veteran Relief.
Chicago Tribune.

The report of a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States studying Government expenditures discloses conditions in veteran relief which urgently call for correction. Veteran relief now represents 24 per cent of all Federal expenditures, and the committee estimates that the amount spent on war service and relief in the single year of 1931—$1,013,041,905—is one-ninth of the entire sum expended by the Government for this purpose from 1790 to 1931.

This expenditure, therefore, has become a major problem of the Nation, and it is of the utmost importance that if it includes improper items and administrative wastes they should not be protected by misinformed sentiment or by the self-seeking exploitation of political power. Thus the committee asserts that for the fiscal year 1930 administrative expenditures (including printing and binding) of the Veterans' Bureau were $41,739,295, or 9 per cent of the total expenditures, while in the same year the Pension Bureau disbursed $220,947,184—nearly all for Civil and Spanish War pensions—at an administrative cost of only $1,272,203, or slightly more than half of 1 per cent.

Jack Garner's Handicap.
Topeka Capital.

Speaker John Garner has two handicaps as a presidential dark horse. No candidate from the South has been nominated for president since the Civil War. Texas still seems out of the picture. Moreover, while men who have been Speaker have been nominated, none was ever elected. Speaker Garner's boom is a tribute to his personal popularity in Congress.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Virginia Democrat Does Not Think Senator Wheeler Is a Good Adviser of the Party.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Whether or not the recommendation of Jouett Shouse, chairman of the national Democratic executive committee, that unpledged delegates be sent to the national convention is sound, it ill behooves Senator Burton K. Wheeler to pass judgment on the matter. The Democratic party leaders and the great masses of the common people who subscribe to the doctrine and policies of that party prefer being advised by some more substantial leader than the senator from Montana, who only recently bolted the party he claims to be affiliated with, and who would not hesitate to do so again if the convention in Chicago should nominate a man who is not entirely in accord with his own individual so-called progressive views.

What might seem to Senator Wheeler as "the height of impertinence" might, as a matter of fact, be highly proper and in accord with the fundamental principles of Democracy. Senators Wheeler, Norris, and a few other irreconcilables are so used to crying out "special privileges" on the "interests" at every constructive policy advocated by the members of Congress who are true to their respective parties that they are bent on the selection of some candidate for President who will subscribe to their own socialistic views of government.

For my part, I would much prefer following the recommendation of Mr. Shouse than to fall for the whims of the senator from Montana.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Reason Why Southern Democracy Clings to the Two-Thirds Rule.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The congratulations which Chicago deserves for getting both national political conventions need to be accompanied with directions for distinguishing one convention from another. This is due to the fact that 166 of the Democratic delegates will come from the Republican States of Pennsylvania, Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin and be able to outvote the combined delegates from the Democratic States of Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, Mississippi and Louisiana. Pennsylvania alone, with its 76 delegates, will be able to outvote Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina. So it won't be a truly democratic Democratic convention at all.

The Democratic convention will be the Republican one, for the Republicans now base their convention apportionments in important part on the distribution of the party vote in the last preceding election. Perhaps the Democrats will learn eventually to do the same thing and give up their present undemocratic system of alloting representation solely on the basis of membership in Congress, which means a heavy over-representation for certain States which never go Democratic. Until this is done the South will need the two-thirds rule for what little protection it affords—and Chicago will need to be told which of two national political conventions is the "Democratic" one when playing host to both. Calvert Street Bridge Section Needs a Policeman.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why is it not possible in the present crises of crime to have a larger police force? I have lived for over 25 years near the east end of the Calvert street bridge, and hardly ever meet an officer of the law. Even at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, where one is most needed, there is none, and in the group of houses on Biltmore, Calvert and Twentieth streets, Mintwood place and Allen place, the residents would all feel grateful to have an officer who has a regular route through these streets to call upon in case of need.

I am out in this vicinity daily and can not even remember the last time I met a policeman. Of course, an answer might be that we all have telephones, but when one is badly frightened or is being struck or choked it is rather difficult to reach a telephone or even think of anything but self-preservation.

ROWENA HALSTEAD.

Protest Against Excessive Taxes on Farmers Before They Can Get on Their Feet.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Considering the dollar's purchasing power, farmers' taxes are higher than ever before. Never in the history of our country was the tax burden so hard to bear. If taxes were cut in two, the half would be too high. The farmer, who has his farm well improved and not loaded down with a heavy mortgage, can take care of himself. Where it costs from $50 to $75 to clear an acre of land and then no buildings, what have you? It is really a crime to tax these poor farmers before they get established.

We can not afford to tax the farmers out of the country. If we had more of the "Spirit of '76" in governmental affairs, our country would not be in the situation it is today.

O. A. MALM.

Reader Wonders What Would Happen If Air and Water Were Monopolized.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is remarkable that of the three essentials to life—land, air and water—the Creator has made only one of the three (land) potentially susceptible to monopoly. We have raised such devilish chaos with our land monopoly that it taxes the imagination to visualize what asininity we might enjoy if the Creator had made the other two necessities—air and water—likewise potentially susceptible to monopoly.

We should be thankful that the Creator has restricted our field for exercising our lack of sense to one of these three necessities of life.

SOCIETY

THE VICE PRESIDENT, MR. Charles Curtis, is the guest in whose honor the Italian Ambassador and Donna Antonietta de Martino will entertain at dinner this evening.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Ogden L. Mills, and Mrs. Mills have as their guests over the week-end the latter's son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Fell, jr., of New York, whose marriage took place December 7.

Miss Dorothy Fell, daughter of Mrs. Mills, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Morton Smith, of New York, has gone to Aiken, S. C., to remain ten days.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley were ranking guests at a luncheon given yesterday at the Mayflower by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas D. Lewis in compliment to Miss Dorothy McBirney, of Tulsa, Okla., a member of the Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy, which met here Monday and Tuesday.

The other luncheon guests were Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Parks Galleher, Mr. Calvert Bowie and Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Rust, jr.

Ambassador and Mme. Claudel Will Entertain Tomorrow.

The French Ambassador and Mme. Claudel will entertain at luncheon tomorrow, and tomorrow evening they will entertain at dinner in the embassy.

Mrs. Charles Evans Hughes, wife of the Chief Justice, will not observe her Mondays at home during Lent.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke left Washington yesterday and will spend the week-end in New York as guests of Representative and Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, returning the first of the week.

Last evening Mr. Jahncke attended the Lincoln Day dinner given by the Union League Club in Philadelphia and today he will make an address at the annual meeting of the Nassau County Federation of Republican Women in Mineola, Long Island. Mrs. Bacon is president of the organization.

Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke, wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy, is the guest for whom Mrs. Clarence C. Calhoun has issued invitation for tea next Wednesday from 4 until 6 o'clock at Rossdhu, her Maryland residence.

The Secretary of the Roumanian Legation and Mme. Popovici will sail today for a three weeks' cruise of the West Indies.

Mr. and Mrs. William E. Parsons, of Chicago, are at the Mayflower, where they will occupy an apartment for several months. Mr. Parsons is here in connection with his plans for the enlargement of the Capitol Grounds and the architecture for the new conservatory at the Botanic Garden.

Mr. and Mrs. David H. Blair entertained at dinner last evening in the east ballroom of Wardman Park Hotel. Covers were laid for sixteen and the company went on to the dance in the gold room.

Gen. Pershing Honored At Fort Myer Drill.

Gen. John J. Pershing received the honors of the troops at the fifth exhibition ride at Fort Myer yesterday afternoon. The drill was given in honor of the military attaches stationed in Washington and many of them were present in their uniforms, adding color to the already brilliant military scene. The general and his escort arrived amid a blare of bugles and were seated in the central box, to which the commandant of Fort Myer and Mrs. Harry N. Cootes had invited guests. The new military attache of the Mexican Embassy, and Senora de Beltran were in the box as were Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Charles P. George, son-in-law and daughter of Vice President Curtis. Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom were there, as also Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson and Mrs. James Gannon.

Others at the drill were Mrs. William E. Borah; the assistant military attache of the French Embassy, Maj. Emmanuel Lombard; the military attache of the Italian Embassy, Col. Marco Pennaroli; the military attache of the Cuban Embassy, Capt. Enrique Prieto; Capt. and Mrs. John Casewell, Mrs. Stanton Peelle and her daughter, Mrs. James Nolan; Mrs. O. V. Allen and Mrs. James Young, of Boise, Idaho, who accompanied Mrs. Borah; Miss Francesca McKenny, Countess Fumasoni-Biondi, Mrs. Charlotte Warfield, Mr. Robert Chambers, Miss Barendina Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Phil Campbell, and the military attache of the Swedish Legation, Capt. Count von Rosen, in his smart uniform of bright blue with a long top coat of a lighter shade and a military hat of the two colors.

The drill was more than usually interesting, the features being of a wider variety. The battery drill, Battery A, of the Sixteenth Field Artillery, gave a brilliant demonstration, with the wheels and boxes of the caissons, as well as the horses, decorated with red, white and blue electric lights. The Cossack ride of Troop F, Third Cavalry, also caused much attention with their spectacular feats of riding, and the officers jumping team, led by Col. George, was much applauded. Col. George himself rode his famous Miss America, and made beautiful jumps. Later tea was served at the post headquarters, where a gay group gathered.

Mrs. W. C. Sipple, who, with Mr. Sipple and their two daughters, has been at Wardman Park Hotel for several weeks, entertained at luncheon there yesterday informally.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Drake, of Grosse Pointe, Mich., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a son on Wednesday, February 10. Mrs. Drake was before her marriage Miss Eleanor Bryan Smith, daughter of Commander George Leonard Smith, of Washington. Her marriage took place at the home of Mrs. George Barnett, a close friend of her parents.

Filipino Dinner Given by Dr. Moncado.

Dr. Hilario Camino Moncado, Filipino leader for independence, was guest of honor last evening at the Mayflower at the first dinner of the Modernist Party, a newly organized political party of Filipinos in the United States and the Philippines of which he is founder and president. Approximately 50 guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, jr., are in New York, preparatory to sailing today for Bermuda, where they will spend about two weeks.

Mrs. J. C. Noell had friends lunching with her yesterday at the Carlton.

Mrs. William C. Horton, wife of Enginner Commander Horton, R. N., Naval Attache of the British Embassy, entertained informally at luncheon on Thursday at Wardman Park Hotel.

Residents of Washington, at Hotel Everglade, Miami, include Mr. and Mrs. William H. Boyd, Russell Boys, Mrs. Sophia Harris, Miss Evelyn Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert N. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Johnson, jr.

Girls Will Ask Boys To Dance at Ball.

Invitations have been issued for a leap year dance to be held in the Gold Ballroom at the Shoreham February 29, under the patronage of Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Mrs. William Dent Beall, Mrs. Russell-Bennett, Mrs. Gregg C. Birdsall, Mrs. G. Beale Bloomer, Mrs. Roderick L. Carmichael, Mrs. Walter G. Dunlop, Mrs. Richard G. Park, jr., Mrs. William H. White, jr., and Mrs. Clark C. Wren. Three committees—one for post-debs under the chairmanship of Miss Laura Barkley; one for debutantes with Miss Marbury Beall as chairman, and one for subdebs with Miss Florence Harris have been formed with nine other girls on each committee. The stag line will be girls, no boys are to be allowed to cut in; in fact, the boys will not be able to ask the girls to dance at any time—all initiative to come from the girls.

The former Consul of the United States Embassy in Berlin, Mr. George A. Gordon, has been detailed to the Department of State, and, with Mrs. Gordon, will arrive shortly to make their home in the Capital.

The United States Vice Consul at Cologne, Germany, Mr. Edward S. Parker, is in Washington for a brief visit while on leave from his post.

The art section of the Twentieth Century Club has brought the famed exhibition of American pottery, assembled by the General Federation of Women's Clubs, to Washington, and will give its members an opportunity of viewing it, at a tea to be given tomorrow afternoon at Sears, Roebuck Gallery, 1106 Connecticut avenue, from 2:15 to 4 o'clock. During the afternoon a short musical program will be given by Mme. Louise Coutinho, and talks pertinent to ceramic art will be given by Miss Jane Randolph Young, Mr. Karl Langenbeck, well-known ceramic engineer, and Mr. Theodore Morgan, director of the gallery.

Italy-America Society To Honor Washington.

Invitations are being issued by the Italy-America Society of Washington to celebrate "A George Washington Evening" on Thursday, February 25, at the Mayflower.

The society is taking this means of making a contribution to the George Washington bicentennial celebration and selected this date, which is the anniversary of the surrender of Vincennes, Ind., to George Rogers Clark, whose success was due largely to the assistance given him by the Italian, Francisco Vigo. This surrender is considered by many to be one of the most dramatic events of the Revolutionary War, without which the vast territory northwest of the Ohio would not have passed to the colonies under the treaty of peace with Great Britain.

The program that evening includes the dancing of two minuets that are said to be accurate reproductions of ones danced for President and Mrs. Washington, and also the rendition of Italian music for which the first President had a preference, and other music of that period by Hopkinson and other composers of that time, including several marches that were dedicated to George Washington.

Even the orchestra will be in strict accordance with ones of the colonial days and will include a harpsichord that was in general use at that time before the advent of the piano.

Appropriate ceremonies that evening will also attend the presentation of an American flag and an Italian flag to the society by Miss Alice Driggs, one of the members. Dancing will follow the program.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Francis C. Endicott entertained at the dinner dance at the Shoreham last night in honor of Gen. and Mrs. George Leach. Their other guests included Col. and Mrs. A. L. Singleton, Col. and Mrs. C. O. Schudt, Mrs. C. W. Bolen, Capt. James Douglas, U. S. A., and Lieut. George J. Luckey, U. S. A.

Senor Pedro A. Cebollero, assistant commissioner of education of Porto Rico, will arrive in the United States the first of the week, and is coming directly to Washington to be at Wardman Park Hotel during his visit.

Lieut. Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim have returned to Washington after spending several weeks in Havana as the guests of the former's brother and sister-in-law, the United States Ambassador to Cuba and Mrs. Harry Guggenheim.

Mrs. Henry J. Weeks, who has been the guest of her brother-in-law and sister, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Stephen O. Fuqua, has sailed for Uruguay. She will visit the commercial attache of the American legation, Mr. William A. Hodgman, and Mrs. Hodgman, in Montevideo, and will return to Washington the last of April.

Miss Jeanette Fuqua, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Fuqua, has gone to New York, where she will spend a week with Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Scott.

Group From Washington At Baltimore Dinner.

A group from Washington attended a dinner in Baltimore on Thursday evening, given at the Lord Baltimore by the Baltimore City George Washington Bicentennial Committee, which has as its honorary chairman Mr. Howard W. Jackson, mayor of Baltimore, and as its acting chairman Mr. James H. Preston.

Among those in attendance were the Minister of Finland, Mr. Astrom; Mrs. Gibson Fahnestock, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Tuckmeran, who were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Cotton, of Baltimore; Miss Dorothy Sollers, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur A. Hubbard and Mr. Lynch Luquer.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haskell are at the Willard. Mr. Haskell is Consul General to Zurich, Switzerland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren are leaving for Boston tonight to attend the wedding on Monday of Mr. Warren's nephew, Mr. Winslow Warren, to Miss Jeasamine Gordon. They will return on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Mullen, of New York, are at the Shoreham for the week-end.

Miss Lewinski to Entertain Dance Students.

Miss Inge Von Lewinski will entertain at her home, 3145 Sixteenth street, tomorrow afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock for Orchesis, a group of George Washington University students interested in the dance, in honor of Miss Gertrude Prokosch, who is in Washington to give a dance recital under the auspices of the university.

Mrs. E. Roy McKenzie, wife of Commander McKenzie, and Miss Ruth Aubeck, of the George Washington University faculty, will pour. Members of orchestra will assist.

Miss Prokosch is the daughter of Prof. Prokosch, head of the department of Germanic languages and literatures at Yale University. She is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College and has studied at the Yale School of Drama. Turning her attention to the dance, she has made a considerable success as a lecturer and recital artist, and just last week gave her first full-length New York program at the Recital Theater.

Her Washington recital, in which she will be assisted by women students of the department of physical education for women of the George Washington University, will take place on Wednesday evening in the auditorium of the Gordon Junior High School.

Mr. Clarence E. Curtis, jr., and Mr. William H. Kunkelmann, of Schenectady, N. Y., are spending the week-end at the Chastleton.

Mrs. H. L. Dudley, jr., of Bronxville, N. Y., has arrived at the Carlton to visit her mother, Mrs. J. J. Gilbert.

Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Key Daingerfield, of Baltimore, are at the Powhatan.

Among those participating in the George Washington bicentennial ball at the Mayflower Hotel will be Mr. Houstoun Richardson Harper, who, in historically correct costume, will represent his ancestor, Sir Patrick Hous-

THE SATURDAY FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS PAGE

Appearing Each Week in The Washington Post

LENT'S BEST MENU PRIZE IS OFFERED

Penitential Season, Curtailing Dishes, Exacts Recipes to Tempt Appetites.

With the coming of Lent, homemakers find additional need for tasty recipes to enliven curtailed menus and tempt lazy appetites. The season of penitence places the emphasis on fish and then more fish. Unless the homemaker watches this item of diet carefully it may be handled in an unappetizing way.

The Saturday food page of The Washington Post will award a special book prize for the best Lenten menu submitted each week. No menu will be considered which does not contain mention of some article advertised on this page weekly. Address all entries to the Food Editor, The Washington Post, Washington, D. C., and sign them with full names and addresses of the senders.

The abiding interest taken in this page by our readers is shown by the following letter from one of the most faithful friends of this department. She writes:

"Dear Food Editor: Today, just as we were through lunch, a friend, who is a professor of chemistry in Johns Hopkins, came over from Baltimore. I was quite upset, as we had finished lunch and all we had left were some biscuits. So I put what was left in the oven and heated them up and had our friend have a cup of coffee, hot biscuit and strawberry preserves. He exclaimed, as soon as he tasted the biscuit, 'Oh! this is the first time I have had cream biscuit since my mother made them. Oh, how good they are.' So I thought if he thought they were so good that perhaps some of your readers might like to try them. I have been making them for 27 years and I simply called them biscuits. I have the doctor to thank for the name (cream biscuit)."

The book and honorable mention awards were won this week by the following recipes:

ECONOMY PUDDING.
(Awarded Book Prize.)

½ cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon lard (Sanitary)
¼ cup milk
Pinch salt
½ cup seedless raisins
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup or more flour (Sanico)
2 level teaspoons baking powder

Sift together all dry ingredients, then work in the shortening. Add milk and mix until a very stiff batter. Drop by spoonfuls into a boiling syrup made as follows:

1 cup brown sugar
2 cups water
Small lump butter (Land o' Lakes)

Let come to boil. Then drop in the batter. Bake in a quick oven. Serves five or six.

2 cups of sugar
2 cups of coconut (Sanitary)
4 cups of corn flakes, crushed, not too fine
Flavor with vanilla (Piggly-Wiggly)

Bake in moderate oven. This makes about four dozen macaroons.

MRS. SMITH BLAIR.

LOG CABIN SALAD.
(Honorable Mention).

Peter-Pan peas (Sanitary grocery)
Celery, chopped
Carrots, grated
French dressing
Mayonnaise

Pile asparagus, log cabin fashion, on lettuce in individual salad plates. Fill the center with the mixed vegetables, marinated with French dressing. Serve with mayonnaise.

MRS. JAMES POWERS.
3002 Rodman street northwest.

CHICKEN JELLY SALAD.
(Honorable Mention).

1 small can chicken (Piggly Wiggly)
1 small bottle stuffed olives
1 package lemon jello
½ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon vinegar

Dissolve jello in one pint boiling water, then add vinegar. When cool add chopped chicken, celery and olives sliced thin. Mold and serve with mayonnaise.

MRS. D. F. WINDENBURG.
3133 Connecticut avenue.

CREAM BISCUIT.
(Honorable Mention).

4 cups of Washington Flour
1 egg (Sanico)
8 level measuring teaspoons baking powder
2 level teaspoons of salt
8 measuring tablespoons of crisco (Sanitary)
1½ cups of milk

Sift flour, baking powder and salt, three times. Cut in crisco with two knives or with finger tips. Beat egg and add to milk and add to flour mixture, mix to soft dough, be careful not to handle too much, put on a floured board and press down to about an inch and a half thick, cut with cutter and bake in a hot oven 10 to 15 minutes. This makes 24 biscuits. For a small family use half of recipe. These biscuits do not get hard. You can warm them over and they will be just as light as when first made.

MRS. M. L. TURNER.
Berwyn, Md.

PRUNE CAKE.
(Honorable Mention.)

1 cup sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs
3 tablespoons sour milk
1 cup prunes, cut fine
1 level teaspoon soda
1½ cupfuls flour (Washington Self-Rising)
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon each allspice and nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon cloves.

Cream sugar and butter, add well-beaten eggs and sour milk. Sift together flour and spices and pinch of salt. Add the cooked prunes, which have been cut very fine. Mix all together and, last, the soda mixed in a little hot water. Bake in thin sheet, cut in individual squares; place two squares together and fill and frost with stiff whipped cream, top with a candied cherry, or bake in two large or three small layers and put a brown sugar frosting between the layers and on top.

MRS. J. D. O'CONNELL.
934 I street northwest.

POPULAR CRUMB PIE.
(Honorable Mention.)

4 cups flour
3 cups sugar
¾ cup butter (American Stores), mixed fine

Take out 1 cup of this mixture and set it aside. To the remainder of the mixture add 3 eggs, 4 teaspoons baking powder, one cup sweet milk, stir thoroughly. Put into four greased pie pans. Divide the crumbs over the top of the four pies and bake.

Recipes Necessary for Week-end Menus.

AGAIN we have missed having the 13th fall on a Friday by the breadth of a hair! Therefore, we may smile the while we plan and execute our Sunday marketing, knowing the chicken will be neither tough nor burned, but done to a turn!

Nancy Carey.

Fricassee of Chicken.

Dress, clean and cut up a fowl. Simmer until tender in water to cover with a few stalks of celery, an onion and a sprig of parsley. Remove skin and take meat from the bones, or leave on the bones, if desired, and return to the liquid in which cooked. Simmer until stock is reduced to about two cupfuls. Arrange the chicken on a hot platter and surround with gravy, made by blending three tablespoons flour with milk, and salt and pepper to taste. Hot biscuits may be split and placed around the meat, or mounds of rice with gravy poured over them. Garnish with parsley and serve immediately.

Peas Francaise.

Soak fresh new peas for about 30 minutes. Drain and dry. Simmer a shredded heart of lettuce with a thinly chopped onion in a scant half cupful of butter for four or five minutes. Add the peas and saute them until the butter is used; then add enough boiling water to cover. After they have boiled a few minutes, season with salt to taste, then continue cooking until tender. Watch the water during the cooking so that there will be very little left when the peas are done. Thicken this with a paste made of a teaspoon of butter and one of flour. If peas are not strictly fresh they may be sweetened slightly. The lettuce or onion may be omitted if desired.

Graham Muffins.

Mix one cup graham flour, three-fourths cup sifted white flour, one teaspoon salt, five teaspoons baking powder and one-fourth cup sugar. Add to this mixture one egg, well beaten, one cup of sweet milk and, lastly, three tablespoons of melted butter. Bake for 20 minutes in buttered gem pans in a moderate oven.

Carrot Custard Pie.

2 cups cooked, mashed carrots
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg
Generous pinch salt
3 egg whites
3 egg yolks
¾ cup sugar
2 cups rich milk or cream

Add spices to the carrots and mix thoroughly. Prepare the pastry, place in deep pie pan and brush with unbeaten white of egg. Beat egg yolks and sugar together until light, add to the carrot mixture with milk and beat again. Just before pouring into lined pie pan, fold in whites of eggs, stiffly beaten. Bake in a hot oven for five minutes, then reduce heat to moderate. Bake from 40 to 45 minutes or until the filling is firm. Do not allow the filling to bubble.

Plain Pastry.

1½ cups flour
½ cup shortening
½ teaspoon salt
3 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Have all ingredients, the mixing bowl and utensils as cold as possible. Sift the flour and salt together, then cut in the shortening with two knives, leaving the shortening in thin slices or small pieces to give the desired flakiness. Add sufficient ice water to hold the mixture together. Handle the dough quickly and roll out lightly, taking from the bowl only half the mixture at a time, which will be enough for one crust. Prick or score the top crust to permit the steam to escape, thus preventing sogginess. Bake all pies in the lower grate of the oven, reducing the heat after five minutes.

Answers to Readers.

Dear Miss Carey: I read your column with a great deal of interest. My chief problem now is that I am overweight. I know I should weigh about ten pounds less than I do. I don't want to be skinny, but I should like to be able to wear clothes well. I am very tall, too, 5 feet 9 inches, to be exact. M. H.

I am glad you enjoy the column, M. H., and will most certainly try to help you work out your problem. I am sorry you have not told us your exact age—prying mortals that we are—but such knowledge is very necessary in this matter of correct weight. Because you are quite tall, I doubt if those extra pounds are so very "extra" after all. If you are young, they are a very good thing; if you are "growing older," not such a good thing, perhaps. But in any event, we shall be glad to help you and to send our folder of reducing suggestions immediately upon receipt of your letter and more detailed information about yourself. No more than a doctor may prescribe for a patient without knowledge exactly the case in hand, may we, who are so much less worthy, attempt to advise you without knowing something of the nature of your difficulties.

If you would wear your clothes well, my dear, make the most of your "5 feet 9." Don't ever slouch; learn to walk correctly and with grace.

Market Meanderings

By MILDRED REED BUNDY

Outstanding Values in Plain Foods Are Found in District Shops.

Outstanding values in plain every day foods engaged The Meanderer's astonished attention in several places this week. Even the orchid tulips now so alluring and cheap could not compete with the less esthetic but more necessary offerings as something important to report to housewives.

If you would make your food dollar stretch, spend it for breadstuffs, the food economists advise. In that way a penny buys its utmost in nourishment. Actual loaves of bread have been very low priced in the District for many months, and there is no sudden lowering of bread prices this week, but foods that are similar to bread in food content, such as macaroni and spaghetti, have seen startling reductions. Not long ago The Meanderer observed gleefully a sale of macaroni or spaghetti for the low price of three packages for 19 cents. Dozens of methods of preparing satisfying meals, complete in themselves, by using macaroni or spaghetti with cheese and vegetables, made it worth while to the budget-stretching housewife to purchase a large supply of these cheap, nourishing, energy-supplying foods when they are so low in price.

Bread actually is being given away in certain shops operated by a chain store concern this week. By buying a jar of peanut butter for 17 cents, the customer may obtain a loaf of bread free.

Rows and rows of canned tomato soup should go on the family pantry shelves at this time, for in two different markets The Meanderer has found two very good brands of that useful food selling for 5 cents a can. One brand is excellent, though not widely known, and another brand is older and nationally known and advertised. Until recently housewives have considered 7½ or 8 cents a can the lowest price for tomato soup. So many vitamins for a few nickels handily shelved and preserved are difficult to find in other foods.

Not to get too prosaic, The Meanderer would refer to a charming story about food in a current weekly. One of the highlights of the story is a salad of Belgian endive and watercress with French dressing and an elusive garlic tinge, mixed expertly at the dinner table by the hostess. She rubbed the cut garlic on a crust of bread, dropped it into a bowl of endive and cress, then poured in the French dressing, deftly mixed all the chilled leaves and stems into the oily complement, and served the salad with baked ham.

Belgian endive and watercress are always to be found in a certain market The Meanderer visits each week. The rather high cost of the endive is offset by the low cost of the watercress.

Cucumbers have brought high prices through the winter, often as much as 20 and 25 cents each, but they are plentiful now at 10 cents each.

Fresh lima beans continue to wear a high hat in the food markets, bringing as much as 75 cents in some food stands.

Swedish bread, made with rye flour, serves certain dietetic needs and combines well with certain highly flavored foods. It is found in a corner of a downtown market in large, round loaves, weighing about a pound, for 35 cents.

"You shouldn't need to pay more than 18 cents a pound for good leg of lamb," one meat marketer of 21 years' experience told The Meanderer this week. He proved it by showing lamb for sale in his shop at that price or lower. With lamb so reasonably priced, the booklet, "Lamb As You Like It," issued by the Department of Agriculture, free on request, of course, is an interesting addition to the kitchen library.

Veal has been a little scarcer this week on the local market than it has been all winter, but the price is not affected as yet, and the scarcity is expected to be only temporary. The lingering low price on veal is demonstrated by veal cutlet The Meanderer saw for 35 cents a pound. In the same shop veal chops are 20 to 25 cents a pound.

Beef cuts, too, continue to be gratifyingly low in price. In some shops good sirloin, round or porterhouse steaks are all to be had for same low cost, 25 to 30 cents a pound. The lowest-priced cut in beef is plate beef at 5 or 6 cents a pound, available to those who go to market in search of values.

Mrs. Gordon Wins $5 Prize For Rolls White as Snow

Snowflake Recipe Makes Light and Feathery Confection.

Color is one feature of the "snowflake rolls" which were adjudged winner of this week's Post $5 recipe award. Mrs. Elise L. Gordon, 617 Addison avenue, Virginia Highlands, submitted the formula.

Baked and mixed according to directions, this recipe should make rolls "as white as snow." They have another quality of snow; they are as light and feathery as the flakes of a winter storm.

The recipe follows:

Put into a mixing bowl 2 tablespoons of sugar, 1 tablespoon of salt, 1 heaping tablespoon of lard and 1 of butter; cream together thoroughly. Dissolve 1 Fleischman's yeast cake in a cup of warm water, pour into other mixture and add 2 tea cups of sweet milk. Gradually sift in flour, stirring with spoon, making a thick batter. Add well-beaten whites of 2 eggs (or 1 whole egg if you do not wish the rolls to be pure white). Beat hard until bubbles form. Lay aside spoon and work in more flour with hands till the consistency of soft biscuit dough. Grease over top and put in crock to rise. Keep in moderately warm place till it rises to top of jar, or to twice the original size. Make into small rolls (avoid kneading) and let rise to top of pans. Bake in slow oven (not over 300 degrees)."

High cost of Leavings means high cost of Living

YOU can't always eat all of the bird (or the roast) at one sitting—and if you can't keep the remainder safely, up jumps the meat bill. It's the same with milk, vegetables—all your foods.

But the problem of what to do with leftovers is easily solved. Get an Electric Refrigerator, and use them for other meals a day (or two days or three days) later. Investigation into the high cost of spoiled foods will prove how much this will save you.

The Electric Refrigerator simplifies your marketing problem by assuring constant food protection—and ends the problem of what to do with leavings. Make tasty luncheon and supper dishes with them—safely.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

ALTHOUGH the radio bill introduced by Representative Ewin L. Davis, of Tennessee, passed the House with a record vote and offered no radical changes aside from prohibiting lotteries to be broadcast, members showed such interest in the radio situation that they debated the bill all afternoon. Some of the highlights and observations, showing the trend of radio thought in the House, follow:

Mr. Davis (Democrat), of Tennessee: "On the question of the investment of the stations, I wish to call the attention of the members of the House to this fact. Even if you want to predicate this great potentiality on a sordid basis, if you want to consider it on a dollar-and-cents basis, remember this: All of the broadcasting stations in America combined only have $28,000,000 invested in their stations and all of their equipment and apparatus, whereas the great listening public of America have $1,000,000,000 invested in receiving sets (applause), and we are endeavoring to represent the American people and to protect their interests and not trying to do something that will give vested rights to a few of these commercial stations."

• • • •

Mr. Davis (in reply to a question from Mr. Horr (Republican), of Washington: "I think it is true now that the chain stations already control more than 75 per cent of the cleared channels."

• • • •

MR. CELLER (Democrat), of New York: "We must give credit where credit is due. Do you know, gentlemen, that we would be deprived of the finest programs that even reach the district of my distinguished friend from Texas (Mr. Blanton), programs from Europe, if you strike too severe a blow at the great stations. We must, for example, compliment the National Broadcasting Co. for its broadcasts of operas from the Metropolitan Opera House.

"If we place too many limitations upon the type and manner of those broadcasts we will get into a situation very much like that which obtains in Europe, where the owners of the radio sets will be compelled to pay a license in order to defray the expenses of broadcasting. I would not want to see this country get into a position where, in order to defray the expenses of radio broadcasting, the owners of radio sets would be compelled to pay a license."

• • • •

Mr. Lozier (Democrat), of Missouri: "About a year ago the brilliant former senator from Missouri, James A. Reed, was broadcasting over a Nation-wide hookup from Sedalia, Mo. In the course of his remarks impeaching the national Republican administration and its policies he was shut off by what was alleged to have been a distress signal and thousands of his auditors were deprived of the privilege of listening to his superb address. Evidently this interference was by some little, shriveled partisan pigmy with a soul so small that in eternity it would require a million years for it to fly over the point of a needle."

• • • •

MR. WILLIAMSON (Republican), of South Dakota: "Does not the commission have authority to regulate the character of advertising that goes over the air?"

Mr. Lehlbach (Republican), of New Jersey: "The commission has the right of granting or withholding or canceling licenses for broadcasting of all radio programs; the canceling of all broadcasts if they are not in the public interest. It has no specific authority to censor, but in the application of these broad general powers it is within its discretion how far they shall go."

Mr. Williamson: "So that if a radio station persists in sending out what the commission considers objectionable advertising, the commission could refuse to renew the license?"

Mr. Lehlbach: "Absolutely."

• • • •

Mr. Murphy (Republican), of Ohio: "I wish the committee would get right down to the root of things and say to the Radio Commission, 'You must give the small stations some consideration.' Not once has a wave length been taken from one of these great operating companies, controlling 50 per cent of the radio channels of this country today. I say to the chairman of this great committee that I hope he will find some way of taking care of the common fellow, and I am one of those, and my community is composed of just that kind of folks. We love our little radio station, and it has been taken away, and we can not get it back under the present existing law."

• • • •

YOU never can tell what Joe Cook, radio star and nationally famous comedian, will do next, but whatever it is, there is always a laugh in it. Joe is at the Palace Theater this week with his screamingly funny associate, Dave Chasen. When they were in Hollywood they gave a reception which was ultra-formal and apparently scrupulously correct in every detail.

Messrs. Cook and Chasen were at the head of the receiving line in faultless evening dress. There was only one thing wrong with the picture, however, and it took some time for the guests to discover it. One by one those present noticed to their astonishment that the two comedians wore neither shoes nor stockings.

The second and third acts of Gounod's opera, "Faust," will be broadcast over WRC this afternoon. George Thill, tenor, will sing the title role; Leon Rothier, bass, that of Mephistopheles, and Elizabeth Rethberg, soprano, Marguerite.

Mme. Tamara Dmitrieff, pianist, will play for fifteen minutes from the studios of Station WMAL tonight, at 9:15. Her program includes three Chopin numbers—"Fantaisie Impromptu," "Valse, C Sharp Minor" and "Black Key Etude."

MRS. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH will tell of her experiences in the flooded regions of China over a Nation-wide radio hookup on Sunday, February 21. The broadcast is in behalf of flood relief in China. It will mark Mrs. Lindbergh's debut in network broadcasting.

Dr. Edwin H. Silver, who will speak over WMAL tonight, did considerable research work during an extended trip abroad from which he just recently returned. In Florence, Italy, he visited the grave of Salvino D'Armato Armati, who was the inventor of eyeglasses. Dr. Silver also examined several ancient documents and records relating to the invention of spectacles, some of these dating back to the thirteenth century.

Beginning today WJSV begins a weekly series of fifteen-minute talks entitled "Political Reviews." Raymond S. Clapper, of the United Press, will open the series.

"IS your wife fond of listening in?"

Jane Corbin INTERPRETS the MODE

Hand-made French flowers make a lovely counterpane for miladi's bed! (A Dah-ray design.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—At least half of all of our lives is spent in bed. How can one deny, then, the importance of dressing that half of one's life appropriately?

• • • •

Awakening after the "little death" of sleep is hard enough at its loveliest. But opening one's dream-drugged eyes onto beauty and charm does so much to minimize!

Lovely ladies have always known this. Look at the beds and coverlets of other days in the museums! Whether it be China or France, England or Siam, 'twill be the same—beauty in the things that surrounded one's sleep.

Today even more so, does Miladi Elegante demand beauty and elegance in her boudoir. Just walk down the Champs Elysee or the Rue de la Paix, and glance at the coverlets, counterpanes and pillows that languish over gilt chairs behind the plate glass windows!

Or peep into the boudoir of any refined woman and see the loveliness with which she surrounds herself, no matter what her income. Dainty things her own clever fingers make, materials her good taste selects, colors her artistic sense has selected.

We spend half our lives in bed. Why not surround that half with beauty as well?

The sleepy-bye lady I sketched for you today is nestling down under a heap of flowers like a fairie princess! But 'tisn't flowers, really—'tis a gorgeous bedspread.

Fashion French Pronunciation.

Vienna, which calls itself "Weeyen" in its own country, is called "Vien-waa" in French, with the last syllable accented, and the "a" in the pronunciation of this last syllable, as the "a" in "father." This is so often badly pronounced, that I would just like for all good Dah-ray fans to pronounce it correctly.

The Beauty Sorceress

Says that once a week is not too much to treat your hair—and what an investment in future beauty! Once a week, hot olive oil at night—just enough to get into the scalp, not all over the head and pillow! The next morning, powdered orris root, or the next evening to sleep in again. Orris root absorbs oil and dirt. And these are brushed out with it. Then every other week a night of any tar preparation, a shampoo in the morning. Isn't that simple? And beautiful hair forever! Honestly! Besides prolonging the life of the hair you have and staving off grayness.

Au revoir.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

AN EXPERIENCE.

G. M. P. writes: I was much interested in the article recently on nervous breakdowns. I have read everything on that subject that I could because I have needed it and have been much benefited by some of my reading.

I think perhaps I had nearly everything in my background that has usually been considered conducive to nervous trouble. My parents had very little nervous stability, my home was broken by the death of my mother; I lived with grandparents who were very strict, fault-finding, melancholy, and pessimistic. Consequently I grew up sensitive, feeling that no one liked me or wanted me, with habits of dwelling on unhappy things, worrying, and expecting the worst. My compensations were at school and church, where I excelled in my studies and music.

Marriage and children made me somewhat happier because I felt wanted and needed, but I still had my bad habits, and a difficult mother-in-law and severe sickness of my children made me more nervous, so that even our family doctor said that he didnt wonder that I was nervous.

However, when in my late 30's I was so bad that I felt almost continually depressed and found it practically impossible to think of cheerful things, and unjust criticisms would constantly rankle in my mind. I knew that somehow I must overcome this trouble, or it would get the best of me. Of course, I knew I should not do these things, but how to stop? That is where doctors' advice often fails.

I got hold of some literature. The claims seemed so extravagant and unreasonable that at first I doubted the value of any of it. Later I saw articles in other magazines on mental hygiene and similar subjects. I discovered the underlying idea in all of them was the same—to cultivate the habit of thinking thoughts of cheerfulness, of faith, confidence, courage, relaxation, and quiet serenity.

At first some of the affirmations suggested seemed foolish, but I found that repeating statements containing those thoughts does help to form the habit. I found, too, that I could not wait until I was in some hard trouble and expect to overcome my nervousness. It was only as I built up these good habits day by day, little by little, that I had any success in getting over the hard places. "The momentum of a habit" is a phrase I heard the other day that seemed fitting.

I don't claim that I have overcome all my nervousness, or that I expect to ever fully overcome it. But I know I am improving in spite of its being so hard to teach an old dog new tricks, and I am determined to go on improving and what I can't help I shall not worry about.

I do think that doctors would help a lot of they could suggest things to read of the right type for their nervous patients. But I suppose many patients would think the remedy worse than the disease.

REPLY.

As you have discovered, there is but one cure for nervous breakdown. That cure is training. In the last analysis the patient must cure himself. Others can do no more than lead. Habits are changed from within.

EPILEPSY.

A. writes: I wish to indorse the theory of induced heat in epilepsy. In fever an epileptic avoids the convulsive state. In recurring artificial fever he might. Consequent fatigue is the unknown quantity. I believe epileptics have a dulled temperature sense, that their temperature responses are slow. Fatigue is hard to gauge, especially in an epileptic who rarely relaxes in a real sense. A hot bath in a well-ventilated room in a tub deep enough to afford complete muscular relaxation should be beneficial.

But steam baths with extreme humidity would bring on convulsions. I believe. From observation I would say that 90 per cent relative humidity at temperatures above 75 degrees Fahrenheit increases the frequency of convulsions, but that moisture content around 25 grains per pound of dry air is beneficial and cold air is to be preferred.

REPLY.

Your views are worthy of consideration in the light of your considerable experience, and your investigation and study.

WHEN TO CONCEDE A TRICK.

OFTEN the success of a contract depends upon the coordination of the time factor in the loss of a trick. This fact, while generally early learned in the life of every contract player, somehow seems to need constant reiteration in order to drive the point home, but the lesson is so worthwhile that I think it is well to repeat it here.

1—A nuisance bid, pure and simple, hoping to prevent the vulnerable opponents from reaching game.

2—A close choice between hearts bid by South and bidding notrump. South probably holds five hearts and thus King-six should be adequate support.

3—South, having four heart tricks, rebids that suit.

West opened the King of diamonds and Dummy won with the Ace. After drawing three rounds of trumps, it was apparent that South must still lose one diamond and one spade, as well as a club trick. The success of his contract probably depends upon the division of the club suit. If the clubs are divided 3-2 in the adverse hands, then, of course, the suit can be established with the loss of but one trick in it and this trick should be surrendered at once. South, therefore, led the deuce of clubs, West played the five and Dummy played the trey. East won the trick and returned a diamond. The diamond return was trumped by the declarer, who later was compelled to concede a trick to the Ace of spades.

It is needless to point out that if South had not established the clubs, his contract could not have been made.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Question: When it becomes apparent to one of the partners that the combined hands hold 5½ hopor-tricks, how does he get this information to his partner?

Answer: He makes a jump bid in a new suit, which is forcing, or, lacking a biddable suit, bids game in his partner's suit if strong enough; otherwise he bids three notrump.

What Today Means to You

"AQUARIUS."

IF February 13 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 11:35 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 4:15 p. m., and from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m.

The influence of the stars on February 13 trace out the following course of probability; those who have an interest in and capacity for hard work will be in their element—it is not a red letter day for loafers. It will be a time of preparation, rather than a time of attainment.

The child born on this February 13 will be a veritable warrior and will, very early in life, show a tendency to boss the household. It will be bubbling over with energy and time should not be allowed to lie idle on its hands. It will be bold, brave and venturesome.

Born February 13, you have a reputation for dependability and a goodly share of responsibilities will be handed over to you at a youthful age. It is a sure bet that any task assigned to you will be both right and on time. You do not have a departmental mind or spirit, but keep your eyes and ears open to possibilities and interests outside your own immediate field of endeavor. You do not intend to be asleep when opportunity calls at your door. You are a systematic and tidy worker and do not have too many ends scattered about.

Life will not be one continuous sweet song for you, but you somehow manage to keep calm and smiling. You have a sensitivity to values that are not material and not intellectual, but purely of the feeling nature; your spiritual and material development have gone hand in hand. You can keep your feet firmly planted on the earth and still appreciate the glories of above. You are capable of both reveling in the food of a banquet and rhapsodizing over a beautiful sunset.

You are not a success at small talk; for the most part you think it waste of time. Thinkers and students greatly number among your coterie of friends. You will know how to hold the affections of your mate, if they prove worthy of the effort. You will forgive no one, however, "seventy times seven."

Successful people born February 13:

James Norman Hill, railroad official.

Edwin Hunter Pendleton Arden, actor-playwright.

Wallace Bruce Amsbary, lecturer.

J. F. Fargo, expressman.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Which Man Shall It Be?

MY Dear Frances McDonald: I, too, am one of your daily readers and have gleaned much to my advantage from your advice to others. I really am not asking for advice, just would like to hear the opinions from those who have married men similar to those I describe as possibilities for my marriage. I have not found what I have been looking for since I lost my first love. Many men have loved me since and several asked marriage, but I have not been able to love again. I am near my middle twenties and although not lacking in masculine companionship feel I must decide within a year or two, as each year puts the fatal step further from mind. I want a home, marriage and family, but also I want to be in love.

I have two possibilities at the present date and have been weighing both for almost a year, having discarded others during that time.

Number one, I have known well for over a year, seen him as much as every day for a month or more at a time. See him at least once a week and more often suiting our convenience. We are very informal at all times. Feel free to be ourselves whenever together. I know he has loved me almost from the beginning and my feeling for him has grown with time. He is a bit younger (I seem to care for younger men), lacks a college education which I have, holds himself very well with people of any class. Always neat in appearance and person. Has never made enough to support a wife. If we marry I must continue working and save all I make for the future. He will pay the rent and food and all connected with the household and do half the house duties. All that is his is mine and vice versa. I would have love and absolute companionship in everything, but nothing material.

Number two cares for me in a silent way. Is much older. Has the same education and a very good position. Likes most everything I do, but that spark of enjoying things to the utmost is lacking. That marriage would mean a beautiful home, garden and children. My life would be wrapped in those and the husband a provider and overseer. Or am I mistaken? Would he become the loving companion after marriage? If so that would be the better choice, would it not? Or should I wait for what I am seeking? "BETH."

Well, how about "enjoying life" for another year or two? Why the rush when as yet your heart dictates no positive direction? We are, of course, in favor of the older man. Our reason? Well, chiefly because we know how necessary it is that a woman look up, not down, to the man in her life. The man who can not carry his share, do the man's part, can never command more than commiserating sympathy from the woman who must overlook his inabilities. It is a makeshift sort of association. The more capable the woman, the more pitiable the plight of the man in her eyes. He is like one outclassed in the contest. She may pity him, may be kind to him. But she will never bear him the whole-souled respect that a woman should hold for the man who possesses her. The boy in question, might in later life be able to do the man's part and know that respect. But if you marry now his hopes of ever knowing what a real man feels like will be doomed. He will always be the lame duck who can not do what others can. Is that fair to even him? And is it fair to yourself to elect the questionable role of the woman who has accepted a lame duck for lord and master?

You must know how you have felt toward the men in your life who were unable as lovers to defend their title. The man who was too poor to send flowers might have been a king among men but he was only poor old Pete to you. Yet to some girl who was not accustomed to flowers he might have seemed a real knight. How terrible then for him to have married you—and spent his days as "poor old Pete." We may argue that kind hearts are more than money in the bank, but we are dealing with fact not fiction in this column, and the fact is that the man who can not do the things a woman expects, never can gain from that woman more than sympathetic tolerance—and we wish to go on record as stating that that is a pretty tepid emotion on which to build a marriage.

Will some one rise up and smite us if we are as usual entirely wrong?

Have you submitted your problem to this column? Frances McDonald has been selected to sit as judge in family court in New York City, because of her insight and experience with problems of marriage. Her advice is free to readers of this column. You need not sign your name.

Indoor—Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

IS there any trick about making shrub branches bloom in the house? A. H. L.

No. Most spring-flowering shrubs can be forced into bloom in the house. Merely place the cut branches in water and allow them to open naturally.

Please tell me the name of the variety of rose that is adaptable to hedge use. MRS. JOHN C. G.

The rugosa rose is the variety adaptable to hedge use. Unlike most roses, this one has no insect enemies and is free from diseases. The flowers, according to the variety you plant, may be pink, white or crimson, either single or double. The pips of the rugosa rose are very colorful and remain intact all winter.

I have a number of spreading trees on my lawn, but have ample room for two more specimens. These two new trees I would like to be of varieties which are pyramidal in form. Please tell of one or two varieties.

MRS. LESLIE G. K.

Pyramidal English oak, ruercuc robur fastigiata and pyramidal white birch, betula pendula fastigiata are both desirable trees. Lombardy poplar and the maidenhair tree, ginkgo biloba, are also popular and practical.

I have a natural rock garden located on the slope of a hill. It has several well-established white and pink flowers, but practically no yellow or blue ones. Please tell me of two blue and two yellow varieties which are not hard to raise and not too hard to find. MRS. JULIUS F. W.

Campanula carpatica, campanula garganica and myosotis alpreatris are three splendid rock-garden plants. Among the yellows I would suggest your getting trollius laxus, alyssum saxatile and leontopodium Alpinum.

I am anxious to have my geniatra flower for Easter. The plant seems to be doing very well, but so far I see no signs of buds. Should the plant be given much water and sun at this time? MAUDE G. T.

Keep the plant in a warm, sunny, well-ventilated place and water it every day. Keep the soil in the pot quite loose and at this time give it some stimulation in the form of liquid manure.

I have an old-fashioned smilax vine which is not doing very well in our new home. I have it in a north window because, being only a foliage vine and bearing no flower, I suppose this location suits it best. Am I mistaken about this? MRS. JOSEPH F. L.

Yes. The slimax is a Southern vine demanding a great deal of warm sunshine. Better move the plant to a southern window, water it every day and, keeping it warm, give it plenty of fresh air. After moving it to a summer place, try giving it three applications of weak liquid manure at intervals of ten days.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

TINY TOT'S NEEDS.

Here's a cunning bloomer dress for little girls of 1, 2, 4 and 6 years.

It has those comfortable raglan shoulders. And the sleeves may be long or short just as you please about it. The fullness falling from the neckline, allows plenty of freedom for romping about.

And just think—all you've got to do is join the back and front of the dress and the raglan sleeves. It's as simple as A, B, C, and the saving in cost is enormous.

Style No. 179 requires 2⅞ yards of 39-inch material with one-half yard of 32-inch contrasting for the 4-year size.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Address Fashion Department, The Washington Post, Fifth avenue and Twenty-third street, New York City.

A NEW DAILY
Cartoon Feature
Beginning Monday, Feb. 15, in The Washington Post
"The Capital's Greatest NEWSpaper."
With a true-to-life drawing and a subtle phrase, Denys Wortman will start your day with a smile—every morning in The Washington Post.

1,000 WILL ATTEND ST. MATTHEW MASS

Communion Breakfast to Follow for Men of 55 Local Catholic Parishes.

Nothing is being left undone to make the communion breakfast of the League of Laymen's Retreats to be held at the Mayflower Hotel on Sunday morning, February 28, a success. Leo A. Codd, of St. Matthew's Parish, is chairman of the general committee on arrangements and he has surrounded himself with an able corps of assistants to insure the success of the affair.

The mass, which will be attended by more than 1,000 men from the 55 local parishes, is to be said at St. Matthew's Church on Sunday morning, February 28, at 8 o'clock. The Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, and head of the Catholic Church in this city, will pontificate. Following the mass breakfast will be served at the Mayflower.

A similar breakfast was served in Baltimore last month, when over 900 men attended. Washington retreatants hope to outdo this number.

The purpose of the mass and breakfast is to stimulate interest in the retreat movement among the Catholic men of the city.

Catholic Radio Hour.

Dr. John Keating Cartwright, professor of church history at Catholic University and assistant rector of St. Patrick's Church here in the city, will begin his series of three sermons on the Washington Catholic radio hour tomorrow.

The soloists will be Miss Florence Yocum and Frederick Nolan. The Boys' Sanctuary Choir will sing under the direction of Prof. Harry Wheaton Howard.

The Washington Catholic radio hour is broadcast every Sunday afternoon from the Church of the Immaculate Conception, at Eighth and N streets northwest, through Station WOL, and is directed by the Rev. Francis J. Hurney.

Other distinguished clergy are scheduled to follow Dr. Cartwright, among whom are the Rev. W. Coleman Nevils, rector of Georgetown University; the Right Rev. Msgr. James H. Ryan, rector of Catholic University, and the Rev. John Fenlon, superior of all the Sulpician Fathers in the United States.

Dr. Nevils to Preach.

The Rev. Dr. W. Coleman Nevils, president of Georgetown University, will occupy the pulpit at St. Matthew's Catholic Church tomorrow and on successive Sundays through March 13. He will preach at the regular 10 o'clock and 11 o'clock masses on each Sunday, on the general subject of "Enemies of Christ."

The topic of his first sermon tomorrow is "Judas the Proud." On successive Sundays his themes will be "Caiphas the Hypocrite," "Pilate the Compromiser," "Herod the Worldling" and "The Fickle Multitude."

Two years ago, during the Lenten season, Dr. Nevils preached from the pulpit of St. Matthew's. The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Buckey is pastor of the church.

Father Masterson's Lectures.

At the Church of Our Lady of Victory, Conduit and Reservoir roads, the Rev. Peter V. Masterson, of Copley Hall, Georgetown University, will deliver a series of talks every Sunday afternoon, beginning tomorrow, at 4:30 p. m., during the holy season of Lent. The general title is "Christ and Sinners."

The Fathers of St. Bonaventure's College, Order of Minor Conventuals, Catholic University, will give a series of talks every Friday at 8 p. m., on the "Seven Last Words of Christ on the Cross."

At Little Flower Chapel.

At the Chapel of the Little Flower, Glen Echo, Md., the Fathers of St. Bonaventure's College, Order of Minor Conventuals, Catholic University, will deliver a series of talks every Sunday, beginning tomorrow, at 8 p. m., during Lent. The general title is "The Christian Home."

Services at St. Mary's.

During the season of Lent at St. Mary's Church, on Wednesday evenings at 7:30, there will be the recitation of the rosary, sermon and benediction. The sermons will be preached by Redemptorist fathers from St. Mary's Church, Annapolis, Md.

The stations of the cross will be held on Sunday and Friday evenings at 7:30, and on Thursday afternoons at 3 o'clock. Benediction will follow each service.

Dr. Perkins to Preach Next Week in Boston

Dr. Frederick W. Perkins, minister of the Universalist National Memorial Church, will be in Boston next week, preaching at the noonday services of King's Chapel, from Tuesday to Friday.

On Monday he will preach at the Lenten service of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches, and on Wednesday at the Lenten service of Mount Vernon Congregational Church and in the evening at the Universalist Church of Melrose, Mass.

Young People Study Early Christian Church

The Young People's Friday Night Class of Central Presbyterian Church has begun the study in the history of the early Christian church, using the Book of Acts and the Epistles of Paul as the basis of the study. The class is open to young people 16 years of age and upward. The pastor, Dr. James H. Taylor, is the teacher.

Eldbrooke Methodists Plan Loyalty Campaign

A church loyalty campaign will begin in Eldbrooke Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow morning, to last until Easter. Each member will be urged to attend divine services at least once weekly during that period. The Ladies' Guild is sponsoring the movement and will seek to visit every member.

Church to Observe Lincoln Day.

The 123d anniversary celebration of the birth of Abraham Lincoln and the twenty-first anniversary of the Lincoln Mutual Relief Association and sermon will be held at the Nineteenth Street Baptist Church, corner of Nineteenth and I streets northwest, tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock.

Washington Is Topic Of Takoma Park Pastor

The Rev. William E. LaRue, pastor of Takoma Park Baptist Church, is well into his series of 12 sermons on Gen. Washington. The purpose of these sermons is that the people may become acquainted with the character and precepts of Washington's life and character and be inspired to perpetuate his high ideals in our common life. The story of his life and virtues can not be quickly exhausted, for said Jared Sparks, "It is a happy combination of rare talents and qualities, the harmonious union of the intellectual and moral powers, rather than the dazzling splendor of any one trait, which constitute the grandeur of his character."

Practice of Prayer, Text Of Luther Place Sermons

Dr. Carl C. Rasmussen, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church, will begin a series of special sermons tomorrow morning on the general theme: "The Practice of Prayer."

In the evening, Dr. Rasmussen will give the first of a series of Lenten sermons on "Sins That Crucified Christ," the subject being: "Envy."

Christian Science Churches

"Soul" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all the Churches of Christ Scientist tomorrow. The golden text is from Lamentations III:25, 26: "The Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him. It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord." Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "For the Lord God is a sun and shield; the Lord will give grace and glory; no good thing will be withheld from them that walk uprightly." (Psalms LXXXIV:11.) The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The divine mind is the soul of man, and gives man dominion over all things" (page 307).

PRESBYTERIANS SET FOR MISSIONARY DAY

Foremost Ministers and Officials Will Speak Here Tomorrow.

Tomorrow is Missionary Day with the Presbyterian churches of the National Capital. Some of the foremost ministers, missionaries and officials in the church will be here to preach from these pulpits. A program of unusual interest has been prepared by the committee on foreign missions of the presbytery, of which the Rev. Frank S. Niles is chairman. As announced this program is as follows:

At 3:30 p. m. at the Gunton-Temple Church there will be a mass meeting for young people at which Miss Frances V. Rodgers, of the Philippines, will speak. S. Franklin Mack, secretary for young people, will also give an address, "How Wide Is Your World." The meeting is open to all.

The Rev. Dr. Cleland B. McAfee, former moderator of the Presbyterian Church and at present secretary of the board of foreign missions, will speak at the Sherwood Church in the morning and at the Metropolitan Church in the evening.

The Rev. Dr. George E. Scott, secretary of the board of foreign missions, will speak at the Eckington Church in the morning and at the Clarendon, Va., Church in the evening.

The Rev. Dr. William H. Gleysteep, of Peiping, China, will speak at the Peck Memorial Church in the morning and at the Washington Heights Church in the evening.

The Rev. C. H. Hazlett, of India, will speak at the Arlington Church in the morning and at the Eckington Church in the evening.

The Rev. R. E. Jenness, of China, will speak at the Darnestown Church in the morning and at the Eastern Church in the evening.

The Rev. Harold H. Henderson, of Taiku, Korea, will speak at the Kensington Church in the morning and at the Georgetown Church in the evening.

The Rev. Paul Abbott, of Chefoo, China, will speak at the Tacoma Park Church Wednesday morning and at the Georgetown Church, Thursday evening.

The Rev. R. E. Jenness will speak at the Western Church, Thursday evening.

Petworth Revival Drawing Crowds

The revival at Petworth Methodist Church, of which the Rev. Robert L. Wood is pastor, is nightly drawing large crowds, and the preaching of the evangelist, the Rev. P. Raymond Powers, of Chicago, is attracting attention. Some special group of people attend each service, and make a contribution of helpfulness to the service.

More than 100 members of the church are visiting in community those who are not members of the church, yet are on its constituency list. These visitors are recruited from among the membership and are already reporting success.

Dr. Powers will preach each evening during the coming week except Saturday. The program for the week and his subjects are as follows:

Monday (happy hour night), subject, "Heaven, Where and What Is It?" Tuesday (Sunday school night), "The Great Investment;" Wednesday (official night), "Modern Man, What Think Ye of Christ?" Thursday (family night), "The Cross and Redemption;" Friday (Petworth night), "Washington on the Auction Block."

National Evangelists To Conduct Revival

The plans for the coming national revival crusade to begin February 21, and run during the bicentennial celebration, will be announced tomorrow by the Rev. Harry L. Collier, at the Full Gospel Tabernacle, North Capitol and K streets. A number of nationally known evangelists are coming to assist in this great religious effort. The Masonic Temple Auditorium has been secured for the crusade, and services will be conducted there nightly, except Saturdays, for some months. Cooperation from Christian friends everywhere is welcomed.

The pastor will preach at the Tabernacle tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., at the popular evangelistic service. Congregational singing and special music numbers feature the evening service.

St. Margaret's Program For Week Announced

The Rev. Robert Shores, assistant rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, will begin a Lenten series, "Christian Contacts." Tuesday will bring the first of the rector's Lenten series, "The Mutual Relationship of Rector and People," and Wednesday the Rev. Berkeley Griffith will begin a series on "Trial and Discipline."

On Monday and Tuesday the service will be evening prayer and on Wednesday the litany. Only one service will be held on Thursday—Holy Communion at 11 a. m. At 4:30 on Friday afternoon will come the young people's service, consisting of the offices of instruction and an address by Dr. Smith on "The Five Objects of the Christian Nurture Series."

Tree Will Be Planted By Albright Church

The Bicentennial program of Albright Evangelical Church will include the planting of a Washington memorial elm Sunday, February 21, at 10:30 a. m. The Sunday school will participate in the program and each department will be represented in the planting.

The music for the service will be directed by Dewey Gardner, while the superintendent of the school, Wilbert Snyder, will preside.

"The Penitent" to Be Sung.

At the 11 o'clock service at Epiphany Chapel tomorrow Van de Water's musical setting of "The Penitent" will be rendered at the offertory. The soprano soloist will be Mrs. F. J. Griffin, of Asheville, N. C.

COMMUNION CALL ISSUED BY BISHOP

Fellowship Breakfast in Plan for Epiphany Service on February 22.

A call to the men and boys of the Episcopal diocese of Washington to begin their commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington Monday, February 22, by attending corporate communion in the Church of the Epiphany, was sounded yesterday by Bishop James E. Freeman. "While George Washington was a great patriot and soldier, he was also a vestryman and an outstanding Christian man," Bishop Freeman wrote in a letter sent to the rectors of all parishes and to a group of leading laymen. "It seems most fitting that this notable anniversary which ushers in the Bicentennial year with all its attendant celebrations should be marked by the gathering of fathers and sons in a great corporate communion."

The service, which will be the fourth annual commemoration of this character, will be followed by a fellowship breakfast to be held at the Hotel Washington, where addresses will be made on "Washington, the Patriot and Churchman," by Bishop Freeman and George Wharton Pepper, formerly United States senator from Pennsylvania.

Junior members of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew are coming from as far away as Fairmont, W. Va., and from towns in Virginia to attend the service and fellowship gathering. A special invitation has been extended to students at the Virginia Theological Seminary in Alexandria, the Episcopal High School and St. Alban's, the National Cathedral School for Boys. The Rev. Albert H. Lucas, headmaster at St. Alban's, has joined with Bishop Freeman in urging the fathers of the boys under his charge to attend with their sons.

A special effort is being made to have Pohick Church, of which George Washington served as vestryman, represented at the gathering by the rector and a group of the boys in his parish.

Arrangements for the service and breakfast were discussed at a meeting of the general committee under the chairmanship of H. Lawrence Choate this week.

Soliloquy of Peter Is Topic of Dr. Sizoo

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock Dr. Joseph R. Sizoo will begin a series of Sunday evening Lenten sermons at New York Avenue Presbyterian Church on the figures around the Cross. These sermons will be in the form of a dramatization of those who had a part in the Crucifixion of Jesus. The purpose of this series is to study the persons who had a part in the story of Calvary. The general theme of these sermons is, "Seven Soliloquies on Calvary." The first sermon will be "Peter, the Soliloquy of a Deserter."

Dr. Sizoo, on next Thursday morning, begins his sixth annual series of Lenten lectures in the Mayflower Hotel at 11:30 o'clock. These lectures will be broadcast over Station WMAL. Each lecture will begin with a musical prelude. The theme for these lectures will be "Pathways to Certainty," and the following subjects will be presented: 1, "God;" 2, "Prayer;" 3, "The Bible;" 4, "Confession;" 5, "The Cross," and 6, "Immortality."

Boy Scouts Will Attend First-Covenant Church

The Boy Scouts of the District will celebrate their twenty-second anniversary Sunday by attending the service at the Covenant-First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Albert Joseph McCartney will deliver a sermonette to them during the service entitled "The Great Liberator"—a story based on the life of the great emancipator—Abraham Lincoln. Troop No. 25 meets at the church each Friday evening.

During Lent each Thursday evening Dr. McCartney will give a talk on the Twelve Disciples. Next Thursday evening Dr. McCartney will take as his subject "Simon Peter, the Most Well Known of the Apostles."

Character of Judas Topic at St. Andrew's

At St. Andrew's Episcopal Church during Lent the rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, will preach a series of sermons on Wednesday evenings on "Men Who Crucify Christ."

The character study for this coming Wednesday is Judas.

Children's Service Arranged for Lent

A special children's service will be held at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church at V street and New Hampshire avenue northwest each Friday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock during Lent. The rector, the Rev. A. J. Wilder, will conduct the services.

RELIGIOUS SEMINAR HERE NEXT MONTH

Newton D. Baker to Address Assembly on Understanding of Faiths.

The country's first national conference aimed at the eradication of religious prejudices and the promotion of mutual understanding among faiths is to be held in Washington, March 7 to 9, under the auspices of a distinguished committee of Catholics, Jews and Protestants, with a long list of nationally known speakers on the three-day program. Newton D. Baker, of Ohio, is to be the final speaker on a national radio hook-up, and President Hoover has been invited to open the conference at the Willard Hotel on March 7. The general theme of the conference is "Religious Liberty and Mutual Understanding."

This history-making seminar, which will include Canada, the first event of such wide scope ever held in the United States, is the outgrowth of a series of smaller seminars which proved so successful that the National Conference of Jews and Christians decided to push still further in efforts to combat interreligious distrusts and antagonism. The main purpose of the committee, which was organized in 1928 and held its first seminar at Columbia University in 1929, has been stated as follows by Mr. Baker, who is one of the three co-chairmen:

"The National Conference of Jews and Christians associates a number of thoughtful and earnest people in an effort to analyze and allay the prejudices which exist between Protestants, Catholics and Jews. The conference seeks to moderate and finally to eliminate a system of prejudices which we have in part inherited and which disfigures and distorts our business, social and political relations."

The list of 100 sponsors and advisers of the National Conference carries the names of some of the outstanding leaders in American life, including former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York; Owen D. Young, President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia; Jane Addams, John H. Finley, associate editor of the New York Times; Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution; Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, jr., Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ogden L. Mills, Secretary of the Treasury; former Ambassador Henry Morgenthau; Chief Justice Hughes, Chief Judge Benjamin N. Cardozo, of the New York Court of Appeals; the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, and scores of others whose names are notable in business, politics, letters, journalism, law and education.

Among the prominent men of Washington who are on the program are: Bishop James E. Freeman, Rabbi Abram Simon, Dr. John A. Ryan, Byron Price and the Rev. Russell J. Clinchy.

Contralto to Sing at All Souls' Church.

Flora Brylawski, contralto, will assist Lewis Corning Atwater, organist, in a program of music by American composers at All Souls' Unitarian Church tomorrow afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Mormon President To Speak on Radio

Quartet Will Sing in Program Over WJSV Given Tomorrow.

President Heber J. Grant, of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, will speak over WJSV, at Mount Vernon Hills, Va., tomorrow, from 5 to 5:30 p. m. The address will be the first of a series of radio programs to be conducted under the auspices of the Washington branch of the Mormon Church during the coming months.

A mixed quartet, consisting of Mrs. Melba Condie Osmond, Mrs. Ruby Jeppson McQuarrie, James K. Knudson and Jesse R. Smith, will sing "Come, Come Ye Saints" and other famous Mormon songs that were composed while the pioneers of that church were engaged in their long trek to Utah in 1847. Mrs. Osmond and Mr. Smith will also render solos, accompanied by Mrs. Lona Stratford Hyde.

While in Washington Mr. Grant, whose headquarters are at Salt Lake City, will inspect the new church which the Mormon Church is erecting at Sixteenth street and Columbia road.

2 GIVEN SIX MONTHS ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Another Gets 3-Year Term for Assault; Cases Are Heard at Marlboro.

Two men were sentenced to six months in jail on liquor charges yesterday and another was given a sentence of three years for assault and battery when convicted in Marlboro police court.

Joseph Simms, of Marlboro, was sent to the House of Correction for three years for assaulting Ira Whittington. His previous police record accounts for the severity of the sentence, according to Judge J. Chew Sheriff.

Louis Franklyn, of Washington, who was caught after a 15-mile chase from Priest bridge to Stallings corner on the Marlboro pike, drew one of the six-month sentences. Additional charges of speeding, operating a smoke-screen, and having no registration card were dismissed. He is said to have had 14 cases of liquor in his machine. William Van Meter, of Severn, Md., received the other six-month term, for five cases. He is just out of jail where he served three months for hit-and-run, according to police.

Claude Holmes, arrested when his auto crashed into a garage after a 15-mile chase on the Defense highway, was fined $286 on liquor and traffic charges. The man, who says he lives at 30 Pierce street northwest, was fined $200 for possession, $50 for a smoke-screen, $25 for reckless driving, $10 for having no license, and $1 for having no registration card.

Arthur Kennedy, also of Washington, was dismissed on charges of possession of the 25 cases found in the car in which he was riding with Holmes. Neither of the men were injured when their machine crashed through the wall of Tatum's garage in Hyattsville.

Summerall Resignation Causes Citadel Meeting

Charleston, S. C., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Call for a special meeting of the board of visitors of the Citadel for Monday was issued by John P Thomas, chairman, as a result of the resignation of Gen. Charles P. Summerall, which was received yesterday.

Eleven board members besides Mr. Thomas were summoned by telegraph. No announcement was made on possible action in selecting a successor or on the board's attitude toward the resignation.

New Test Opposed In Arlington's Bar

Association Fails to Take Action on Proposed Legislation, However.

The Arlington County Bar Association, in special session at the courthouse yesterday, failed to take action on proposed legislation now before the General Assembly, sponsored by the American Bar Association, requiring citizens of Virginia to have had two years prelegal work and to be a graduate from an accredited law college before presenting themselves for the State bar examination. It was declared by members to be class legislation. The association, upon motion of Edgar W. Pumphrey, went on record as favoring the raising of the requirements for admission.

State Senator John W. Rust and Delegate Hugh Reid are asked, in a motion presented by H. W. Dudley and adopted, to use their influence to having removed from a bill now before the General Assembly a section repealing the county court act.

The bill, it was explained, provides for the creating of a trial justice court for all counties, and includes a section repealing the creation of county courts.

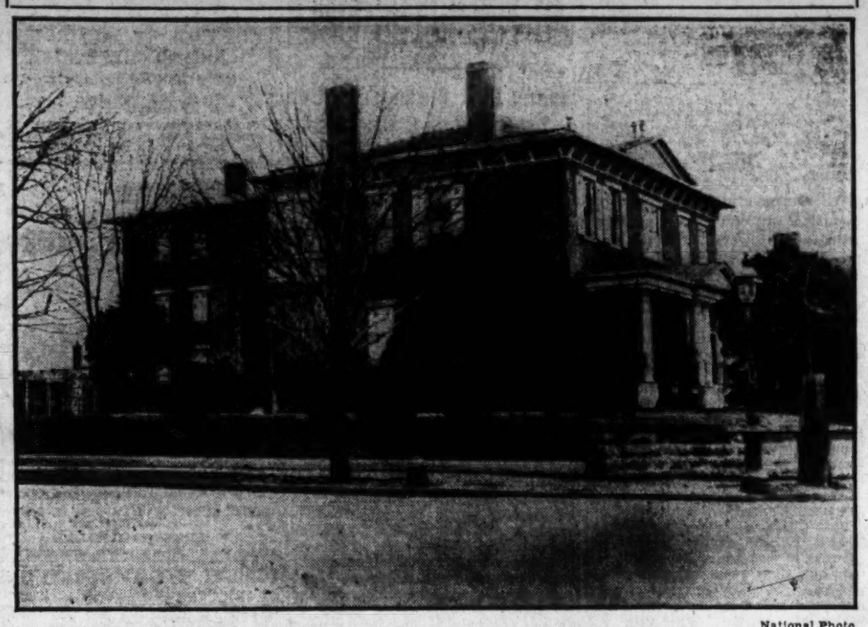
When Washington Was Younger—No. 193



National Photo.

WHERE the Highview Apartments now are located at Thirteenth and Clifton streets, the old home pictured above once stood. It was the home of Gen. John A. Logan, who named it Calumet Place in honor of the avenue on which he lived in Chicago.

The house was built in 1848 and at that time was an estate of 150 acres in the suburbs of Washington. The grounds about the homestead and far below on Florida avenue were laid out in walks and gardens with magnificent old trees and an artificial pond or lake near what is now Florida avenue.

Dr. Stone built the house, and it was known as the Stone Hospital. The granite pillars were brought from Scotland in a sailing vessel, and the fine old box trees, of which there were many before the property was subdivided by Senator John Sherman, were brought from England.

Mr. Hoyt Sherman owned Calumet for a time, then known as the Stone mansion. Later Senator Sherman held it, cutting the property surrounding the house to one acre. Many beautiful trees were sacrificed and one wing on the east side of the house, as also the old Negro quarters in the rear.

In 1885 Gen. Logan, one of the Civil War heroes, bought the property from Senator Sherman, paying down $5,000 on the price agreed upon. William Jennings Bryan lived there while he was Secretary of State. It was torn down only a few years ago to make way for the apartment house there now.

CHEST CREEPS STEP NEARER DRIVE GOAL

Contributions Trickle In as Officials Reemphasize Need of Total Amount.

Community Chest Standing

Received yesterday ...	$1,073.00
Previously reported...	2,410,562.84
Total to date	2,411,635.84
Campaign goal	2,601,000.00
Still needed	189,364.16

Gifts may be left at Community Chest headquarters, 223 Investment Building.

Washington's Community Chest crept slightly closer to its goal yesterday, with pledges amounting to $1,073 being reported at Chest headquarters, 223 Investment Building. This included a belated report of $750 from region 5 of the Metropolitan unit, which handled the solicitation of the colored residents of Washington, under the chairmanship of Dr. Kelly Miller, of Howard University. The balance came from new and additional gifts from persons who had not given or who, having contributed, desired to give more.

While heartened at this continued evidence of interest in the Chest by these additional givers, Cnest officials were still planning ways and means by which the nearly $190,000 still needed can be raised. It was pointed out that relief needs are steadily increasing, this being attributed to the fact that many people who have been managing to get along without aid have at last found themselves without resources and are compelled to ask for help, in many instances for the first time.

If family welfare organizations, which bear the brunt of the relief work, continue to face increasing needs in proportion to the increases noted since the beginning of the year, it was pointed out, the funds allotted to them will be totally insufficient to carry out adequately the task that confronts them. The Chest, officials say, must raise the balance of the budget fixed as its goal if welfare service is to be adequately financed for Washington.

Gifts will continue to be received at Chest headquarters. Among those which came in yesterday were: $25, Lillian E. Alber; $10, Wylie C. Burns; $5, Miss Mary Carrid; $25, H. B. Fraser; $10, A. M. Haines; $15, Margaret L. Hardie; $5, James C. Hollister; $50, Frederick J. Libbey; $15, Angus McDonald; $5, Malcolm A. Macdonald;; $10, William L. Mayo; $15, Mrs. John H. Miller; $20, O. Edwin Nichels; $15, C. F. Norment, jr.; $3, Jeremiah E. O'Connor; Virginia Patter; $75, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Scott Thropp.

Beloved Teacher's Name Halts Fight of Feudists

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., Feb. 12.—Nichols Hollow, one of the sunless gorges of the Blue Ridge in Madison County, is reaping the benefits of a higher code of ethics as exemplified, preached and taught by Miss Miriam Sizer, a prominent welfare worker of Washington, who for three years has been laboring in the mountains of Madison County.

On Saturday night when Brooks Jenkins was shot and killed at a dance in this "dark pocket" of the mountain some one in the crowd shouted, "Don't forget what Miss Sizer taught us."

When a gun cracked and Jenkins dropped dead half a dozen other guns were jerked from hip pockets, all ready for action. At this juncture some one made reference to Miss Sizer's teachings to mountain dwellers—to give up their clannish enmity, throw away their firearms and make their liquor-making establishments into churches.

The mention of Miss Sizer's name had a magic effect. Guns went back into hip pockets and the dance broke up with Jenkins' death as the only fatality.

School of Religion Open by St. Mark's

A school of religion was instituted at St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Third and A streets southeast, by the rector, the Rev. H. A. Woolfall, on Ash Wednesday, and classes will continue throughout Lent. The school's program includes a class for children every Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Tuesday evenings at 8 o'clock lectures will be given the men of the church on "The Life of Christ." Also on Tuesday at 8 p. m. there will be a Bible class for the women of the church.

The troop will lead the congregation in the salute to the flag.

TWO MEN ARRESTED IN COIN-BOX RIFLING

Repeated rifling of newspaper coin boxes in various sections of the city was believed considerably cleared up yesterday with the arrest of two men by headquarters detectives.

Umberto de Ambrosio, 20, of 212 First street southwest, and Kenneth Lawson, 22, of 1206½ C street southwest, were booked on five and two charges, respectively, of petit larceny, at headquarters.

Lawson was arrested by detectives after being found in a house in the 400 block of Ninth street southwest. He was said to have attempted to escape, but was apprehended in the rear of the house by Detective Sergt. Michael Dowd.

Police expressed the opinion that the two men were members of a gang who have been preying on the news rack coin boxes for some time. The gang operates, it is believed, with several automobiles.

Agents for all the city's newspapers have repeatedly suffered from the robbing of the boxes. The Post, the Star and the News have made complaints of the larcenies.

Bicentennial Service Is Arranged by Church

West Washington Baptist Church, of which the Rev. C. B. Austin is pastor, will hold a bicentennial service tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. It will be a service in which the church and Sunday school will participate. The church will be decorated, and the children will appear in colonial costumes, members of the church and school will take part and the choir will render special music. One of the songs will be a tribute sung in Trenton, N. J., 1789. The pastor's theme will be "The Greatness of Washington."

Presbyterian Ministers To Hear Dr. D. Pickett

Dr. Deets Pickett, research secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance and Morals, will address the Presbyterian Ministers Association of Washington Monday morning at 11 o'clock at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church on "The Present Status of Prohibition."

Ministers of the city generally are invited.

ALLEGED POISONER CHARGES FRAME-UP

Boy Who Testified Against Woman Also Declares He Was Tortured.

Chicago, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—A cry of "frameup" and protests against third degree brutality came today from Mrs. Arnold H. Kegel and Gerald Lee, indicted for the attempted murder of the woman's maid by poison.

Lee, set free under bond, charged he was tortured by State's attorney's men until he signed admissions Mrs. Kegel, still sought on warrants alleging she dropped a lethal powder in Mrs. Mary Ryan's lemon soda to prevent her appearing at the divorce trial of Dr. Arnold Kegel, former Chicago health commissioner, was represented as ill in a private sanitarium because of the charges.

Leo A. O'Reilly, attorney for Mrs. Kegel, said he would demand immediate trial for her and added:

Counsel Charges "Frameup."

From State's Attorney John A. Swanson came word that he would insist upon thorough investigation of the retraction of Lee's admissions and his accusation of third degree methods. But Swanson's assistant, Charles Lounsbury, said Lee could have repudiated his signed statement when he went before the grand jury yesterday and gave the testimony that resulted in his indictment with Mrs. Kegel.

"Instead," said Lounsbury, "he signed an immunity waiver then went before the grand jury and testified. When his original statement was signed there were two disinterested witnesses, no force was used; Lee was a willing witness, telling us he wanted the truth to be known."

Story of Grocer's Boy.

Lee, the grocery boy who called at the Kegel home, had stated that he saw Mrs. Kegell pour "white powder" into Mrs. Ryan's drink and heard her say she must "get rid of Mary" before the divorce suit reaches trial.

Mrs. Ryan, seriously ill supposedly of poison, related today some of the testimony she was expected to give at the Kegel divorce trial.

"Several times," she said, "I saw Mrs. Kegel place a few drops of something in Dr. Kegel's drink and he would get drowsy and soon go to bed. I asked her what the drops were. She said it was a tonic. One day I felt pretty low, so I decided I would try some. After I took a few I felt very drowsy and had to go to bed. I became alarmed and took the bottle to a toxicologist. He told me the stuff was a sleeping potion and the bottle contained enough of the fluid to kill several persons."

Mrs. McCagg Left $100,000 Bequests

The will of Mrs. Therese David McCagg, widow of Ezra B. McCagg, formerly of Chicago, Ill., filed yesterday for probate in the District Supreme Court, listed specific cash bequests of more than $100,000. Mrs. McCagg died February 3.

Katherine D. Hinkle, Agnes D. Exton and Grace D. Barnes, sisters of Mrs. McCagg, receive her personal effects, and specific bequests of $5,000 each are given them and Mary A. McCagg, Edward K. McCagg, William O. McCagg, Louis B. McCagg, jr., William H. Davis, a brother; Martha D. Whittaker, Katherine H. Ingalls, Francis H. Hinkle, Marie T. Hinkle, Thurlow W. Barnes, Grace D. Barnes, Katherine E. Bull and Frederick Exton. A number of other relatives and friends were given bequests of from $100 to $500.

The local branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Council of Christ, Protestant Episcopal Church, is given $1,000, and St. John's Orphanage and St. John's P. E. Church are given a like amount. The remainder of the estate is given the three sisters and Mr. Davis. Arthur B. Wells is named as executor.

IN THE CINEMA HOUSES

PALACE

"THE PASSIONATE PLUMBER." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's film version of the play, "Her Cardboard Lover," adapted to the screen by Laurence E. Johnson, starring Buster Keaton, supported by Jimmy Durante, Polly Moran, Irene Purcell, Mona Maris, Gilbert Roland, Maude Eburne, Henry Armetta and Paul Porcasi. Directed by Edward Sedgwick. Reviewed Friday afternoon.

By NELSON B. BELL.

With a considerably more substantial plot basis than the customary slapstick "gag" comedy, this farcicalized version of a reasonably sane stage play must be ranked among the more hilarious of the Keaton vehicles, not so much on account of any superlative humor in the performance of the stellar and title role as by reason of the richly comical results of the combined efforts of an entire cast expert in the complex business of playing farce seriously.

Buster Keaton has been tricked out with some extremely funny business and a succession of highly ludicrous situations in which he strives with utmost diligence to be of some use to a beautiful young woman in distress. Eventually he is. However, the funny-business-and-ludicrous-situation matter is one on which Buster has no monopoly whatsoever. Jimmy Durante, Polly Moran, Maude Eburne, August Tollaire, Mona Maris and preeminently Irene Purcell, within the limits of their opportunities, are quite as funny and as clever and as unbelievable as Mr. Keaton.

Gilbert Roland, the Lothario who was all things to all women, assuring each that he was married to one of the others, to avoid complications that might become too intricate for his simple addiction to habitual, although largely theoretical, celibacy, is the only one in the cast who is called upon to sustain a straight characterization. Even he goes mildly balmy in the ridiculous duelling scenes with which the early action is enlivened.

The whole absurd affair concerns the attempt of a young plumber in Paris to inspire a little jealousy by masquerading as the lover of the girl who is mad about Tony Lagorce, but somehow can not seem to lure him completely away from his estranged wife. Patricia herself is the estranged wife to the other girl, Nina. In such manner does Mr. Lagorce play one against the other—a bit of shenanigan that Mr. Keaton, aided and abetted by Mr. Durante, pledges himself to render null and void.

Were Jimmy Durante permitted to be a little more continuously on scene, Mr. Keaton would have a very tough time of it trying to establish his claim to stellar eminence in the piece. Mr. Durante steals more than one of the scenes in which they appear together. As for Miss Purcell, from a lukewarm and not too promising start, she compiles a swiftly-paced and intensely earnest characterization that stands out as one of the best performances of the entire group. Polly Moran—if you care for her and her assertive brand of comedy—has not enough to do by half. Mr. Roland is congenially cast as a sort of glorified gigolo and unconscionable cad—the sort of thing for which he seems to have a peculiar endowment.

On the stage, Joe Cook is the comic genius who places the stamp of his extraordinary versatility upon what otherwise would be an undistinguished revue. He does a little of everything—monologing, juggling monocycling, acrobatics, upside-down foot juggling, circus stunts, what not. And he does it all without the semblance of a bobble. His assistants are numerous, headed, of course, by Dave Chasen, the world's greatest stooge, the "Six Schultz Brothers," the world's worst acrobats, a couple of diminutive gymnasts and I don't know how many more. He has with him, also, a modification of his famous contraption for causing Dave Chasen to strike the triangle in the band!

Others who participate in the revue are Joe and May Dotty, in side-walk patter; Bryant, Rains and Young, dancers; Zara Lee, a plump but agile acrobatic dancer, and the Embassy Trio, two feminine pianists and a harpist.

The screen bill is completed by the Hearst Metrotone News and "Piscatorial Pleasures," a fishing reel humorously described by Pete Smith. The orchestra appropriately plays selections from "Fine and Dandy" as the overture number.

The management made no mistake in denominating this one "Laff Week."

COLUMBIA

"MATA HARI." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a screen play by Benjamin Glazer and Leo Brinski, with additional dialogue by Doris Anderson and Gilbert Emery, starring Greta Garbo, supported by Ramon Novarro, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis S. Stone, C. Henry Gordon, Karen Morley, Alec B. Francis, Blanche Friderici, Edmund Breese, Helen Jerome Eddy and Frank Reicher. Directed by George Fitzmaurice.

It was inevitable that this pictorial drama of a largely fictional Mata Hari, famous German spy in the great war, should be held over for a second week. Even were the filmed narrative more time-worn and artificial than it is, the personnel of the cast is still such as to warrant the interested attention of a majority of all picturegoers.

Frankly, the plot has been done times without number. All of the familiar devices of the conventional spy-drama have been employed again here, but there remains the largely inexplicable fascination of Garbo in a role sufficiently exotic to fire the imagination and render the incredible almost believable. Although Mata Hari is shown first in one of her bizarre Javanese dances, it is not Garbo who executes these ritualistic movements, but June Knight, to be seen here next week in "Hot Cha!" at the National.

Principally concerned in this tragic drama of a thwarted love and a life sacrificed, in addition to its star, are Ramon Novarro, as the young lover; Lionel Barrymore, as a Russian officer, who turns traitor to his country; Lewis S. Stone, chief of the German spy system in Paris, and Karen Morley, as a hapless operative who paid too little heed to the orders of her superiors. All give excellent performances, although Lionel Barrymore's is not such as to win him another award from the Academy of Arts and Sciences.

The auxiliary attractions are few and short.

Crittenton Home Board Adds Mrs. S. G. Awalt

Election of Mrs. S. G. Awalt to membership for three years was the chief item of business at yesterday's meeting of the board of managers of Florence Crittenton Home, on Conduit road northwest. Mrs. Awalt fills a vacancy on the board caused by a death last year.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., first vice president, presided in the absence of Mrs. Thomas E. Robertson, president, who is in Atlanta. About 20 members attended the luncheon which followed the business session.

METROPOLITAN

"WEST OF BROADWAY." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of an original story by Ralph Graves and Bess Meredyth, adapted to the screen by Gene Markey, starring John Gilbert, supported by Lois Moran, Madge Evans, Gwenn Lee, El Brendel and Ralph Bellamy. Directed by Harry Beaumont. Reviewed Friday evening by W. A. Whitney.

In a bill so completely entertaining as is this one, with each of its four parts deserving of first mention, it is difficult to decide in what order to consider the several program units. Following the dictates of length—as well as a time-honored tradition of theatrical scriveners—"West of Broadway" falls heir to the coveted position.

Well, then, the feature. The action revolves around Jerry, who, returning from France and finding his fiancee is to marry another, weds on the spur of the moment (not without a quantum of alcoholic beverages under his belt) Dot, his partner of the evening. When the morning after the night before comes along, Jerry tries to buy Dot off and, when he can not, leaves for his ranch in Arizona. Dot follows, still in love with him; and under the spur of her scurrilous remarks about his inability to "leave liquor alone" he does that very thing, and the two are ultimately reconciled.

You, perhaps, recall the story, it's an old one (you'd think Ralph Graves might have known better), but it is told in a straightforward manner, with the happy elimination of continuity-destroying digressions.

Of course, John Gilbert is Jerry, a role which minimizes his propensities for osculatory embraces and other amatory divertissements and gives him plenty of opportunity to show what sort of an actor he is. He is very much more than adequate, and he can by no manner of means be called the eggs' breakfast companion. Lois Moran is charming as Dot, the wife harassed in her efforts to convince Mr. Gilbert of her honorable iftentions. As the fiancee, Madge Evans is good, and Gwenn Lee, as Miss Moran's roommate, gives another of her well-known impersonations of the mining blonde. El Brendel, in the role of Mr. Gilbert's comrade in arms, furnishes the comedy.

The second of the bill's delights is "The Symphony Murder Mystery," by S. S. Van Dine, with Donald Meek, John Hamilton and Rita Lan. It is the best of the Van Dine shorts so far released; entirely plausible throughout and baffling.

Third in the list is "Manchuria: the "World's Danger Spot," a travelogue of that country, including a brief history of the region and an explanation of Japan's role in the present "warless war."

And last is "Musical Justice," featuring Rudy Vallee and his Connecticut Yankees. A court of crimes against the musical art is depicted in melody, with Lehigh's little brother condemning syncopated versions of Negro spirituals and exonerating a poo-poo-pa-doop singer, who, if she is not Helen Kane, ought to be—she's that good!

RIALTO

"THREE WISE GIRLS." Columbia Pictures' filmization of the novel by Wilson Collison, featuring Jean Harlow, Mae Clarke and Marie Prevost, supported by Walter Byron, Natalie Moorhead and Jameson Thomas. Directed by William Beaudine. Reviewed Friday night by Don B. Reed.

It is an old, old story which is brought to the screen by "Three Wise Girls," for it is the story of what can, and does, happen to the small-town girl in New York. But there is nothing old or inefficient about the manner in which Jean Harlow, Mae Clarke and Marie Prevost put this old story across.

Author Collison has considerable suffering woven into his drama but there are plenty of sprightly moments, furnished in a good many instances by Miss Prevost, with Walter Byron also a delightful character, so that the picture, all in all, is good entertainment.

The story deals with the affairs of Cassie, Gladys and Dot and their three boy friends, Jerry, Arthur Phelps and Jerry's chauffeur. Gladys has fallen for Phelps, a banker, separated from his wife. She has a gorgeous apartment and plenty of money, part of which she sends to her mother in a small town. Cassie goes to the big town to duplicate Gladys' success and falls in love with Jerry, another rich young man, not living with his wife. She doesn't learn that he is married until the affair has progressed a long distance, whereupon she leaves him flat. Meanwhile Dot, unable to find herself a wealthy suitor, finds happiness with Jerry's chauffeur.

Finally, Phelps brings about a reconciliation with his wife and the blow is too much for Gladys, who commits suicide. Rather than find herself in the same dilemma, Cassie returns to the home town and goes back to jerkin' sodas. It is there that Jerry, armed with a divorce from his wife, finds her and winds up the story with a pleasing and satisfying finish.

The title of the play is slightly misleading, for only two of the girls were wise enough to win their men, but Miss Clarke's performance as the unwise member of the trio is faultless. Miss Harlow gets plenty of opportunity to display her pulchritude in both old and new fashioned clothes, while, as stated before, Miss Prevost is comical enough. Walter Byron, a hero for a change, instead of the usual villain, gives a smooth performance, and Jameson Thomas is irritatingly good as the betrayer of Gladys. Others in the cast are Andy Devine, as the chauffeur; Miss Moorhead, as Jerry's first wife; Lucy Beaumont, Cassie's mother; Marcia Harris, as the landlady of Cassie's boarding house, and Armand Kaliz, as Andre, owner of the shop where Cassie models.

Babe Ruth is the chief attraction in the auxiliary subjects. His "Slide, Babe, Slide," in which he rips a perfectly good pair of trousers showing a sandlot group how the game of baseball should be played, is well done. Lloyd Hamilton and Josephine Dunn are presented in a not-so-funny comedy, "Robinson Crusoe and Son." The Universal Newsreel completes the bill.

FOX

"BUSINESS AND PLEASURE." Fox picturization of the Goodrich play based on Booth Tarkington's book, "The Plutocrat," starring Will Rogers, supported by Dorothy Peterson, Jetta Goudal, Joel McCrea and Peggy Ross. Directed by David Butler. Reviewed Friday night by Dorothea Lewis.

Will Rogers, criticizing his own picture, said Thursday (didn't you know he was in town?), "It's all right. It's right good. You'll get a lot of laughs out of the first four or five reels, but then—well, it just blows up." He conveyed the idea, as Will can convey ideas, that the whole Fox studio hung around for a month or so trying to end the picture and then just let it die on them.

Well, we almost, though not quite, agree with Will in his self-criticism.

"Business and Pleasure" is all rght—yes. It really is right good, though not as good as its predecessors; and you will get a lot of laughs, though not as many or as big ones as you usually expect and usually get from Rogers.

But where we differ is on that last sixth reel or so, because we thought it very funny—a little lame, yes, but then none of the picture is distinguished by sureness of plot, exceeding speed or action or brilliance of thought. The very tip, tail end, last line or so, is pretty bad, but if that's Will's "blow-up," we think it much too mild. At best, a fade-out.

What story there is relates the fantastic adventures of one Tinker, the razor-blade king, who wants to corner the market on Damascus steel so that he may add "the finest steel in the world" to his advertising paeans and drive his Straight-back razor blade competitors straight back to the wall. So off he goes, ostensibly pleasure bent but really desert-bound to buy the Damascus formula from a sheik. Between mysterious spying ladies and crystal balls and magic radios, Tinker almost gets the steel in the neck instead of the factory. (Various guttural descriptions of the meeting of neck and steel are hilarious.)

However, with Rogers as Tinker, the 100 per cent American business man, with Rogers in an uproarious, dialectic episode as an Oriental mystic, and with one or two of Rogers' very own dry observations, it is rather better than it sounds. Will is always Will—and that is rather nice. And comforting.

Dorothy Peterson is excellent as "Honey," Tinker's long suffering wife. Jetta Goudal is attractive and interesting in her strange fashion as the villainous Mme. Momora. Joel McCrea, the only exponent of masculine "beauty" in the opus, wanders somewhat superciliously through a supercilious part. We like his sea-sickness and rare flashes of enthusiasm. Boris Karloff is an awe-inspiring Sheik.

Of the "Hacienda" Idea on the stage, we liked best Adriana's dancing (particularly her Mexican hat dance); and the Five Gems, a troupe of skillful women jugglers, who make the most of shimmery white costumes and flashing blue, yellow, green and red clubs. The Six Gordonians' acrobatics are exciting.

The dancing of the three Slate Brothers is graceful and unusually good but they mar their act with a lamentable exit skit and a great deal of the pushing, slapping, common and commonplace silliness being passed off on audiences (and apparently liked by some) these days as humor. Gene Doyle and Donnelly Don precede them by a few minutes in the same sort of time-wasting routine without the good dancing.

A magic carpet trip to China is unusually interesting at this time. The bill is completed by a "Voice of Hollywood" subsidiary and a newsreel with Will Rogers again, observing, to considerable applause, "Don't say too much against Mr. Hoover. Go to some of these other countries and then he'll look pretty good."

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

NEW plays to be introduced to Broadway next week—while we are reveling in the spectacle of a new Ziegfeld production a-bornin' here—will inaugurate metropolitan engagements of two more husband-and-wife acting combinations. Already there are two on Broadway—Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "Reunion in Vienna" and Mary Ellis and Basil Sydney in "Jewel Robbery"—both seen here earlier in the season.

The newcomers to Gotham will be Herbert Marshall and Edna Best and Geoffrey Kerr and June Walker. Mr. and Mrs. Marshall are bringing over their London success of a solid year's run, "There's Always Juliet," written by John Van Druten, author of "Young Woodley." Mr. and Mrs. Kerr, who have not played together since Belasco's "The Bachelor Father," have the leading roles in "Collision," a comedy written by John Anderson, the dramatic critic.

Al Woods will deliver himself of a comeback gestufe on Thursday in New York, when he will offer a melodrama called "The Inside Story," with Louis Calhern and Marguerite Churchill heading the cast. Miss Churchill seems to have deserted the films, too, by the way—or vice versa.

On Monday, Katharine Cornell will take "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" on tour after 46 weeks of capacity business on Broadway. She is terminating the New York run, contrary to all usual custom, while the play is still a sell-out hit.

Reverting momentarily to Herbert Marshall and Edna Best, who arrived in America only this week, they are known as the most devoted couple on the British stage. Never have spats. Never squabble. She deserted Jack Gilbert and the films, you will remember, because she was homesick.

However, when they are to appear as costars in affectionate roles, they do not see each other on the day of opening. "We take no chances," remarks Miss Best. "Can you think how terrible it would be to have to go on in a play like the one we are doing now after a quarrel?"

"So she goes her way and I go mine," chimes in Mr. Marshall. "In the evening I send flowers and then we meet at the theater."

The Marshalls, in case you hadn't heard, were married in America in 1928, but had played opposite each other for some time prior to that. Miss Best is his second wife. They were cast as husband and wife in "Michael and Mary," "Come With Me," "Paris Bound" and others, were sweethearts in "The Swan" and once played father and daughter in "Bill of Divorcement."

Herbert Marshall is so adroit in stage manner, and has so perfected himself since, that few would ever guess that he lost a leg in the war.

And if you think it is I speaking from this point on, you will find out your error a little later. Just to show what a glutton I am for getting out of work, I am now turning the machina de escribir, as we say in the pure Castilian, over to a valued associate.

An interesting reunion took place in Washington Thursday evening, when Margaret Anglin, famous actress who is playing the lead in Percy Mackaye's Masque, "Wakefield," to be presented in celebration of the bicentennial here on Feb. 21, and Frank Jamison, veteran trouper and Miss Anglin's first director, met at Central High School.

Mr. Jamison was busy on the third floor of the school, directing "Quare Medicine," the Paul Green play, which the Columbia Players are entering in the city-wide One-Act Play Tournament.

A panting and froth-specked courier (see how I read your column, Nels) dashed upstairs, not knowing of the earlier Jamison-Anglin Association, to inform the Columbia Players of the distinguished actress' presence below.

Thereupon, Mr. Jamison began to reminisce, and, before the evening was over, went down to greet Miss Anglin and talk over old times.

Frank Jamison directed Margaret Anglin in summer stock in Buffalo, N. Y., in her first professional engagement more than 30 years ago. They later played together in Chicago.

And if the Wilson Teachers College hadn't suddenly begun to crack up, they might not have met here at all—for the Columbia Players rehearsal had been scheduled for that building and only hurried changes in plans sent them to the hallways and classrooms of Central for makeshift stages.

When the movies libel the movies, they are careful that the movies remain "art."

Says young Playwright Lawrence Ogle (Joel McCrea, in "Business and Pleasure," current at the Fox) "I would rather die than have my play produced in the movies. I despise the movies. They are the lowest form of art."

Will Rogers pretty nearly caused a shortage of news in the public prints on Thursday when he visited the Senate press gallery.

Inside the Senate chamber, the atmosphere was tense with the emotion aroused by debate on the La Follette-Costigan immediate and direct relief bill. (The "dole" to you.)

But as reporters left the gallery proper and went into the back room it was noticeable that they did not return. Finally the listeners' gallery was deserted by all but press association men and eight or ten other correspondents.

Investigation solved the mystery. In the writing room of the gallery, Will Rogers stood completely surrounded by three or four rows of correspondents hanging on to his words and loudly, not to say vociferously, approving each and every one of them.

Will did a great deal of boosting of the Kaufman satire, "Of Thee I Sing," current in New York—recommending that the correspondents leave Washington because "there's nothing doing here" and go see and appreciate that political hodge-podge.

(Since back there where I told you)

Thanks, Dot, that was swell. You must come over again some time!

PASSENGERS CANCEL AS FOG HOLDS LINER

Many Quit Berengaria, Due for Bermuda Cruise; Bar Remains Sealed.

New York, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—The liner Berengaria, its bar still closed and its passenger list shortened considerably, still was at its pier early tonight, its departure on a four-day holiday cruise to Bermuda already delayed 24 hours because of thick fog.

Nearly 300 passengers had packed their luggage and stalked down the gangplanks because of the delay in sailing. They had entertained themselves or slept throughout the night while waiting for the liner to pass the 12-mile line when the bar would be open for business.

Officials sought to pacify the voyagers as a tide of cancellations set in. The 1,188 passengers had planned to spend Saturday in Bermuda and be back in New York Monday morning.

A few hours before the Berengaria's postponed schedule departure at 9 p. m. the Cunard Line announced the remaining passengers had voted to extend the tour to Tuesday, instead of Monday, so they could spend a day in Bermuda as originally planned. The Berengaria consequently will leave for Europe at midnight Tuesday instead of Monday.

Abandonment of the Bermuda tour would cost the line $105,000, the officials said.

Other lines were delayed from one to twenty hours by the fog. Shipping was tied up, a New Jersey ferry suspended service, and mail and transport airplanes were delayed, while the fog sirens tooted their weird warnings in the harbor.

The Caledonia, bound for England and France with 400 passengers, left its pier last night, but remained anchored off Robbins Reef and did not start out again until 10 a. m. The Pennland, also bound for channel ports, was held for twenty hours.

Catholic Relief Group Will Meet Tomorrow

Representatives of 26 Catholic parishes in the city will be present at a meeting of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul at Sacred Heart Church tomorrow morning.

During the past year the society has expended $35,000 in material relief. It operates an employment bureau and provides chaplain service in the various public institutions in the city.

Military Budget Slash Opposed by Veterans

Reduction of appropriations for the Army and Navy was vigorously opposed in a resolution adopted by Front Line Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The resolution especially disapproves of the proposed abandonment of Citizens Military Training Camps. It was addressed to the subcommittee on appropriations in the House of Representatives.

Official of Cathedral To Lecture in Africa

Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington Cathedral, who for more than twenty years was the secretary of Yale University, has accepted the invitation of the Carnegie Corporation of New York to be its visiting lecturer for 1932 to the Universities of South Africa.

Announcement that he had been granted a leave of absence for this work was made yesterday at the Cathedral. Dr. Stokes will leave for South Africa the end of May and will not return to the Cathedral until the summer of 1933. He will lecture before the Universities of South Africa on three subjects—"The American University;" "The Origin and History of Universities" and "The Development of the American Negro."

Arkansas State Society Elects Miller President

The Arkansas State Society elected officers for the year at their annual reception and dance at the Willard Hotel last night. The new officers are as follows: President, Representative John E. Miller; vice presidents, Hugh Brewster, Mrs. Joe T. Robison, Mrs. Tillman Parks and Mrs. W. J. Driver; secretary, Mrs. Brownie H. Kerr; treasurer, Carl Sadler.

Guests of honor were Harvey C. Couch, of Arkansas, who was recently appointed to the Finance Reconstruction Commission, Charles H. Brough, former Governor of Arkansas, and Dr. John H. Reynolds, president of Hendricks College.

2,500 SEE MARYLAND FIVE AND BOXERS WIN AGAIN

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE growing suspicion that Jack Dempsey has no legs to support his well-known sock was confirmed in another quarter the other night when the old mauler exhibited two extremely wobbly underpinnings in the course of his three-round knockout of Kayo Christner, a gentleman who has heard the leather lullabily only once before in his career.

The fact that Christner was able to cross Dempsey with two hard rights to the head in the second round is hardly noteworthy, because the old mauler was always a target content to absorb what came his way and extremely easy to hit, despite his bob and weave, but the dispatches say that Dempsey "looked bad" when he attempted to chase the old Akron rubber puddler about the ring.

There was never any complaint of Dempsey's legs in his heyday, and it was the spring in his props that enabled him to work in close enough to deal out the terrific punishment that he did, but with the resiliency gone from his underpinnings, and forced to fight on the flat of his feet, the old champion must fall back on his ability to "take it" and the companion ability to mete out the lethal wallops that have won him so many fights.

The first intimation that the remarkable footwork that marked Dempsey's triumphs over Willard, Brennan, Carpentier and Forpo was missing was in his first engagement with Tunney at the Philadelphia Sesquicentennial in 1926, when it was a strange Dempsey, indeed, who lost the world championsip on a decision in ten rounds.

More than a ripple of surprise was caused when the tigerish Dempsey, who opened his every fight by sprinting from his corner at the bell and meeting his opponent more than half way across the ring, barely sidled out of his seat and permitted Tunney to take the offensive at the start of the fight. Here was a new Dempsey, a slow, sluggish Dempsey, who seemingly couldn't untrack himself and was just a chopping block for the sharpshooting Tunney.

The unbelievers withheld final decision on Dempsey's legs until the Sharkey fight the following summer, when they were ready to subscribe to the belief that a great fighter had been betrayed by his legs. Dempsey was flat-footed for the entire seven rounds, and won the fight only because he was able to get that terrific left jolt to the point of Sharkey's chin when Sharkey wasn't looking.

Against Tunney in their second engagement at Chicago, Dempsey was a pitiful sight even during his ascendancy in the seventh round when Tunney got up off the floor and saved his title by grace only of a long count. The Dempsey sock was still there and he floored Tunney for fourteen fairly enough but then his legs failed him.

Tunney might have arisen from the Dempsey sock even in the old mauler's heyday even as Willard and Firpo got up after the first impact of Dempsey's mailed fist, but he would certainly have gone down again for the full count even as Willard and Firpo went down if Dempsey had been able to summon the power in his legs that he had at his command in 1919 and 1923, and follow up his advantage.

But Dempsey was helpless to catch the back-pedalling Tunney in that ring at Soldier's Field under the gaze of the 110,000 in the stands. He could only stand in the center of the arena and motion derisively for Tunney to come in and resume the fight but the latter's discretion kept him at a safe distance until the round ended. The story of how a comparatively fresh Tunney all but knocked out a Dempsey who had spent himself and who lasted the route only on his courage.

But there is no gainsaying that marvel of fistic history, the Dempsey sock. Only Otto Von Porat, one of the greatest of heavyweight punchers whose glass chin alone kept him from the ranks of the champions, had been able to knock out Christener before Dempsey. And there is another story behind Dempsey's knockout Thursday night.

Dempsey stopped Christener in three rounds where Sharkey couldn't knock the Akron slugger off his feet in ten, and the marvel of it is that Dempsey accomplished the feat with ten-ounce gloves, veritable pillows compared to the five-ounce mittens that would encase his fists in a championship fight. And, fighting with five-ounce gloves, Dempsey's socks might cover the deficiencies of his legs.

Boston A. A. Meet Draws Nation's Stars

Boston, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Although every event is jammed with star entries, the thoughts of track-wise New Englanders appear centered on the brilliant field competitions that will feature the Boston Athletic Association's forty-third annual indoor invitation meet tomorrow night at the Arena.

In former years the runners have been the attraction, but this year the Nation's outstanding vaulters, jumpers and weight performers demand the homage of the track fans.

G. U. Defeats Pitt Five in Duel, 33-30

Play Is Sensational; Invaders Assume 17-13 Lead.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

"MESMERIZED" in galvanizing fashion from an unimaginative group of basket ball players to a dynamic team of court experts, Georgetown University, with an unhappy ten-game losing streak behind it, defeated a great Pitt Panther aggregation last night, 33-30, in one of the most beautifully played games of the collegiate year.

The two, big husky squads, one of them coming out of the West with a 1931 record of 20 victories out of 24 starts, played a memorable ball game at Tech High Gym, standing a crowd of nearly 1,000 on its feet for the full 20 minutes of the second half, as they raced neck and neck down the homestretch amid a star shower of sensational shots and stirring team play.

Georgetown, rated no better than an underpuppy at the start of the game, held grimly to a lead throughout the second half, but never were the Hoyas farther removed from their tenacious rivals than by three of the baskets which constantly swished down through the rims.

Carolan in Star Role.

One of the fiery play, which showed the gallery dazzling exhibitions of cutting, blocking, picking off and pivoting, topped off by thrilling shooting, rose the figure of Tom Carolan, Georgetown guard, to grab the Panthers by their very tail and twist out the victory.

Carolan it was who began, maintained and directed the Georgetown drive which found its source near the end of the first half and its mouth in the wild after-game scenes with the game's heroes being borne uncomfortably atop the zealous shoulders of undergrade. The blond Hilltopper constrained his game to floor play until more than half the first half had ticked away, when, racing down the sideline he dropped in a potshot which brought Georgetown up to 10-12.

Connors tied the score at 12-12 a moment later, but Pitt, knifing through the Georgetown defense zoomed to 17-13 with two minutes left of the half.

Dick King gave Georgetown two points, Carolan made it 16-17 on a foul shot, and then, while the timekeeper brandished his gun, Carolan shot one-handedly from near the center of the floor for 18-17, and an ovation which loosened rivets.

Five times more, during the second half, did Carolan strike lethal blows as Pitt began to corall its forces for successful assault. Each blow boosted Georgetown ahead, and kept it there despite a crackling Panther counter attack which unleased Tim Lawry, Doc Kowallis and Don Smith beneath the Georgetown basket, but Georgetown's defense rose up impregnably in the pinches to quell the yellow silk warriors with the scalps of mighty clubs dangling from their belts.

Williams Tops District Shooters in Consistency

Special to The Washington Post.

Vandalia, Ohio, Feb. 12.—Lieut. Comdr. F. P. Williams, veteran Washington (D. C.) Gun Club marksman, was the District's most consistent shot during the year 1931, it was announced today by the Amateur Trapshooting Association Williams averaged .9313 on 1,150 targets.

C. C. Fawcett, who holds the District championship, placed second in the high average ranks in the city with a mark of .9291, on 1,850 clays.

H. H. Skelton was the most consistent of the handicap shooters, with .8308 on 775 targets and the doubles high average went also to Shelton with .6585 on 700 twin targets.

Last year was the first during which Washington has staged a tournament independent of Maryland.

Eddie Towns, Former Golf Pro Here, Dies

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 12.—Edward (Eddie) Towns, well known professional golfer, died at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Christman, 1435 Dormont avenue, Dormont, at 8:40 a. m. today.

Towns was born in Montrose, Scotland, March 7, 1892. He came to Boston, Mass., twenty years ago today. He became professional at the Allegheny Country Club in 1917. When the United States entered the World War he enlisted in the Canadian army.

Later he went to Washington, D. C., became private golf instructor to Edward B. McLean, and then accepted a position as pro at the Indian Spring Club, where he was succeeded five years ago by J. Monro Hunter.

YANKEES AIM TO DEVELOP 'FARMS'

George Weiss Named to Oversee "Chain Store" System.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13 (A.P.).—The New York Yankees took another important step toward the establishment of a "chain store" system today with the appointment of George Weiss, for the last three years vice president and general manager of Baltimore of the International League, as assistant secretary of the club.

Weiss, recognized as one of the sharpest traders in baseball, will be in active charge of the Yankees' minor league interests. It is a brand new job, created since Col. Jacob Ruppert, the club's owner, decided to take over a number of minor league teams.

Yankees Now Own Only Newark.

At present, the Yankees are on record as owning only one club, Newark of the International League, which they purchased several months ago. It is no secret, however, that they are interested in at least three others: Albany of the Eastern League, Scranton of the New York-Penn and Cumberland of the Middle Atlantic.

By the time the season opens, Secretary Ed Barrow admitted today, the Yanks expect to own, or control, four minor league teams, all of different classification. Several deals are hanging fire now.

Weiss, who is 36, became identified with the game first at the age of 23, when he acquired the New Haven Club of the Eastern League. Though he had never played professional ball, his keen judgment of players made him a success from the start.

Sent Many Players To Majors.

During his eleven years as president of the New Haven Club he sold more players to the major leagues than all of the seven other clubs combined, yet his team never finished in the second division. Jimmy Wilson, Joe Cronin, Horace Ford, Jim Weaver, Pinky Hargrave, Johnny Cooney and Al Schacht were among the players who wore New Haven uniforms during the Weiss regime.

Weiss became head of the Baltimore Orioles three years ago after the death of Jack Dunn.

Though Class AA baseball was new to him, Weiss has been a pronounced success at Baltimore. He has sent a dozen players to the majors, rebuilt the club twice and always had a pennant contender.

Marines Again Beat Bliss Quintet, 36-30

The Quantico Marines hung up their second victory of the season over the Bliss Electrical School tossers when they defeated the Engineers by a score of 36-30 in a hard-fought game before a large crowd at Silver Spring last night.

The first half was a nip-and-tuck affair, with the teams battling point for point. The Marines were ahead, 20-19, at the intermission. The play of Zeher and Locke, for the Devil Dogs, and of Minneic and Chamberlain, for Bliss, was outstanding. This quartet kept their respective teams in the running right up until the final whistle with their sharpshooting and clever floor work. It was a couple of one-hand shots by Zeher, late in the final period that clinched the verdict for the Quantico five.

2 Norwegians Top Olympic Ski Jump

OLYMPIC POINT TOTALS.

(Unofficial compilation on 10-5-4-3-2-1 basis).

United States 78; Norway 68; Canada 36; Sweden 27; Austria 15; Finland 10; Switzerland 6; Germany 4; Roumania 3; Italy 1; Belgium 1; Czechoslovakia 1.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—To the worry and strain of weather more suitable for Maypole dancing, there was added tonight the comic opera relief of a set of judges choosing the wrong winner of the Olympic ski jumping championship event and then waiting three hours before announcing the name of the other fellow.

By a recount, over which arguments lasted far into the night, the judges of the leaping contest on Intervales Hill today decided that Birger uud, 19 year old Norwegian, and not Hans Beck, equally young Norwegian from the same tiny mining town of Kongsberg, had won the international title with jumps of 218 and 226 feet.

Beck broke the course record with one jump of 232 feet, a beautiful effort on the slippery ice slide, washed bare of its protective snow covering by the rain of yesterday and the bright sunshine of today.

Score Sheets Show Beck Winner.

Taking a quick glance at Beck's accomplishment, the three judges, Johan Klercker, of Sweden; Dr. Francois Lacq, of France; and Sigurd Lockeberg, of Canada, decided Beck had won and their points awarded for each jump still indicate that. All three marked Beck a point better on form on the first jump and another on the second. But after a three hour huddle, while everyone waited for the remaining finishers, the judges decided Ruud had a grand total of 228.1 points and Beck 227.

Kaare Walberg, of Norway, was third, and Ivan Eriksen, of Sweden, fourth, with Casper Oimen, of Canton, S. Dak., fifth, highest place an American jumper ever attained in the Olympic games. Behind Sigmund Ruud came Goro Adachi, of Japan, also setting a new high for his country in ski jumping competition. Goro has only recently recovered from a practice jump that landed him in the left field bleachers on one side of the course three weeks ago.

Norway Threatens U. S. Lead.

United States tonight has 78 points, Norway 68, Canada 36, and Sweden 27, with the rest scattered among eight nations.

Crowds estimated from 25,000 to 45,000 swarmed into the tiny Adirondack village with its normal population of 3,500, swamping its facilities, only to find that spring had gotten here first, forcing postponement once more of the the one event every one wants to see, the four-man bobsled races down the deadly slope of Mount Van Hoevenberg.

The further postponement of the first two heats of the bobsled championship raised several nice problems for Olympic officials who have been staggering through one complication after another, from rerunning speed skating preliminaries all the way down to attempting to explain some of the most variable weather in the world.

Bobsleds Await Cold Tomorrow.

Originally scheduled for two days ago, the bobsleds now will wait in a body for cold until Sunday morning at the earliest, one day after the Olympics were supposed to end. Tomorrow the closing ceremonies at 3 p. m. will go on without them and there will be a sort of postscript closing Sunday, if the bobs should be able to run for the benefit of the riders alone.

So much cold and snow is needed, however, to put the treacherous slide down the mountain in order, that officials were arguing and studying

JACKSON BARNETT, the world's wealthiest Indian, never knew what a traffic cop looked like until he visited Los Angeles. He never knew what being a millionaire meant until after he was granted a tract of land by the United States Government.

One day when Jackson was walking around all wrapped up in his blanket, perfectly content with his newly acquired land, a three-letter word came bounding into his life with such force, that for him, the whole world was literally changed over night. That little word was oil. Wells were drilled, and an unending flow of the precious fluid gushed forth. Soon, Jackson became the richest American Indian that ever lived. He married, and moved into a magnificent mansion located on the most fashionable boulevard in Los Angeles.

Like a kid announcing his life's ambition, the wealthy Indian decided that the one thing he liked most, was to be a traffic cop. No sooner said than done * * * he walked out to the busy intersection in front of his home, and began emulating the motions he admired about Los Angeles police. Being self-appointed, he carried out original ideas. Sometimes traffic cops wrote tickets, but Jackson didn't believe in that practice; it was too much trouble.

Most any day, you can motor past the intersection of Wilshire boulevard and Rossmore streets, and find Jackson directing motorists to his heart's content. If he is not at his usual post, you can most likely find him playing with his two pet ducks, which he likes next to being a traffic cop much better than $40,000,000.

Old Line Ring Team Beats St. John's

By JACK ESPEY.

MARYLAND UNIVERSITY'S second two-act sports thriller resulted in victories for both the basket ball and boxing teams last night in Ritchie Coliseum, but it remained for the hitherto down-tredden ring gladiators to put the punch in the entertainment for 2,500 fans.

Coach Billy Whipp's boxers scored a sensational four-to-three triumph over St. Johns of Annapolis, this being the first victory in a dual match ever registered in the ring for the College Park institution.

The match made up what the basketball game lacked in heart throbs although the basketers continued a winning pace to defeat Western Maryland, 25-15, for their eleventh successive win of the season.

Indeed, the Old Line fist swingers operated under a terrific handicap, for, in adidtion to facing the necessity of injecting the spine ticklers for the patrons they were met with disadvantages in height and reach, the Johnnies each holding an edge of from 2 to 4 inches.

Laughran's Win Decides Match.

The decisive bout found Jim Loughran, sturdy middleweight, outlasting "Whip" Williams, St. John's captain, after three furious rounds of slugging. Loughran's short, right-hand smashes to the head, delivered from close range, turned the tide in Maryland's favor, but only through sheer courage was he able to withstand Williams' vicious uppercuts, which swept up from the floor to his chin.

In violation of amateur rules the crowd roared free advice and encouragement to the eager contestants who seemed to take the "hint" for knockout wallops. Though neither was successful in putting his foe on the floor, they swung until their arms refused them. At the finish there was a perfect setting for a slow motion camera, both Loughran and Williams staggering into clinches and bringing their gloves ponderously over their heads in aimless blows.

The only knockout of the match—and this was of a technical variety—developed in the concluding light heavyweight bout in which Cal. Lotz of St. Johns stopped Fred Nordenholz after 1 minute 15 seconds of the first round. Right hand smashes to the head sent Nordenholz down, twice before Referee Heinie Miller raised Lotz's hand.

Maryland Welter Beaten In Extra.

St. John's other two individual victories were scored by Al Parone who defeated Harry Carrol in the featherweight class and by Louis Ickworth who shaded Vic Wingate in the 155-pound class. The latter bout required an extra round for a decision following some torrid slugging. Wingate had Ickworth on the canvas twice in the first round but yielded his point lead as the St. Johns boy landed telling rights to the face in the next two rounds. Wingate was down twice in the deciding round.

Frank Maneiri started Maryland off on the right foot by outpointing Ray Kent in the bantamweight scramble. Frank Isemann won over Ray Glann in the lightweight bout, and Bernard Keener pounded Ky Jund for a three-round decision in the welterweight contest. Jund took a count of eight in the second round.

Maryland Reserves Start.

Coach Shipley's basketers, saving something to throw against Virginia tonight, coasted to victory over Western Maryland after the scrappy but inaccurate Terrors had clung grimly on the heels of a makeshift combination of regulars and reserves. Buckey Buscher, first-string guard, led a late rally which resulted in Maryland's eleventh successive court triumph and its fourth win in State competition. Buscher directed the reserves through a listless first half, which ended 12-11 in Maryland's favor.

The lead see-sawed back and forth for 30 minutes of the contest, Maryland taking definite command of the proceedings when Buscher returned. Rufus Vincent caged a difficult pivot shot to give Maryland the lead at 15-14, and then added a pair of free tosses when fouled by Hammill, lanky Terror center.

Spurred into livelier efforts by Buscher, the Old Liners began whipping the ball about and through the Western Maryland defense to create numerous openings for shots. They did not, however, negotiate all of their chances, but with the Terrors failing to sink a single goal after the first three minutes of the period, Maryland's misses were relatively unimportant. Two one-hand running shots by Ed Ronkin and another by Buscher were the bright bits of offensive play as the game dragged along to a spiritless finish.

Always a First Time in Everything, Jack Says.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Feb. 12 (U.P.).—The old ring adage, "they never come back," does not worry Jack Dempsey, nor will he give it any consideration when the time comes for him to make a definite decision about attempting to win back the heavyweight championship.

"I don't believe in such things," said Jack. "But if you do, let me tell you that there's always a first time for everything."

In connection with Dempsey's contemplated return to the ring, the comebacks of Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons, Jim Jeffries, and Jess Willard, four champions who came out of retirement for another vain stab at fistic glory, furnish food for thought.

Corbett Attempted Two Comebacks.

Corbett won the title at 26, lost it to Fitzsimmons at 31, and attempted two comebacks against Jeffries—one at 33, losing on a knockout in the twenty-third round, and again at 37, losing in ten rounds.

Fitzsimmons won the title at 35, lost it at 37 to Jeffries, and attempted to come back against Jeffries at 40 and was knocked out in two rounds.

Willard won the title at 32, lost it to Dempsey at 36, and attempted to comeback at 40. He was successful in his first bout, knocking out Floyd Johnson in 11 rounds, but he failed against Luis Firpo, being K. O.'d in 8 rounds.

Matt Hinkel, who refereed last night's bout between Dempsey and Christner, and who has been connected with the boxing game for 40 years, believes Dempsey has a better chance than any former champion mentioned to win back the title.

"Dempsey can punch. That's why he has a better chance to win," said Hinkel. "Corbett could have defeated Jefferies in his comeback if he had a punch. He had the fight won until he was K. O.'d in the twenty-third round. Fitzsimmons could punch but he was 40 years old when he returned to the ring. Jefferies never saw the day when he could deliver a punch like Dempsey. And then when Jefferies came back after four years of soft living and dissipation he was only a shell of his former self. He trained in secret and wouldn't let anyone see what his real condition was.

"The Dempsey who knocked out Christner last night would stand a chance to lick any fighter in the world, but I believe Dempsey can get himself into far superior condition than he is right now."

Cochrane and Dykes Shoot It Out Today

Pinehurst, N. C., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Gordon S. (Mickey) Cochrane, and Jimmy Dykes, Philadelphia Athletics catcher and infielder, are staging a purely private and personal struggle here for supremacy in all-around sports.

First Mickey trounced Jimmy at pocket billiards. Today Jimmy staged a comeback, licking the Mick 2 up on the golf course. Cochrane carded an 85 and Dykes 83.

The feud is to be resumed tomorrow at the traps of the Pinehurst Gun Club, where Mickey, who claims to be an expert shot, predicted he would again take the lead.

Tech Beaten, 64 to 61, By Staunton Quintet

Special to The Washington Post.

Tech had a small lead throughout the first half, which ended 31 to 27. In the second half Tech reached a 10-point lead, which was quickly overcome by Staunton, 60 to 59, with three minutes to play. The final score was: Staunton, 64; Tech, 61.

Sarazen's 69 Is Best In New Orleans Open

New Orleans, Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Gene Sarazen turned his sharpshooting irons on Metairie Golf Club's birdies today to show the way in the first 18 holes of the New Orleans $5,000 open with a 69, three under par, for the heavily trapped course.

Gene bagged eight birdies, four of them on the last four holes, to take the lead away from John Camet, young Eldorado, Ark., pro, who finished an hour ahead of him with a 70 which looked good to take top position in the day's results.

Signs of Spring Bring Tragedy to Lake Placid, Jading Winter Olympics

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Special to The Washington Post.

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 12.—With probably 25,000 customers come from near and far to see them run the risk of serious, if not fatal injuries, the daring company of Olympic bob-runners found themselves almost expunged from the Olympic winter program today when the warmth of the weather, which the Chamber of Commerce sadly described as quite unseasonable, further reduced the deposit of ice and snow in the mountain chute, dramatized for weeks in the public press as something not far removed from group suicide.

The bobsled race naturally was responsible for much of the inflow of fresh customers, fresh money to spend for room and board, for Canadian beverages and taxicab hire in Lake Placid in the closing days of the first winter Olympic games ever held in the United States. There was a 35 round-trip in the day coaches from New York, a remarkable bargain, which accounted for 2,400 head in the packed community and 1,000 Pullman passengers crawled out of the cars in the railroad station early in the morning, all to confront a spring day and a town humiliated. There were also hundreds of automobiles sloshing into town sprayed with mud and the attendance of 25,000, give of take a few thousand, at the ski jump in the afternoon, was a fair guage of the crowd that might have seen the intrepid but slightly goofy bobbers bob down the mountain if the bobbers had been allowed to bob.

But the slide was honeycombed from the rain and the thaw and the sleds might have crumbled the banks if they had been allowed to go, so the piece de resistance of the winter games was postponed until Sunday, weather permitting. Sunday is the last day on which any Olympic event may be officially solemnized so, if it is possible for the bobbing bobbers to slide at all, they will have to crowd in all four slides in the space of time allotted for two. There is no guar-

Campbell Awaits Smooth Beach For Attempt to Better Record

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Sir Malcolm Campbell, British racing driver, here to try to boost his automobile speed record of 245.773 miles an hour, looked over the beach course today, but found it rutted badly by adverse winds.

He indicated he will wait until the sands improve sufficiently to permit him to run at least 150 miles an hour before he essays any tests of his car preliminary to the dash for the record.

However, he may tow the giant machine onto the sands tomorrow to let the public and the photographers have a look. The attempt is to be made with the same car in which Campbell set the present record last February. Some improvements have been made.

Campbell let it be known he will seek the world kilometer record, as well as the mile, but is undecided whether he will attempt new marks for the 5-kilometer, 5-mile and 10-mile records.

After viewing the lengthened course, which will give him a better start before entering the measured mile, Campbell said he was sure he could set a new record, but would not predict his possible speed.

A combination of tides and a northeast wind will be necessary to smooth out the course before he will be able to try for the record.

124 to 1 Shot Beats Shiva By Neck

Islam Wins Feature From Dancing Mack in Stretch Drive.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 12 (A.P.).—Catherine Fox, fourth in her last two starts, electrified the players today when she drove home in the sixth event, to pay $251.10 for $2, the biggest straight price of the season. The C. E. Hamilton representative beat Shiva, heavily played, by a neck, under Sammy Renick's hustling ride, while James River, not so well ridden, took the show, a head farther back.

Catherine Fox was rated close to the pace to the stretch, where Renick urged her to the front. The filly gamely stood off strong opposition in the drive to the wire.

Nealon Kay, suddenly finding his racing legs, gave the crowd a shock when he won the opening event to pay $95.60 for a $2 ticket. The elderly gelding got up in the last stride to beat out Black Dove, another "wake-up" horse, by a head, while Westko was another head behind. The Gen, Stellanova and Coots followed close behind in a real blanket finish.

Black Dove cut out the running, but Nealon Kay, a distant trailer to the stretch, closed with a world of speed on the outside of the big field in the final furlong and just got up in time.

Islam Scores In Feature.

Before one of the largest "off day" crowds of the season, Jack Howard's game and consistent six-year-old Islam raced to his second consecutive triumph in the featured Darwin Purse. A length and a half behind came Dancing Mack. The latter saved the place by a nose from Martis. Raccoon was fourth and Duchess of Marlborough, a French importation, making her first American appearance, brought up the rear. The winner paid $5.40, giving form players their first score and covered the mile distance in 1:37 2-5.

Jewish Center Matmen Face Y. M. C. A. Team

The Jewish Community Center wrestlers and the Y. M. C. A. team will tangle next Wednesday night at the J. C. C. in the most important match of the year for each team. The team championship of the District is at stake.

Bouts will be staged in every weight class, from 115 to heavyweight. Admission will be free to J. C. C. members and 25 cents to nonmembers.

Business High Routs Emerson Five, 62-13

Business High's sharpshooting little basket ball team annihilated Emerson Institute's bigger and much less proficient tossers yesterday, 63-13, leading from the opening whistle and turning the game into a rout before the whistle's echos had died away.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—NEALON KAY, $95.60, $19.80, $8.20; BLACK DOVE, $14.30, $8.30; WESTKO $3.00.

NEALON KAY, very slow to find his foot, gained gradually after he got settled on his stride, finished full of courage and was up in the final stride. BLACK DOVE had lot taken out of him racing THE GEN into submission. He bore at end. WESTKO closed a lot of ground after working his way up on outside rounding far turn. THE GEN was stopping. COOTS raced in improved form.

SECOND RACE—Three furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 2-year-old fillies. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 2:46. Off at 3:00½. Winner, Mrs. S. F. Murphy's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODESTO, $13.20, $5.80, $3.30; DUCKY DAME, $4.40, $2.70; DARK WAR, $2.80.

MODESTO stood long hard drive in game fashion and was up in final stride. DUSKY DAME, fractious at the post, was taken to the extreme outside and did not break out of stalls. She went to the front with a rush first furlong and had a long lead a furlong from home. Elston stopped riding and tossed the race off. DARK WAR was a forward contender all the way. ANIMATE hung last sixteenth. LADY BUNUK, off slowly, was eased up.

THIRD RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For maiden 3-year-olds. Start poor. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:26. Off at 3:29. Winner, A. B. Gallaher's br. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MANASSAS, $19.40, $5.00, $3.30; BROADWAY LIGHTS, $4.00, $2.80; IRON CZAR, $2.70.

MANASSAS broke fast and saved ground all the way, shook off STAR ROYAL after they had gone half a mile and had a bit left at end when BROADWAY LIGHTS challenged. BROADWAY LIGHTS, a slow beginner, gained steadily and finished full of courage. He was gradually gaining on the winner at end. IRON CZAR saved ground at stretch turn, finished gamely under a drive and caught LUCKY JACK right at end. LAPIDARY quit when put to a drive.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:58. Off at 3:59. Winner, Mrs. G. Weston's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—JAFFA, $16.90, $8.20, $5.70; TRAITOR, 4.10, $3.00; MEMORIES DEAR, $4.00.

JAFFA, lucky in the break, went to the front and drew away. Montgomery saved ground with JAFFA all the way and she hung on with rare courage in final drive. TRAITOR, at outset, was forced to run extra distance at stretch turn and was gradually wearing the winner down. MEMORIES DEAR, a forward contender from the start, hung when put to a drive. She was stopping at the end and just lasted long enough to stall off WAR SAINT.

FIFTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,300; allowances. Darwin Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:24. Off at 4:26½. Winner, Jack Howard's b. h. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ISLAM, $5.40, $2.70, out; DANCING MACK, $2.90, out; MARTIS, out.

ISLAM, outrun first half mile, worked his way up on the outside rounding far turn, finished strong after being carried wide entering home stretch and, wearing DANCING MACK down, won going away at end. DANCING MACK broke fast and was taken in hand when RACCOON moved up on back stretch, shook off RACCOON in stretch turn, but was staggering at end to stall off challenge from MARTIS. Latter closed stoutly. He would have been second in another stride.

SIXTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:55. Off at 4:59. Winner, C. E. Hamilton's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CATHERINE FOX, $251.10, $61.50, $21.70; SHIVA, $4.60, $3.30; JAMES RIVER, $3.80.

CATHERINE FOX, in close pursuit of leaders to stretch turn, where she bore out and went wide, closed gamely under punishment and, wearing the tiring SHIVA down, was up right at end. SHIVA, rushed along entire trip, weakened when called on, saved ground all the way. JAMES RIVER finished strong out in the middle of the track. DON TASKER bolted to outside making turn for home. LINE OF FIRE broke well, but immediately dropped back and showed no speed at any stage.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-quarter miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Won handily. Time, 0:25, 0:50, 1:14 3-5, 1:40, 2:06 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STARBOARD LIGHT, $8.90, $4.80, $3.40; FAIR BILL, $3.40, $2.70; SAN PRESTO, $4.30.

STARBOARD LIGHT was rated in close attendance of pace to middle of bend, came around field entering stretch and, closing steadily on outside, got up in last stride. FAIR BILL, badly outrun for six furlongs, came with a rush through the stretch, but while holding on gamely, could not withstand winner's bid. SAN PRESTO had no excuse. He was rated well to the front, moved into lead on bend, saved ground at times, hung on well in drive to wire, but was not good enough. TOREALONG all times, hung on well in drive to wire, but was not good enough. TOREALONG moved up very fast on back stretch and closed ground, but could not get up. HARAMZADA and YARGEE had speed for six furlongs. SCARLET BRIGADE was outrun.

—Hialeah Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

HIALEAH PARK, Miami, Fla., Feb. 12.—Hialeah Park will put on tomorrow the best program of its meeting to date, featured by the Jockey Club Stakes of $3,000. The secondary race will be the Antelles, in which will be seen in action George D. Widener's sensational filly, EVENING, coupled with PANETIAN, both holding track records, and Mrs. George W. Loft's MABLA.

In the Jockey Club Stakes, which is at a mile and a quarter, there will be an interesting test of speed among Mrs. John Hay Whitney's LIGHTNING BOLT, Frank Carreaud's mare, KINCSEN, and Frank Grossman's WATERWAY. A week ago LIGHTNING BOLT set a track record in the Hialeah Handicap, beating KINCSEN by a length and a half, the time being 1:50 3-5 for a mile and one-eighth. This horse will have to go a furlong farther in this race, and pick up seven pounds, while KINCSEN takes off five pounds, but the son of Wrack is believed equal to the task. WATERWAY, which ran third to the above two in the race of last Saturday, should be third again. The three horses are selected to repeat their races in the Hialeah Handicap. ROYAL RUFFIN will contest the show money with WATERWAY.

FIRST RACE—FAIR BILLOWS should win the opener. He beat and was beaten by Don Tasker, and is consistent. PARTIES has shown improvement, having finished second this week, and should be the contender. PHANTOM ROCK should hold the others safe.

SECOND RACE—With an allowance clause, the second race for 2-year-olds has been made difficult, because the three horses appearing the best of the field carry 126 pounds each, and the others have 115. The order of the finish may be OKAPI, LUCILLE K. and LAVAAL. LUCILLE K. has the worst of the weights, because she loses her sex allowance in opposing the other two. OKAPI was second to her last out, but may turn the tables. One of the lighter weighas, MAEANTIC, is dangerous.

THIRD RACE—PORT HARLEM should make it three in a row in the third. Last time out she beat Memories Dear in fast time, and the finish was the same in the race previous to that. ELLICE is returning to form, and should be second, with LITTLE AMERICA very dangerous.

FOURTH RACE—In the Antelles, George D. Widener's pair, EVENING and PANETIAN, should win, with Mrs. Loft's MABLA the contender. This is all speed, EVENING'S last race being a pulled up victory over Rip Van Winkle and her previous race, which was run in record time, she beat Don Leon two lengths. She is favorite for the Florida Derby. HELIANTHUS might drop in third.

SIXTH RACE—SHOW DOWN, which won his last two races, easily is picked for the mile and a furlong of the sixth. NEGOPOLI is the dangerous one. He won his last race in a canter, and will force Show Down to a drive. Aldershot should improve.

SEVENTH RACE—ESSIE is very fast, and was second to Star Lassie Thursday. Look out for brackets today. BLUCH DINEEN has the call on place money on his second to Blue Cloud. PRETTY PENNY has a chance, running second to My Sis a week ago.

SLUGGER DUE TO OPPOSE LANDERS

Kocsis Brings Punch to Alexandria Ring Next Tuesday.

THAT Anatol Kocsis, the Hungarian star, who comes to Portner's Arena, Alexandria, next Tuesday night has a real kayo wallop and will execute that blow successfully on the anatomy of Billy Landers, little Norfolk buzzsaw, is the expert opinion of Max Waxman, well-known fistic figure.

Waxman, who was a visitor at the Alexandria Day Nursery show last Tuesday night, stated unconditionally that Kocsis will perform the operation that Midget Wolgast, king of the flyweights, failed in when Landers met the 112-pound champion last month. According to Waxman, Kocsis is not only a clever boxer but possesses a kick in both fists and likes to win by slugging.

Landers Likes to Trade Wallops.

All of which is bad news to Landers' large fan following here. It probably will not worry the Norfolk bantam, as he loves to trade wallop for wallop himself. But those who adopted him as their fair-haired son months ago and have been boosting to the skies in the meantime will certainly hate to watch him absorb punishment. The worst that Wolgast dealt Billy was a boxing lesson.

Regardless of opinion, it seems that Landers is due for plenty of action. Kocsis is ranked fifth among the world's bantamweights and dominates both the 112 and 118 pound divisions in his native land. He gave two convincing demonstrations of his highly polished attack last month in Madison Square Garden. One of his victims was Vidal Gregorio, who until that occasion was ranked in the place now accorded Kocsis.

FOUR COLLEGE GAMES HERE TONIGHT

Maryland U. Is Host to Virginia

G. W. Seeking Tenth Victory Against Baltimore U.

American - Gallaudet Clash; Ben Franklin Faces Loyola.

THE busiest night of the collegiate basket ball season here is on the program tonight when local "rah rah" teams participate in four games, one of which is of intracity character.

In the strictly local contest American University will engage Gallaudet College on the former's floor, starting at 8:15 o'clock. The other games offer George Washington vs. Baltimore University at the H street gym, beginning at 8 o'clock; Maryland vs. Virginia at Ritchie Coliseum, commencing at 8 o'clock, and Benjamin Franklin vs. Loyola College at Tech High, starting at 8:30.

While every game is a prospective thriller, the Maryland-Virginia and George Washington-Baltimore tussles probably will attract the largest crowds. Maryland and Virginia are rivals of long standing, both of which have large numbers of followers here who always support their engagements well. Earlier in the season Maryland upset the Charlottesville team, 36 to 31, and Virginia is out to even matters tonight.

G. W. Seeks Tenth Straight.

George Washington is seeking its tenth successive victory as against no defeats for the season in the battle with Batimore University. Held to a two-point margin by William and Mary in their last effort, the Colonial basketers hope to win decisively. If they hurdle the Baltimore obstacle their chances are good for starting a Northern invasion late in the month with spotless record.

American University is going to try to begin a new winning streak at the expense of Gallaudet College, the Eagle quintet having had a nine-game string broken by St. John's in Annapolis last Monday night. But Gallaudet has an entirely different idea in mind, this being to make the Eagles the victim of their own winning ways. The Blues have won their last four contests.

Benjamin Franklin steps out of its class in meeting Loyola from Baltimore, but the Bennies are quietly confident of making a good showing. Loyola has beaten Maryland, Georgetown and Catholic U. this season, a record the Bennies hardly can match.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

MAXIE ROSENBERG and Paul Harrison will attempt to take up the thread of their unbroken string of victories, as a doubles team where they left off when the partnership was dissolved over a year ago, when they clash with Ray Barnes and Wesley Askew, of Baltimore, today at 3 p. m. at Convention Hall. Although Harrison and Rosenberg have participated in several matches with local bowlers this season, today's match will be their first bit of official competition.

In Barnes and Askew, the Washington duo will meet one of the three strongest doubles teams in the country. Maxie and Paul are rated in this select group which is rounded out by "Reds" Megaw and Ollie Pacini. The Baltimore men may place the first defeat on the unsullied record of their opponents today, but not if the Capital City bowlers are on their game.

The first half of the match will be rolled in the afternoon and the finals will be staged at night.

For those who enjoy sweepstakes we suggest a trip to Clarendon, Va., only a stone's throw beyond the Key Bridge, where the finals of the Suburban Sweepstakes will be rolled, starting at 8 p. m. Walter (Flicker) Barrett is leading the pack as it goes into the home stretch, and quite a few of the wise ones have predicted that he will still be in front when the final scores are computed. Roy Houck and Ray Huffman should provide the major portion of the competition for the top prize.

Another splendid attraction that should pack the customers in is the Dixie Sweepstakes for women, to be rolled in three sections. The first block of five games will be contested at Lucky Strike at 2 p. m. At 5 p. m. the women will move over to the Columbia Alleys for the second block, and the final games will be rolled at 8 p. m., at the Rendezvous. Thirty-five of the leading feminine bowlers will vie for the purse.

Last but not least on the program is the match between the Original Washington Juniors and Howard Campbell's All-Stars at Lucky Strike. The teams will square off at 8 p. m. and an interesting match is expected.

"Hokie" Smith's 156 game and Eddie Keith's 375 set were high as the Hecht pinmen took the odd one from King Pin in a District League match rolled at King Pin No. 2 last night. The winners rolled games of 579, 549 and 549, to King Pin's 624, 499 and 522.

Mrs. Elsie Romero was reelected president of the Washington Women's Duckpin Association at its annual meeting last night. The new officers are Marie Crandall, of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, vice president; Maude Yeomans, of the Eastern Star League, secretary, and Mabel Harris, of the Eastern Star and Ladies Federal Leagues, treasurer. The by-laws were slightly revised at the confab, and the date for the annual tournament announced. The latter will be rolled at the Columbia alleys, April 25.

The John Blicks drew the deuce in their match with the Lucky Strike quintet in the Ladies District League at Arcadia. The Blicks had a game of 487 and its set was 1,429. Esther Burton flirted with the maples for a 112 game and Helen Kellog copped the set honors with her 304.

Elmer Wesley's 149 game and 390 set, the latter a new record, was good for a pair of prizes in the District Government League at Arcadia. Repair Shop No. 1 had a game of 607, and Highway Department filled in the set mark with its 1,672.

After dropping the first game by a single pin, 571 to 572, Lucky Strike rallied to win the decision from Barnes Auto at Lucky Strike last night. Sam Del Vecchio's 132 game and 353 set were best for Barnes, while Clem Weidman's 144 and 386 scores were high for both teams.

In another National Capital League match Young & Simon won two from King's Palace, tied for the third, but lost on the roll-off. The match was rolled at Lucky Strike. Frank Mayo and Carl Weidel tied for the game laurels with 139, but the latter rolled 372 to his rival's 362.

Fuller Stone Plant's 580 game saved it from a shutout at the hands of Minte Paint in the Building Contractors League at Arcadia. Rosslyn Steel also rolled a 580 game and won all the marbles from Southern Asbestos. Tod Construction made a clean sweep of its match with A. W. Lee. Moyer, Butcher, Evans, and George A. Fuller gained the odd ones from Standard Art Marble, Massapomax Sand, Heffron, and Smoot Sand.

Bell's 139 game for Gibson Bros. was high in the Typothetae League at Lucky Strike. Bill Beatty helped the Big Print Shop along with his 378 set. The latter team was credited with a 603 game and 1,680 set.

Snyder and Eisenberg were the leaders in the Arcade-Sunshine League at the same alleys. The former had 139 for game, and the latter 352 for set. The Rugmen took the team honors with their 545 game and 1,494 set.

Miss Davis, with scores of 129 and 327, garnered the individual honors in the C. & P. Ladies League at the Strike. Her team, Annex Service No. 1, had a 518 game and 1,456 set.

Patents No. 1, rolling a 1,690 set, won all three from Coast Survey in the Commerce loop at Rendezvous. Patents No. 2 handed Census a goose egg. Patents No. 3 gained the odd one from Mines, and Foreign and Domestic was 1-up on Standards. The latter had a 595 game among its scores. Woods, with a 131 game and 386 set, was high scorer for the evening.

Steiner-Baumgartner walked off with the team honors in the Jewelers League at Columbia, rolling a 539 game and 1,555 set. Schaffer's 134 and 359 scores took the individual awards. Limon, Heller Plating, R. Harris Seniors and Castleberg swept their matches with R. Harris Juniors, A. Kahn, Galt No. 1, Pearson and Crain, Goldsmith, Bluestein, and Steiner-Baumgartner won the odd-ones from Pirrone, Galt No. 2, the Jewel Shop, and Desio.

Alexandria High Defeats Hopewell

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., Feb. 12.—Alexandria High School took the lead in the race for the Class C Scholastic championship of Virginia when it upset the dope and defeated the powerful Hopewell High School tossers, 27-22 before a large crowd at the Armory here tonight. It was the Twins fourth straight win in the series.

Eastern Five Barely Beats Gonzaga, 31-29

Eastern High School's basket ball team, manned for the most part by youths who played but minor roles in the winning of the public high title, won a shaky 31-29 victory over Gonzaga last night at Gonzaga.

The eventual losers made good headway against Eastern in the first quarter, leading 10-2, but once Bones Courtney and Al Waters became hot-handed Eastern rapidly gained ground. The winners led 13-10 to the half, and were always able to remain ahead in the stretch.

FEBRUARY 13, 1907.

The District appropriation bill was passed yesterday in the Senate in 65 minutes. The House spent the day discussing the naval appropriation bill, more than half of which has been completed.

It is now reported that only 19 of almost 200 persons were saved in the river boat collision near Providence. Boats bearing the dead have arrived in Boston, and relatives are claiming their loved ones now. The disaster was one of the worst in the history of American shipping.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

KNEE TROUSERS FOR MR. MELLON.

AT LAST the United States will have an ambassador to Great Britain, who can afford the job. In fact, if Andrew Mellon likes the Court of St. James' he may even buy it.

• • • •

Mr. Mellon is worth more on the hoof than any other ambassador to Great Britain in history. If money talks America will need no loud speakers to make her diplomacy understood.

• • • •

The appointment of the Secretary of the Treasury was great news to England. A diplomat with Andy's financial genius will be a great help to any court. If the king runs short of cash it will be pleasant to know that the second richest man in the world is just around the corner.

• • • •

When Mr. Mellon took the Treasury post it was a recreation resort, but since the depression it had become a problem in refilling operations.

• • • •

Things must have been pretty bad in the Treasury Department when he was willing to undergo the experience of knee pants and silver buckled shoes to get away from it.

• • • •

HOW he will look in short velvet trousers is one of the questions agitating the world of finance as well as the world of diplomacy. And it's probably agitating Andrew.

• • • •

But he is entitled to a change of scenery after so many years among the tax problems.

The selection of Mr. Mellon was pretty sudden. "Andrew," said President Hoover, after a Cabinet meeting, "how would you like a new job?"

"Who's after my scalp this time?" asked Mr. Mellon.

"Stop fooling," said Andrew.

"I'm serious," said the President. "I've decided to name you ambassador to Great Britain."

"Why me?" asked Mr. Mellon, thinking there must be a catch in it.

"I've looked over all available candidates, and you are the only one with money enough to accept it."

• • • •

"Do I have to wear those funny clothes that ambassadors to Great Britain wear?" asked Mr. Mellon.

"If you've got plenty of money you can wear anything you choose," said the President.

"Am I acceptable to the king?" asked the Greatest Secretary since Whoozis.

"The king is delighted," assured the President. "It is years since he has looked on anybody so financially secure. You'll be the biggest attraction Buckingham Palace has had in a long time."

"How about the Treasury?"

"Oh, that'll be all right. There won't be any money in it for the next five or six years, anyhow."

• • • •

And thus it came to pass. Mr. Mellon will soon be on his way abroad to represent his country. And his countrymen will be proud to have an ambassador who can own the job outright, with no financing plan.

SPIRIT OF LINCOLN LIVES AGAIN AS CITY OBSERVES BIRTHDAY

EMANCIPATOR PRAISED IN HOUSE AND SENATE

Museum Is Opened at Ford Theater; Patriotic Groups Join in Ceremonies.

The spirit of Abraham Lincoln pervaded the National Capital yesterday as patriotic organizations, schools, civic organizations and individuals observed the 123d anniversary of his birth.

Outstanding events of the day were a radio address to the Nation from President Hoover, a ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial, conducted by the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, in which more than 40 patriotic organizations took part; the Lincoln Day dinner of the National Capital Republican Club at the Willard, and the opening of the new Lincoln Museum at the Ford Theater, on Tenth street near E street northwest, where John Wilkes Booth, the actor, mortally wounded the President.

Impressive scenes in the ever-turning pages of human drama were enacted at the historic theater building. Crowds streamed through the doors throughout the day. Bending over the cases were men and women of both races, of all types. There were politicians and Government workers, bankers and store clerks, employed and unemployed. World War veterans who are staying at the recently organized veterans' shelter home marched in military formation to the museum and spent nearly an hour examining the relics.

Pay Visit to Museum.

After the ceremony at the Lincoln Memorial, the Loyal Legion and the other patriotic organizations visited the museum. Amid the objects of the past century, a microphone had been installed, and from it Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks, eulogized Lincoln. His address was broadcast by Station WMAL.

The Dames of the Loyal Legion, Col. Grant revealed, are planning to restore the house at 516 Tenth street, across from the theater, to the way it looked when the wounded President was removed from the theater. Lincoln died at this house. Until the new museum was opened in the theater, the house was the home of the famous Col. O. H. Oldroyd collection of Lincoln relics. This collection is now being removed to the new museum.

The theater has not been restored to its original condition because the view was taken that duplication of the theater would be in the form of a monument to Booth. However, the attendants will show you exactly where the stage was situated, and the location of the box occupied by Lincoln when he was fatally shot.

Tribute to Lincoln.

Col. Grant, speaking from this historic place, referred to the appeal of Lincoln on the common man. He also paid tribute to Lincoln's personal sympathy and Christian attitude, and his ability to express his opinions so that everyone could understand them.

Of the many ceremonies in respect to Lincoln conducted throughout the day and last evening, probably the one most typical of the man was the one held by the Loyal Legion at the Lincoln Memorial. Here beside the Potomac, with the chaste lines of the monument reflected in the tranquil pool before it, one was isolated from the clamorous modern world. The serenity of the spot is symbolic of the character of the man to whom it is dedicated.

Colors of the various patriotic organizations were escorted to the monument by a detail of soldiers, sailors, marines and Coast Guardsmen. Appropriate music was rendered by the United States Marine Band. Wreaths were laid at the foot of the Lincoln statue by Commander G. A. Poindexter, U. S. N., who represented President Hoover at the ceremony, and by Maj. Donald A. Davidson, U. S. A., acting Engineer Commissioner, who represented the District Commissioners.

Appeal for Defense.

Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, who delivered an address at the memorial, declared that "Lincoln's determination to spare no efforts to preserve the Union should spur us today to spare no efforts to preserve America." He made an appeal for strong national defense, particularly in aviation, pointing out that the best way to insure peace is through preparedness.

Lincoln was the subject of addresses in both the Senate and House. Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, declared that those Americans who have sunk into dejection over the present economic stress should take lesson from the President, whose "indomitable courage" brought the Nation safely through one of its most critical periods.

In the House, Representative Burton E. Chiperfield, of Illinois, drew a parallel under that Lincoln stood steadfast before the nations of the world for the rights of America. Pointing out that Lincoln never failed to show courageously for the dignity of the nation when it was assailed from abroad, Representative Chiperfield declared that such an example should be helpful to the United States at the present time. He asserted that the present troubles in the world will be ended when the people of the Nation are sufficiently impressed with the importance of and need of unified action.

Man Fined and Jailed For Striking 2 Women

Arthur Purvis, 36 years old, of 2406 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, yesterday received a sentence of 150 days in jail and a $25 fine upon being convicted of charges of assault and disorderly conduct.

Irma Murray and May Feltner told Judge John P. McMahon that Purvis had struck both of them and had inflicted a scalp wound on Mrs. Feltner.

WAR VETS PAY TRIBUTE

Members of the War Vets Shelter Home were among the many patriotic organizations who yesterday paraded to the Lincoln Memorial. This band of unemployed honorably discharged war veterans now are located in new quarters, 2626 to 2630 Pennsylvania avenue.

BRIGHTWOOD IS TOLD NOT TO FEAR SNIPER

Much Undue Alarm in Case, Police Official Says at Citizens' Meeting.

Activities of the "sniper" who has thrown the northwest section into a panic with four shootings in a week need not alarm the residents of the Brightwood section, Police Capt. Joseph Morgan, commander of the Sixth Precinct, told the members of the Brightwood Citizens Association last night. He said much of the alarm was due to the manner in which the case was played in the newspapers.

He was not convinced, he said, that any of the shootings were connected, but was working on the case with an open mind. In his opinion Gordon T. Backus, Department of Agriculture worker, Helen Andrews and Doris Beall were shot by different persons. The man who shot Paul Riedel was a holdup man, according to Capt. Morgan's theory.

Capt. Morgan said he had talked with Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, yesterday morning and that the police head had complimented the Sixth Precinct personnel on its record of clearing up cases within their jurisdiction. Records show that the Sixth has the highest batting average of any in the city in this respect.

A need for more traffic signals in the vicinity of Georgia and Colorado avenues and Military Road northwest is shown by a traffic survey recently made, Capt. Morgan said.

After Capt. Morgan's talk the association adopted a resolution asking for a traffic light where those three thoroughfares intersect.

Program Will Follow University Club Election

After the annual meeting and election at the University Club tonight, a special entertainment program open to visitors will be presented.

The elections are to fill five vacancies on the board of governors. The following persons have been nominated: J. Raymond Hoover, George F. Snyder, Ben. T. Webster, Gilbert L. Hall, J. Clifford Folger, William C. Miller, George S. Ward and Cecil J. Wilkinson.

The new board of governors will meet next Thursday and name the club's officers. Reelection of Proctor L. Dougherty as president seems probable.

Men's Shop Operator Files in Bankruptcy

Through Attorney James J. Slattery, Mr. Tolstoi, who gave his address as the Park Lane Apartments, said that he had assets of $695.83 and liabilities of $3,459.14.

HOUSE GROUP PLANS SCHOOL INSPECTION

Visit to Two Institutions Described as Unsafe Being Considered.

Members of the House District appropriations subcommittee, now hard at work on the District supply bill, may make a special inspection tour of Wilson Teachers College and Ross Elementary School to satisfy themselves as to the unsafe condition of the buildings, Chairman Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, said last night.

The committee will begin consideration of the school budget Monday, when Supt. Frank W. Ballou and other school officials will be called before the body.

Chairman Cannon said the committee "undoubtedly" will visit the two school sites before voting additional school funds either for replacement or repair. He said members plan to go thoroughly into the case.

Students at the Wilson Teachers' College will be given the alternative of attending classes at the Columbia School, Seventh and O streets northwest, regardless of their dislike for the building and its location, or waiting until their regular building is repaired or another one is built, school officials announced after reports of complaints from students were received.

The Ross School, adjoining the Wilson, where cracks have been found in the walls, will not be vacated unless the condition grows worse. Representative Robert G. Simmons, of Nebraska, former chairman of the House District committee on appropriations, added fuel yesterday to the flame of sarcasm over the "last-minute discovery" of the defective buildings.

"Of course there may be some serious fault with the building," he said, "but during the seven years I have been working on District appropriations I have noticed that just about the time we are ready to start our hearings, or during our hearings, some unlooked-for 'emergency' in the school system has been brought to light."

Mrs. Rudolph Inherits $414,000 Estate's Bulk

Former District Commissioner Cuno H. Rudolph left an estate valued at $414,000 when he died January 6, according to the petition of his widow, Mrs. Amy Rudolph, for probate of the will in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Mr. Rudolph held real estate valued at $13,000 and the remainder of his estate was in stocks and bonds. He gave $5,000 to the Children's Hospital; $10,000 to a niece, Mrs. Adele T. Kanne, of Baltimore, and a like amount to a grandnephew, W. Rudolph Kanne. The will, which names Louis Ottenberg as the attorney, provides that the residue is to go to the widow.

Thin Air Over Andes Adds To Hazards, Flier States

Robert Shippee Tells National Geographic Society of Flights Above Volcano El Misti, and of Rare Views Covering Inca Ruins Area.

The hazards of flying in the lofty Andes of Peru, where the atmosphere is so thin that heavy planes are sustained with difficulty, were described for members of the National Geographic Society last night at the Washington Auditorium by Robert Shippee. On the landing fields at 10,000 and 11,000 feet altitude, Mr. Shippee said, it was necessary to touch the ground with landing speed double that at sea level. On a number of flights a height of 24,000 feet was reached, and it was necessary for the fliers to mix oxygen with the air they breathed.

From their planes Mr. Shippee and his associates obtained striking views of the ruins of Machu Picchu, hidden fortress city of the Incas, discovered twenty years ago by an expedition in which the National Geographic Society participated and which was led by Hiram Bingham, now United States senator from Connecticut. The site, cleared soon after its discovery, is now heavily covered by a forest growth.

Some of the most spectacular photographs obtained by the fliers were of the celebrated volcano, El Misti, 19,200 feet in height. Despite the thin and bumpy air they flew over the peak and dipped into its smoking crater. The motor lost speed noticeably, presumably because of the sulphur fumes.

Near El Misti the party photographed the Colca Valley, filled with numerous extinct volcanic cones and its floor covered by a lava flow. Later they made a trip into the valley by muleback, and found that the score of towns that had once flourished in the valley were now reduced to a sparse population of Indians who have little contact with the outside country.

Close to the coast, Mr. Shippee and his companions discovered from the air a Peruvian "Great Wall" extending for 40 miles inland to the mountains. Although parts of this wall were known to observers from the ground, its great extent had not previously been suspected. It is believed to have been built for defense by a people antedating the Incas. Aerial photographs were taken also of ruined cities and temples in the coastal country. Although from the surface these appeared to be merely unrelated mounds in the sands, they were seen from the air in all their details.

KING MAY REQUEST DROPPING PLAN FOR CAR LINES MERGER

Utah Senator Threatens to Seek Abandonment to Stop Wrangle.

THREE GROUPS DIFFER ON SEVERAL CLAUSES

Transfers and School Fare Prove Snags; Buses Also Delay Agreement.

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, will ask abandonment of the traction merger project if the Public Utilities Commission, District citizens and heads of traction companies do not immediately reconcile differences on the consolidation agreement.

The threat was voiced at the conclusion of hearings yesterday before the Senate District committee, which again failed to adjust widely divergent views of the three groups. Senator King said he saw no use in continuing hearings if there is no likelihood of harmony.

Earlier Mr. King suggested representatives of the opposing schools of thought confer on proposed amendments, with a view of "getting together." But President John H. Hanna, of the Capital Traction Co., asked that he and President William F. Ham, of the Washington Railway & Electric Co., be excused from participating in such a conference. He said they preferred to take the matter up directly with the committee.

School Fare Proves Snag.

Principal points of difference yesterday lay in demands of Peoples Counsel Richmond B. Keech and citizen witnesses for a universal free transfer and assurances of a reduced fare for school children, by consent of the companies, if the courts fail to sustain the present 3-cent rate.

President Ham agreed to a reduced school rate provision, if the following qualification were inserted: "Provided that the return to the company as a whole shall be fair and reasonable."

Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Roberts said the Public Utilities Commission could not agree to this, as both traction lines now contend they are not getting a "fair and reasonable" rate. William McK. Clayton, of the Federation of Citizens Associations, said the Ham provision would throw a "wet blanket" on low school fare proposals.

Peoples Counsel Keech demanded that the Washington Rapid Transit Co. be merged with the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. in the one consolidation. The bill simply provides that the new company may acquire the stock of the bus line, and the commission later may authorize a merger. Mr. Keech countended benefits of consolidation are dependent upon all three lines merging at the same time.

Might Wish Competition.

Mr. Roberts said the commission took a different view. He suggested the commission might wish to place the Washington Rapid Transit Co. in competition with the other two lines, but when pressed for further information on this point he declared he had "talked too much." Mr. Clayton said he thought it "unusual" that only the traction companies were required to merge.

Evan H. Tucker, president of the Northeast Citizens Association, the only citizens group not affiliated with the federation, reiterated citizens would be willing to pay a higher fare to dispense with the present "transfer confusion."

An appeal for approval of the merger without restrictive amendments was made by Mrs. Gardner Orme, who said she is a stockholder in the Washington Railway & Electric Co. She said her stock has dropped from a $100 par to $18 a share. Unregulated cheap taxicabs, she charged, are being allowed to "wreck" the traction companies.

Darr Family to Get Estate of $70,000

A home at 3512 Rittenhouse street northwest, valued at $35,000 and $35,000 in personal property comprise the estate left by Charles W. Darr, prominent attorney, when he died January 3, his will filed yesterday for probate showed.

Mrs. Mary E. Darr, the widow, and a son and three daughters are named as executors of the estate.

Locker Thief Goes to Jail.

Judge John P. McMahon yesterday sentenced Augustus J. Pinkard, colored, to 44 days in jail after he had been convicted of the theft of two overcoats from the locker room of the Washington Gas Light Co. some time ago. Robert Muir, 1409 Crittenden street northwest, identified the two coats as his property.

POPE'S TENTH YEAR MARKED AT SHRINE

Catholic Church Dignitaries Attend Mass in Honor of Anniversary.

In the presence of the Most Rev. Pietro Fumasoni-Biondi, apostolic delegate to the United States and the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, the Diplomatic Corps and the faculty and students of Catholic University, the Right Rev. Mgr. David T. O'Dwyer celebrated solemn high mass in the crypt of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception yesterday morning in honor of the tenth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI. Similar ceremonies were held in the capital cities of the world.

The Right Rev. John Mark Cannon, Bishop of Erie, preached on "Modern Evils and the Papacy." He outlined four major evils of modern life: The divorce of Christian morality from education, the divorce of Christian morality from economics and commerce, the divorce of Christian morality from government, and nationalism.

Universal Discontent.

"To responsible men, the most astounding fact among the children of men on earth is the almost universal discontent and unhappiness which affects the human race. Created by God with inalienable right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, we find the races of men at this hour of their destiny in confusion of thought, in distrust and fear of one another, and with centuries of labor and civilization near collapse and ruin," he said.

"The youth are taught to seek the solution of all problems, the beginning and the end of all life, in the field of natural sciences, unenlightened in the vast preponderant lessons of divine revelation of the Sacred Nazarene," the bishop asserted.

Pontiff Held Supreme.

Speaking of commerce, he said, "As a result of two gigantic forces, labor and capital, society has been rocked by explosive combats; faith in government and the judiciary has been chilled and Christian moral responsibility on such fundamentals as justice, honesty and family integrity has well-nigh disappeared."

"The only credentials of universal church leadership repose in the hands of our illustrious supreme pontiff, Pius XI. The return of the nations and their distinguished statesmen to the chair of Peter in the light of modern procedure and knowledge is the hope of civilization at the dawn of the new epoch."

REPORT OF HOSPITAL ON DEATH OF YOUTH EXONERATES DOCTOR

MORE EVIDENCE ASKED BY SENATOR CAPPER

Inquiry Is Said to Indicate Only X-Ray Could Show Injuries.

The report into Emergency Hospital's handling of the Joseph Sisk case, made by the surgical staff of the institution, exonerates the interne who diagnosed his condition as drunk and sent him to Gallinger Hospital, where he died five days later, The Washington Post learned last night.

"Gross carelessness" charged to Emergency Hospital by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, who announced plans for a Senate inquiry into the treatment the 24-year-old Baltimore newspaper reporter received.

Senator Capper said either his Senate District committee will investigate the Sisk incident or he will go before the Senate District appropriations subcommittee when appropriations affecting Emergency Hospital come before that body. The hospital is allowed $40,000 to handle charity cases.

Companion's Story Sought.

Earlier yesterday he asked for a report from W. Turner Catledge, Washington newspaper correspondent, whom Sisk had visited prior to the Mount Rainier (Md.) automobile accident in which he was injured.

Senator Capper said he did not want to prejudice the case, but that neglect appeared evident from facts as disclosed in the newspapers. If his Senate District committee takes up the inquiry, it will fall to the lot of Senator Royal S Copeland (Democrat), New York, chairman of the hospitals subcommittee, to look into the matter. Senator Copeland is a physician and would be well equipped to understand questions of diagnosis involved. He was in New York yesterday.

The investigation launched by Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), Maryland, personal friend of young Sisk and himself a Baltimorean, lagged yesterday. Palmisano wrote Emergency and Gallinger Hospitals and Twelfth Precinct Police for a report on the case. He said Gallinger had replied to his request for a diagnosis, and he had been in informal conference with Emergency Hospital authorities. He said he did not know what further he could do in the matter.

Revealed Only by X-Ray.

After he was pronounced "drunk" at Emergency Hospital January 29, Gallinger physicians found Sisk was suffering from fractured pelvis, fractured ribs, a punctured lung, lung hemorrhages and a ruptured diaphragm.

It is understood that the Emergency Hospital's report states that Gallinger Hospital did not learn the extent of the young man's injuries until three days after his admittance and X-ray examinations had been made. It is the opinion of the surgical staff, headed by Dr. James Mitchell, that the injuries could not have been discovered without X-ray aid.

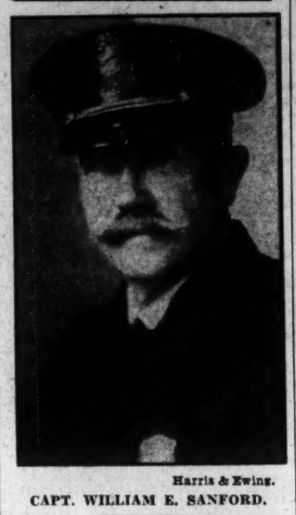
On January 29, when Sisk was brought in, Emergency Hospital treated 134 patients in the emergency room and Sisk was given the usual study. The report has been given to Dr. Harry M. Kaufman, secretary of the hospital's executive board. Woodbury Blair, president of the board, has asked for a copy, which will be considered when the board meets next Tuesday.

Man "Lost" to Family Is Victim of Accident

While relatives of John G. Thoene, 69 years old, of 1354 Perry street northwest, appealed to police to find him when he failed to return home Thursday night after attending a Masonic lodge meeting, the elderly man was receiving treatment in Emergency Hospital for a broken leg.

He was knocked down at Thirteenth and R streets northwest, Thursday night by an automobile operated by John Errter, 6131 Georgia avenue northwest, according to police.

SUCCUMBS



Harris & Ewing.
CAPT. WILLIAM E. SANFORD.

CAPT. W. E. SANFORD, RETIRED, DIES AT 62

Formerly Commanded Fifth Police Precinct; Rites Expected Monday.

Capt. William E. Sanford, retired member of the Metropolitan Police Department and for many years in command of the old Fifth Precinct, died yesterday at his home, 2520 Eleventh street northwest, following a brief illness. He was 62 years old.

Capt. Sanford was born in Westmoreland County, Va., November 12, 1869. He had been a resident of Washington for more than 40 years. Shortly after coming here he was employed by the American Railway Express Co. He remained in that position for some time, finally joining the District Fire Department in 1897.

Served in Fire Department.

For about two years Capt. Sanford served in the Fire Department and on July 1, 1899, received his appointment on the police force. He began his service as a private in the First Precinct. He was later transferred to what was then the Sixth Precinct and served as acting sergeant.

A short time later Capt. Sanford was made a full sergeant and returned to the First Precinct. He was appointed a lieutenant in 1919 and a year later was promoted to the rank of captain. He was placed in command of the old Fifth Precinct, remaining there for ten years, until his retirement October 1, 1930.

Capt. Sanford was widely known throughout the department. While serving in the Fifth Precinct he organized a Christmas charity fund and for many years created Yuletide happiness among the poor by distributing baskets of food and clothing. Children of the Capitol Hill section called him "the Santa Claus with a badge."

Active in Masonry.

Capt. Sanford took an active part in Masonic organizations. He was a member of Petworth Lodge, No. 47; Mount Horeb Lodge No. 7, Royal Arch Masons; Washington Commandary, No. 1 and the Almas Temple of Shriners.

Surviving Capt. Sanford are his widow, Mrs. Lillian B. Sanford; a son, Julian D. Sanford and two daughters, S. Frances Sanford and Mrs. Fred K. Kingree, all of this city.

It is expected that funeral services will be held at his home on Monday at 2:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Moving of Patent Office Will Be Ended April 11

Preparations to complete the removal of the United States Patent Office to its new quarters in the Department of Commerce Building have been made, it was announced yesterday, and it is believed that April 11 will see the bureau firmly established. A celebration has been planned in honor of the occasion.

A number of prominent speakers are scheduled for a banquet to be held at the Willard Hotel, and a reception, with Commissioner Thomas E. Robertson and his staff acting as hosts, will be held in the Commerce Building auditorium.

Disabled Fireman Is Retired.

A. J. Wernig, private in the Fire Department, was retired by order of the District Commissioners because of physical disability incurred in line of duty. He was awarded a pension of $100 a month.

ANOTHER SHOOTING LAID TO SNIPER AS MANY CLEWS FAIL

SECOND BULLET ENTERS ROOM OF STANLEY BELL

Radio Announcer Puts Blame on "Mystery Man;" Probe Kidnaping Report.

As the second week since Washington's "sniper" started his terroristic activities began its march on the calendar yesterday, police admitted their lack of consequential leads toward apprehension of the elusive gunman in his "large dark sedan."

"We are following out every logical line carefully and intensively," said Inspector F. S. W. Burke, chief of the Detective Bureau, last night, "as well as many less logical 'leads' furnished us."

However, he said, despite several recent arrests and the assigning of many men from other tasks to the search for the killer of one man and who wounded several others, no progress has been made.

Another Man Is Shot.

Two other episodes early yesterday morning were attributed to the mysterious sniper, although police also worked along thories unconnected with that premise.

William H. Gehramann, 48, of 120 Adams street northwest, was wounded in the left arm by a man leaping from a parked automobile, near Brooks Hill, Md. He was treated for the wound at Georgetown University Hospital, where it was said his condition was not serious.

The other incident was the firing of a bullet from a taxicab early yesterday morning, the missile shattering the bedroom window of Stanley Bell, radio announcer. A newsboy said he saw a man thrust a revolver from the window of the cab and fire the shot.

Sniper Is Blamed.

The boy did not obtain the number of the cab. Bell said he knew of no one who would want to injure him and said his only explanation was that the incident was due to the sniper.

Shortly before 9 o'clock last night police received an alarm that several men in a "large black sedan" had gagged a man in the rear of 1327 L street northwest and driven away. Several occupants of a rooming house said they heard and saw the purported kidnaping.

At a late hour last night police had obtained no trace of the car and were inclined to believe that the affair was merely the effort of friends of some inebriate to guide him home.

Long-Delayed Alley Bill Is Disapproved

City Heads Hold Measure Fails to Comply With Fiscal Program.

Because the bill to abolish alley dwellings in the District fails to comply with President Hoover's fiscal program in its present form, the District Commissioners yesterday reported their disapproval of the long-delayed measure in a letter to the House District committee.

The provision to which the Bureau of the Budget has objected is that half of the $1,000,000 a year proposed to be spent in the purchase of alley property every year be provided by the Treasury Department and the other half by the United States Housing Corporation, created during the World War period.

The Commissioners stated, however, that they are still in sympathy with the "principles and purpose" of the measure, which is sponsored by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

2 Women Are Injured In Auto-Truck Crash

Two women were slightly injured yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was overturned in a collision with a truck from the Naval Air Station at Constitution avenue and Sixteenth street northwest. Mrs. Mildred Stamm, 28 years old, of 432 Longfellow street northwest, and Mrs. Irene Gootch, 32 years old, of 5823 Sherrier place northwest, were treated at Emergency Hospital.

They were passengers in the automobile operated north on Constitution avenue by Mrs. Stamm's husband, Abraham Stamm, 45 years old. Mr. Stamm and Victor E. Martenson, 25 years old, sailor attached to the Naval Air Station, escaped injury in the accident.

Police Promotion Tests Will Be Held in March

Announcement of competitive examinations for promotions in the police department was made yesterday for the Civil Service Commission through the Daily Bulletin of the police department. The examinations will be held soon after March 1, when the time for filing applications for the test expires.

The examinations will be given sergeants—with five years' continuous service—who want lieutenancies; sergeants and detective sergeants—with seven years' service—for elevation to lieutenants, and lieutenants with eight years' service to take status on the captaincy register.

Outswinging Door Bill Opposed by City Heads

The District Commissioners yesterday reported unfavorably in a communication to Congress on a bill which would require all exit doors on public buildings or residences more than two stories high to swing outwardly.

The provision as it affects public buildings is already included in the District building code, the commissioners explained, and it is undesirable for residences.

War Debt Payments in Gold Held Difficult by Churchill

British Statesman Blames Economic Troubles on High Tariffs; Advocates Closer Unity of English Speaking Peoples as Necessary for World Peace.

The war creditor nations will have as much difficulty in collecting their debts in the next thirteen years as they have in the last thirteen if they do not accept payments in the form of goods and a rise in prices, Winston Churchill predicted last night in a lecture on "The World Economic Crisis" before a large audience at Constitution Hall.

In making this prediction the former chancellor of the British exchequer pointed to the damage that has been done by the insistence of the creditor nations in demanding the payment of debts in gold.

The future salvation of the world rests in the unity of Great Britain and the United States, which would embrace all the English-speaking people, the famous British statesman and writer told his audience.

"Surely the time has come, ladies and gentlemen," he said, "when the English-speaking people should keep closely together. Our two countries have nothing to gain by engaging in future strife. We have all the territory we need. If the world is to escape from its present misery, there must be a central nucleus formed by the two English-speaking nations.

As Mr. Churchill made this appeal the large auditorium began to ring with an applause which swelled into a veritable thunder of approbation as he ended: "My confidence in the British Empire is only equaled by my confidence in the United States."

He blamed the world economic trouble today on the attempt to pay war debts across a high tariff frontage. This, he pointed out, has led to the maldistribution of gold and the sterilization of gold. Mr. Churchill defined gold as a measure of value which enables us to measure the exertions of today over those of yesterday and of the exertions that are yet to be made. Keeping the value of gold stable is one of the most important things in the world, he pointed out.

The Britisher expressed the opinion that at the time of the stock market crash the United States had come nearer solving the problems of the world, through attempting to bridge the gap between the consumer and producer, than at any time.

So prolonged and deafening was the applause at the conclusion of the lecture that the distinguished visitor again took his place on the stage and expressed his thanks. Mr. Churchill was introduced by Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador to the United States. He was presented to Washington by the Community Institute.
